Germany Claims Success for Starvation Blockade

Impression Is Growing That Hitler Is Unlikely To Send Army to England

Increased Success of Submarines May Mean He Will Confine Activities to Economic War

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, July 12 — Spectacular success for the starvation blockade against England was claimed and officially emphasized today, while German sources remarked that only Adolf Hitler and his top associates knew when and how—or whether—a full-out military assault on the British isles themselves would be made.

This significant and unamplified observation was made under circumstances equally significant, for it was the second successive day in which the communique of the high command had been preoccupied with the progress of the economic warfare, substantially to the exclusion of the military side.

It has been three weeks now since France was knocked out, and there has been no sign of a major attack on Britain's kingdom.

300 Ships Damaged

This time, the high command asserted that since the beginning of the war 4,329,213 tons of "enemy merchant shipping space or shipping space usable to the enemy" had been sunk by Nazi naval and air action and that aside from this 300 ships had been so damaged by bombers as to be out of service for the present or for some months.

The total tonnage lost by Britain in the entire World war was but 7,830,765 tons.

(In London, an authorized source declared the figure of 4,329,213 given by the Germans was in fact more than four times the total British losses to July 1. It added that Germany had lost 877,000 tons of merchant shipping and Italy about 244,000 tons captured, sunk or scuttled—more than the total British losses since the outbreak of the war.)

Large Tanker Sunk

Only today, the Germans told of sinking a 15,000-ton tanker and four smaller merchant ships in the English channel, while new smashes by bombers at English harbors and munitions plants were reported.

Again it was stated that the convoy system so useful to the British in that war was not working now—for it was said that through coordination submarine and plane attacks serious losses had been suffered repeatedly by the British.

Gov. Moore Asked To Run with Garner

JERSEY CITY, N. J., July 12, (AP)—Governor A. Harry Moore disclosed today he had been "approached" to run for vice-president on a Democratic ticket headed by John N. Garner for president.

Moore, who served in the United States Senate with Garner for three years and is now completing his third term as governor, reiterated that he wished to return to private life.

Farley To Back FDR In Spite of Third Term Views

Says He Is a Democrat and Will Not "Take a Walk"

By RICHARD L. TURNER

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic National Committee, long a foe of the third term movement, made it plain today that if next week's national convention renominates President Roosevelt, he will go along with the party's choice.

In the course of a press conference mostly devoted to quips and laughter, Farley dropped suddenly into a mood of intense seriousness when asked whether, if the chief executive runs again, he would emulate the 1936 example of Alfred E. Smith and "take a walk."

"Everybody who knows anything about me," he slowly answered, "knows that Jim Farley is a Democrat."

No Bolt by Wheeler

This harmony move was reinforced, too, by a statement from Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, himself a candidate upon whom much third party discussion has centered, that he would support the convention's nominee.

These developments occurred during a day which saw every incoming train loaded with delegates and convention goers, most of them convinced that Mr. Roosevelt will accept the nomination. Many spec-

Willkie Declares Economic Life of Nation Must Be Rehabilitated

As Necessary As Adequate National Defense Republican Candidate Says at Denver, Col.

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

DENVER, July 12 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie told a cheering crowd today that "to rehabilitate our economic life is as necessary as an adequate national defense."

Willkie speaking from the steps of the state capital, said "we must make our economy vital and vibrant to survive the most aggressive and destructive attack in all history on the Democratic way of life."

The Republican nominee added:

"It is with a very deep sense of humility—an overpowering sense of humility—that I accept the leadership of a cause to bring unity to America, to rehabilitate our economic life and to build such a national defense that no Hitler or any other totalitarian dictator may ever strike at this great, free Democratic life that we have here in America."

Meets Committee

Willkie drove here for a meeting with the Colorado Republican committee from his Colorado Springs hotel.

Mrs. Willkie accompanied him. At Littleton, Colo., a spectator asked Mrs. Willkie to speak. She shook her head and Willkie remarked with a grin, "she doesn't make speeches."

"Have no deception about it," Willkie said in his talk here, "to rehabilitate our economic life is as necessary as an adequate national defense. We must make our economy vital and vibrant to survive the most aggressive and destructive attack in all history on the Democratic way of life."

Giant American Liners Bringing Refugees to U.S.

Washington and Manhattan Due To Reach New York in a Few Days

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP)—Americans largest liners, the sister ships Washington and Manhattan, nosed their way across the Atlantic tonight toward the United States, bearing more than 2,000 American citizens from Europe's war zones, on special voyages arranged by the state department.

The Washington radioed she would dock in New York at 9 a. m. (EST) tomorrow with 1,610 passengers picked up at Galway, Ireland. The U. S. lines said all but about 150 of her passengers were American citizens.

The Manhattan messaged she left Lisbon, Portugal, today with 798 passengers after a three-day delay caused by late arrivals. (Exchange Telegraph, British news agency, reported she was convoyed by the U. S. Cruiser Trenton and the U. S. Destroyer Dickerson but the report was denied by the U. S. Lines in New York.)

The Nea Hellas docked today with 269 passengers, 35 of them Americans.

Maurice Maeterlinck, Belgian Shakespeare, and his petite, blonde wife, Selysette, thirty years his junior, arrived on the Greek liner, victims of the rapid Nazi advance in Europe.

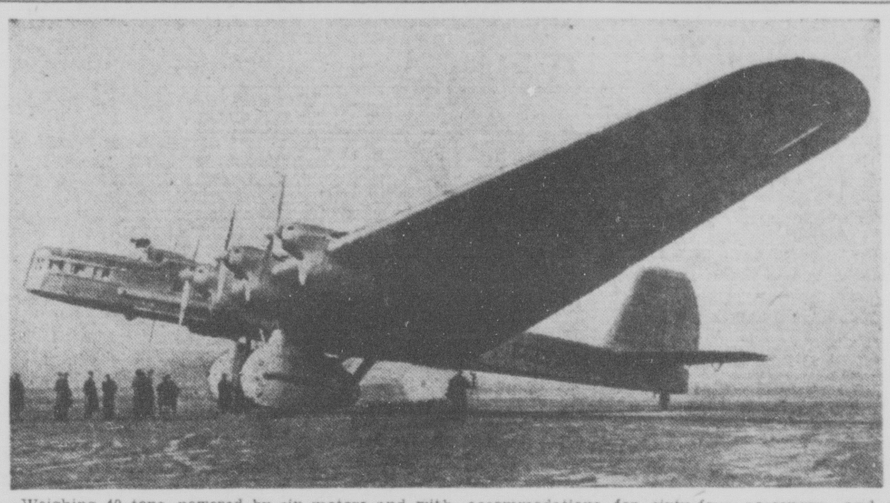

Spry for his seventy-eight years, the once wealthy poet said:

"All I had is gone. All I have left is the few dollars in my pocket. I had to escape the war because I am counted as an enemy of Germany and, if captured, I would be shot at once."

He explained that the Germans seized his money in Belgium banks and his luxurious mansion in Paris.

Mrs. Maeterlinck observed: "The bluebird is not dead in France but it is black," she declared.

Roosevelt Not To Go to Chicago to Party Convention

And That's All the President Will Say about His Plans

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON, July 12, (AP) — Almost every official except President Roosevelt appeared to be willing tonight to acknowledge that the President would consent to be drafted by the Democratic convention, now only three days away.

But Mr. Roosevelt's semi-weekly sparring with reporters at his press conference produced only a flat statement that he was not going to the Chicago convention and a studied continuation of his silence on that burning political question:

Will he or won't he agree to run again?

He did say he expected to cruise on the Potomac river this week-end, spend two or three days at his home at Hyde Park, N. Y., next week-end, and that that would be his practice practically for the rest of the summer.

Will Keep in Close Touch

By telephone and radio, he said, he could keep in instant contact with Washington and return to the capital in a few hours.

Politicians professed to see in his remarks an indication that, regardless of whether the chief executive agreed to be the Democratic candidate, he would spend much of his time close to Washington guiding the tremendous defense program.

If he became a candidate, they said, he might explain to the voters that he could spare neither the time nor energy to go on a campaign this summer and that patriotism and the public interest demanded that he concentrate his attention on building up the nation's armed might.

Reports of Japanese Attack on Two British Steamers Doubted

Moscow Radio Asserts Six Men Have Been Killed Off China Coast

SHANGHAI, July 13 (Saturday) (AP)— report that Japanese warships fired on two British steamers off the central China coast and killed six persons, appeared here Thursday in a small vernacular newspaper, but British officials said they had no knowledge of such an incident and declined to take it seriously.

The newspaper, the Chinese-American Daily News, said the British ships were the Yung Foong and Yung Ta. British authorities confirmed that there two boats now were flying the British flag, but said they were Chinese vessels which had changed registration as a result of the Chinese-Japanese war and were not recognized as bona fide British craft.

The British said these were "chicken boats," sailing up and down the China coast, with no occidental officers or passengers and no wireless, and that the Japanese may have suspected them of smuggling.

They said that, even so, there was no confirmation of the incident as reported by the paper and announced over the Moscow radio.

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP)—Japanese warships have fired on two British steamers off the coast of Central China, the Moscow radio announced tonight in a broadcast picked up by NBC.

The Moscow announcement said six men were killed and one wounded aboard the British vessels, which were traveling in the general direction of Fukien province.

DALLAS, Tex., July 12 (AP)—Guy Warren of Corpus Christi, Tex., chairman of the Nominate Willkie Democrats, said today the name of the Republican presidential nominee definitely would be presented to the national Democratic convention in Chicago.

"Since organizing," he said before his departure, "we have received more than 7,000 letters from life-long Democrats from Maine to California pledging their support."

British Shipping Losses Growing, Berlin Declares

Total of 4,329,213 Sunk during War, Statement Declares

By The Associated Press

Germany's air might assailed Great Britain from Scotland to the southeast coast almost without pause yesterday, (Friday) and Germany's military leaders claimed huge successes in the Nazi U-boat campaign to starve the British into submission.

Although eleven Nazi bombers were reported brought down by Britain's defenses, the swastika-marked raiders carried on their attacks. One of the most savage cost at least ten lives in Scotland.

Only Adolf Hitler and his close associates are said to know when the full German war machine will be unleashed against the British, but Hitler's submarine commanders are losing no time in doing their utmost to halt the flow of food and war materials to the British Isles.

Many Ships Sunk

The German high command said that since the war with Britain began last September 3, Nazi naval and aerial arms have sunk 4,329,213 tons of "enemy merchant shipping space or shipping space usable to the enemy."

During the entire four years of the World War, Britain lost but 7,830,765 tons and in London an authorized source said the German figure really was four times more than British losses up to July 1, in this war.

British bombers hammered back at the Germans in raids which cost three warplanes but loosed bombs and machine gun bullets on a concentration of barges in German-held Boulogne, France, on enemy airdromes in Holland and on other objectives in Germany.

In newly-totalitarian France, the last president of the third French republic, Albert Lebrun, and the old ministers handed their resignations to Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, new chief of state. They

President and Secretary Of War Decide To Request Early Action by Congress

Later They Expect To Call Entire National Guard Out To Train Conscript Army; Maryland Units Not Included in First Call; Year of Intensive Training Urged by Gen. Marshall

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 12 — A decision to call about 50,000 national guardsmen to camps as soon as possible for perhaps a year's intensive training was reached today by President Roosevelt and his new secretary of war, Henry L. Stimson.

The decision is contingent upon approval by Congress which would have to authorize the unprecedented peacetime step. The authority will be asked when Congress reconvenes after the Democratic National Convention.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, announced the decision and said that four divisions, seven anti-aircraft regiments, and an undetermined number of harbor defense regiments would be called.

One division, he said, will come from New York and New Jersey, a second from Tenessee and the Carolinas, a third from New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arizona and Colorado, and the fourth from Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho.

May Extend Training

Once their training is completed, he said, consideration will be given to the question of extending the training to other guard units.

The training will be designed to familiarize the guardsmen with modern weapons and military practices and is expected also to fit them for training the thousands of conscripts who will be called to service if Congress enacts a compulsory military training law.

Both the army and navy high commands have endorsed conscription. Testifying before the Senate Military Committee, Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, said today that it was essential to the national defense.

The divisions mentioned by Early are the forty-fourth, thirtieth, forty-fifth and forty-first. A war department spokesman said, however, that their selection for training was entirely tentative.

If Congress approves the plan, he said, the question of which units to call will be reexamined in the light of facilities available at that time.

Training Time Not Fixed

Early declared he could not say how long a traininng period would be provided, but it was learned that the war department's recommendations called for a year.

Each of the national guard divisions has a strength of 606 officers, nine warrant officers, and 9,400 men.

This is about 3,000 men and seventy-eight officers under authorized peace strength and officials anticipated that the divisions summoned to active duty would be augmented.

Guard officers understood the procedure would be first to recruit the divisions to peace strength, retain them at their home stations for about ten days and then move

O'Conor Appoints Council To Help In Preparedness

Eighteen Men and One Woman Named by the Governor

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 12, (AP)—Organization of a nineteen-member Maryland council of defense and resources, to cooperate with the federal government's national defense program, was announced today by Governor O'Conor.

Eighteen men and one woman, all prominent in civic and business affairs of the state, were named to the council. They were:

Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president of the Johns Hopkins University.

Glenn L. Martin, aircraft manufacturer.

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, national guard commander.

Philip C. Turner ,president of the State Farm Bureau.

Robert O. Connell, president, Baltimore Association of Commerce.

Howard Bruce, Baltimore industrialist.

Charles W. Galloway, vice president, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

5 Women Killed in Cincinnati's Catholic Haven for Aged, Infirm

CINCINNATI, July 12 (AP)—Cincinnati's worst institutional fire in nearly thirty years killed five women residents of the Holy Family home today and authorities, listing property damage at $50,000, launched immediate search for a suspected incendiarist.

The state fire marshal's office entered the inquiry after home attaches told the fire chief B. J. Houston they had been recently troubled by prowlers.

At least seven persons—five police and firemen and two women residents of the Catholic haven for the aged and infirm—were injured.

Thirty other inmates were rescued, some by ropes lowered from windows when iron fire escapes along the three-story brick walls glowed white under the intense heat.

Close by on the same property, about 250 patients of old St. Francis hospital, a majority of them bedridden with incurable disease, watched fearfully through curtains of water as firemen kept flames at a distance. Many prayed, or found solace in the ministrations of nuns.

The dead:

Mary Rose Watkins, 35, Cincinnati; Mary Theders, 57, Cincinnati, whose twin sister Margaret was among the rescued; Minnie Brandhoff of Hamilton, O., Regina Niekamp, 45, of Chickasaw, O., and Rosaline Burns, 41, of Cincinnati.

Bodies of two of the women, victims of suffocation, were found near windows minutes after firemen arrived.

The others, burned and in grotesque positions, were discovered hours later, that of Miss Theders within a linen closet into which she had gone—locking the door behind her—apparently in the belief it led to the outside.

Gen. Camacho Elected President Of Mexico, His Party Declares

State's First Women's Prison Soon To Be Ready for Prisoners

Jessups, Md., July 12, (AP)—Maryland's first women's prison, a cellless model institution incorporating the best and latest features of penal housing and administration, is expected to be ready for occupancy late this month or early in August.

Finishing touches on the $450,000 colonial-type "cottage" group, involving considerable grading and completion of furniture now being made at the state penitentiary, have delayed the formal opening, officials explained.

The buildings have been completed for some time.

The lay-out of six—an administration building, hospital, cottage for white inmates, cottage for negro inmates, chapel, and boiler house—crowns a knoll dominating a 250-acre tract of land about a mile southeast of the house of correction.

Constructed of Brick

Built entirely of brick, reinforced steel and concrete, but completely lacking in prison appearance, the main cottages are grouped around a quadrangle lawn at one end of which is the administration building.

Instead of cells, each prisoner will have a room seven by ten feet in size, a daylight window too small to permit escape, and space for a bed, dresser and chair.

The doors will be solid rather than barred and are of metal construction with key locks.

Accomodation for sixty negro prisoners is provided in one "cottage" and for fifty white prisoners in another. In addition, a number of inmates can be housed on the top floor of the hospital building. This section will be reserved for refgractory inmates requiring closer confinement and for quarantine purposes at time of admission.

May Extend Training

Once their training is completed, he said, consideration will be given to the question of extending the training to other guard units.

The training will be designed to familiarize the guardsmen with modern weapons and military practices and is expected also to fit them for training the thousands of conscripts who will be called to service if Congress enacts a compulsory military training law.

Both the army and navy high commands have endorsed conscription. Testifying before the Senate Military Committee, Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, said today that it was essential to the national defense.

The divisions mentioned by Early are the forty-fourth, thirtieth, forty-fifth and forty-first. A war departmet spokesman said, however, that their selection for training was entirely tentative.

If Congress approves the plan, he said, the question of which units to call will be reexamined in the light of facilities available at that time.

Training Time Not Fixed

Early declared he could not say how long a trainiing period would be provided, but it was learned that the war department's recommendations called for a year.

Each of the national guard divisions has a strength of 608 officers, nine warrant officers, and 9,400 men.

This is about 3,000 men and seventy-eight officers under authorized peace strength and officials anticipated that the divisions summoned to active duty would be augmented.

Guard officers understood the procedure would be first to recruit the divisions to peace strength, retain them at their home stations for about ten days and then move

O'Conor Appoints Council To Help In Preparedness

Eighteen Men and One Woman Named by the Governor

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 12, (AP)—Organization of a nineteen-member Maryland council of defense and resources, to cooperate with the federal government's national defense program, was announced today by Governor O'Conor.

Eighteen men and one woman, all prominent in civic and business affairs of the state, were named to the council. They were:

Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president of the Johns Hopkins University.

Glenn L. Martin, aircraft manufacturer.

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, national guard commander.

Philip C. Turner ,president of the State Farm Bureau.

Robert O. Connell, president, Baltimore Association of Commerce.

Howard Bruce, Baltimore industrialist.

Charles W. Galloway, vice president, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Sylvan H. Lauchheimer, Baltimore, former president state bar association.

Dr. J. M. T. Finney, surgeon and chief consultant in surgery of the A. E. F.

5 Women Killed in Cincinnati's Catholic Haven for Aged, Infirm

CINCINNATI, July 12 (AP)—Cincinnati's worst institutional fire in nearly thirty years killed five women residents of the Holy Family home today and authorities, listing property damage at $50,000, launched immediate search for a suspected incendiarist.

The state fire marshal's office entered the inquiry after home attaches told the fire chief B. J. Houston they had been recently troubled by prowlers.

At least seven persons—five police and firemen and two women residents of the Catholic haven for the aged and infirm—were injured.

Thirty other inmates were rescued, some by ropes lowered from windows when iron fire escapes along the three-story brick walls glowed white under the intense heat.

Close by on the same property, about 250 patients of old St. Francis hospital, a majority of them bedridden with incurable disease, watched fearfully through curtains of water as firemen kept flames at a distance. Many prayed, or found solace in the ministrations of nuns.

The dead:

Mary Rose Watkins, 35, Cincinnati; Mary Theders, 57, Cincinnati, whose twin sister Margaret was among the rescued; Minnie Brandhoff of Hamilton, O., Regina Niekamp, 45, of Chickasaw, O., and Rosaline Burns, 41, of Cincinnati.

Bodies of two of the women, victims of suffocation, were found near windows minutes after firemen arrived.

The others, burned and in grotesque positions, were discovered hours later, that of Miss Theders within a linen closet into which she had gone—locking the door behind her—apparently in the belief it led to the outside.

Gen. Camacho Elected President Of Mexico, His Party Declares

Revolutionary Candidate Is Declared Victor by Huge Majority

MEXICO CITY, July 12 (AP)—The Mexican Revolutionary party, administration political organization, announced tonight that complete returns from Sunday's presidential election gave its candidate, General Manual Avila Camacho, a majority of 2,136,625 votes.

The party said Avila Camacho had received 2,265,199 votes, while the leading independent candidate, General Juan Andreu Almazan, a conservative, had received only 128,574.

General Rafael Sanchez Tarpia, leader of the center, was credited with 14,046 votes.

State's First Women's Prison Soon To Be Ready for Prisoners

Jessups, Md., July 12. (AP)—Maryland's first women's prison, a cellless model institution incorporating the best and latest features of penal housing and administration, is expected to be ready for occupancy late this month or early in August.

Finishing touches on the $450,000 colonial-type "cottage" group, involving considerable grading and completion of furniture now being made at the state penitentiary, have delayed the formal opening, officials explained.

The buildings have been completed for some time.

The lay-out of six—an administration building, hospital, cottage for white inmates, cottage for negro inmates, chapel, and boiler house—crowns a knoll dominating a 250-acre tract of land about a mile southeast of the house of correction.

Constructed of Brick

Built entirely of brick, reinforced steel and concrete, but completely lacking in prison appearance, the main cottages are grouped around a quadrangle lawn at one end of which is the administration building.

Instead of cells, each prisoner will have a room seven by ten feet in size, a daylight window too small to permit escape, and space for a bed, dresser and chair.

The doors will be solid rather than barred and are of metal construction with key locks.

Accomodation for sixty negro prisoners is provided in one "cottage" and for fifty white prisoners in another. In addition, a number of inmates can be housed on the top floor of the hospital building. This section will be reserved for refgractory inmates requiring closer confinement and for quarantine purposes at time of admission.

German Bombers Attack Scotland; Lose 11 Planes

Deal Savage Blows at Big Industrial Centers

TWO BRITISH ATTACK PLANES ARE MISSING

Raids Believed To Have Been Directed from Base in Norway

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 12 — Germany's bombers, methodically and tirelessly blasting Britain from the northern highlands to the southernmost reaches of the channel, struck deadly blows today at hardy, industrial Scotland.

They smashed again, as they have done day after day, at British shipping, on the east and south coasts.

The most savage blows were aimed in northeast Scotland, where at least ten persons were reported killed. This attack may have been directed from German bases in Stavanger, Norway, at which for weeks British airmen have been pounding methodically.

Tonight eleven of the raiders were reported officially to have been shot down. Two British planes were missing.

An air ministry communique thus summarized the destruction of these Nazi craft, and illustrated how far they had ranged over Britain:

Six shot down while they were attacking a convoy off the southeast coast; one sent to earth in flames on the outskirts of a Scottish port; two off the southeast coast; one shot down into the sea by coastal aircraft.

British Lose Three Planes

At the same time, however, the loss of three other British planes in a heavy assault last night on German munitions works, airdromes, blast furnaces and other objectives was acknowledged.

By these new raids in Scottish areas, a rough outline of the Nazi program seemed to emerge: a series of rotating attacks designed to hit ever so often every section of the British Isles.

The Scottish fatalities were described ominously in the phrase "as far as is known" and it was clear that the list of the dead and injured there might be much higher.

How many other casualties had occurred on the east, southeast and southern coasts was not permitted to be published.

Unofficial tabulations of the slain in raids from June 18 to this evening showed 167 deaths. Some 170 invading Nazi planes were indicated destroyed since the start of the war.

Nazi Raider Winged

The raid on northeast Scotland produced one aftermoth of some satisfaction to the British it was declared that the Nazi raider which had dropped bombs "in various parts" of a town there had been headed off by British fighter planes and shot down.

The day's melancholy visitations began in early morning with the arrival of a Nazi squadron over the southwest coast.

The Nazis dropped six bombs in the space of half a minute. One smashed a children's playground and then, as British fighter planes roared angrily aloft, the day's first aerial engagement was under way.

Other developments today included:

Sir John Anderson, the home secretary, banned aliens from employment in any defense area, in munitions industries, in gas, water, electric and transport enterprises and in welfare organizations associated with the fighting forces.

A curfew, beginning next Monday night, was ordered for the northeastern civil defense area.

Mountaineer Has Own Method for Quieting Squabble

Just Gets His Rifle and Does Some Fancy Target Practice

SUFFERN, N. Y., July 12 (AP)—The mountaineer method of quieting a squabble between man and wife without damage (theoretically) to the mediator was expounded in Ramapo justice court today by Gilbert Pitt, 76. Complainant against him was his brother, Albert, 75.

The Ramapo mountain cabins of the Pitt brothers, who trace their ancestry to Lord Pitt of England, are only thirty miles from Times Square, but in atmosphere, they're closer to 1776. Their forebears fought in the American revolution.

Said Gilbert in court: "Albert's cabin lies right below mine. He and his wife's been fightin' for a month. A feller couldn't set quiet on his stoop. I knew better than to butt in, so I took my rifle every day and picked off a few shingles from their roof, and pinked a few tin cans in the yard. I thought it would take their minds off fightin'.

Albert testified: "I didn't mind none at first, but when I was whittlin' on my steps and the bullets got to buzzin' louder than bees, I decided it was time to get some law in here."

Remanded to Rockland country jail for illegal possession of a revolver, Gilbert was quickly bailed out by another mountaineer, a wealthy New Yorker who has a camp on the nearest highway—3½ miles from the Pitt cabins.

the various units to nearby posts for training under canvas.

While the plan announced by Early contemplating calling only four divisions of the guard to active duty, General Marshall told the Senate Committee that he personaly favored an immediate order for all the nation's 230,000 citizen-soldiers to don their uniforms.

In addition to the decision on national guard training, major developments bearing on the defense program were:

Packard To Make Engines

The defense commission secured approval of directors of the Packard Motor Company for an arrangement whereby the company will manufacture 9,000 rolls royce airplane engines—3,000 for the United States and 6,000 for Great Britain.

Authoritative sources reported that arangements had been made for construction of a $30,000,000 smokeless powder plant at Louisville, Ky., with defense funds. It would be operated by the DuPont Power Company.

The navy awarded twenty-three contracts totaling $136,743,900, largely to strengthen shore defenses. Improved aviation facilities at Island outposts and coast bases figured in most contracts.

It was disclosed that the army's mechanization plans include a force of 6,000 tanks, double the number now in service or on order.

Several hundred will be huge monsters comparable to the seventy-ton land battleships used by Germany.

Marshall Dicusses Drafts

Marshall discused the question of mobilizing the national guard in the course of endorsing compulsory military training. Enactmnt of a conscription law, he told the Senate committee, is "immediately necessary" to bring regular army and national guard units to full strength.

Rear Admiral C. W. Nimitz, speaking for the navy department, also endorsed compulsory training.

The committee has before it the Burke-Wadsworth training bill providing for registration and selective training of men between the ages of eighteen and sixty-five. While approving its principles, Marshall recommends several changes.

Chief among these were proposals that men in training get regular army pay—a minimum of $21 a month instead of $5 as provided in the bill—and that the training period be at least one year, rather than eight months. Col. H. L. Twaddle, army training expert who also was a witness, recommended eighteen months training.

Senate Vote Soon

Senator Sheppard (D-Tex), committee chairman, said it was hoped to incorporate the recommended changes and have a bill ready for action when the Senate meets again July 22 after the recess for the Democrtic convention. No further hearings are planned.

Capitol Hill and war department legal experts were of the opinion that special Congressional authority would be necessary before the National Guard could be mobilized. Mr. Roosevelt asked for this authority recently, but no action has been taken.

Marshall told the committee that there were "definite limits" to expansion of the army by voluntary enlistments. He went on to recount that Congress had supplied funds for an army of 375,000 and that only 249,000 were now enlisted.

A training law, he said, would be a "democratic measure" for bringing the regular army to the contemplated strength, and for increasing the national guard to 400,000 men.

Training "Simple Problem"

As for the training itself, Marshall said that was a "simple" problem.

The first step, he said, should be mobilization of the national guard four weeks ahead of the start of training. The new men then would be distributed among the guard and regular army units for training in their ranks.

From Twaddle, the committee heard an estimate that 400,000 conscripts could be brought into training by Oct. 1 if Congress enacted the bill without delay.

He figured on another 400,000 by next April and 600,000 additional by October of next year.

The program would cost, Twaddle said, about $1,000,000,000 the first year and about $750,000,000 each succeeding year.

Norway President Says His People Resist Invaders

Hambro in New York; Fears Famine during Coming Winter

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP)—Carl J. Hambro, a refugee after fifteen years as president of the Norwegian Parliament, said today the Norwegian people were resisting stubbornly Nazi efforts to placate them, and that the invaders were "growing impatient from the lack of results."

Hambro, who fled with King Haakon to London after the collapse of Allied resistance in northern Norway, arrived in New York yesterday on an official mission for his government.

As an instance of Norwegian passive resistance, he said that, on May 17, the nation's Constitution Day, the German military ordered all Norwegians to celebrate with usual ceremony.

However, the potent trade unions and Allied organizations advised the people to remain quietly in their homes and to place the Norwegian flag at half mast. Hambro continued, and the gesture of mourning was carried out despite German protests.

Hambro said he feared famine would hit Norway next winter because of scarcity of food and fuel. There are large reserves of fish, he explained, but Germany removed large stores of grain and potatoes, which Norway must import.

The occupation of Norway was "in no sense an inside job," he added, "after a surprise attack, it is natural that people, not in possession of the facts, would talk of treachery. But, I don't think that in a single case which was examined, was a charge of treachery substantiated."

Burma Road Issue Settled at Last

Japan and Great Britain Reach an Agreement at Tokyo

TOKYO, July 13 (Saturday) (AP)—Great Britain has acceded to Japan's demand to prohibit the shipment of war materials to China over the Burma road and a compromise on the Burma issue which has caused tension between the British and Japanese is expected soon, it was reported early today in reliable circles.

These sources said the British, however, had declined to prohibit the shipment of all "food materials" over the route. Japan had demanded that the road be closed.

Among the war materials it was said would be barred from the road under the reported agreement were munitions and gasoline.

The compromise on the troublesome question is expected to be reached "without further difficulties," it was said.

The reported agreement came after a two-hour conference yesterday between the British ambassador, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, and Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita.

"Britain's first reply to the Japanese demands failed to satisfy the Japanese and they asked the British government to reconsider. The ambassador had new instructions when he went to the conference yesterday.

Newspapers here reported without confirmation that the Japanese consulate staff at Rangoon, Burma, would have to be increased in order to insure the cessation of war shipments.

Rep. Tinkham Says FDR and Hull Tell Deliberate Lies

Bay State Congressman Criticizes Foreign Policies

WASHINGTON, July 12, (AP) — Rep. Tinkham (R.-Mass.), said in a statement today that President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull have been guilty of "deliberate falsehoods" in describing their foreign policy.

He referred to their disclaimers of any intention to become involved in the territorial or political affairs of Europe and Asia.

The administration, Tinkham said, had taken "provocative and hostile action in the Ethiopian war by attempting, illegally, to embargo the shipment of oil to Italy" and had "subsidized China in the Sino-Japanese war x x x in accordance with Secretary Hull's declared policy of 'parallel action' with Great Britain."

In midsummer of 1938, he added, "President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull sent American officials to Czechoslovakia to support Great Britain in the political crisis there which eventuated in the Munich settlement."

Last November, the Congress continued, "President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull authorized a large RFC loan to Finland in its conflict with Russia and sanctioned shipment to Finland of United States airplanes built for our government."

Tinkham declared that the administration officials have "openly and aggressively supported Great Britain every step of the way."

were replaced by a new cabinet which with the aged marshal, will rule France.

Laval Vice President

The marshal's first appointment was that of Pierre Laval as vice president, Laval, a former premier, long has advocated closer ties with Germany and Italy.

Petain named General Maxime Weygand, Generalissimo of the Allied armies before France capitulated, as minister of defense, and Adrien Marquet, as minister of the interior, a post he held in the last cabinet of republican France. These three—Laval, General Weygand and Marquet, were said to be the key men of the new regime with Petain.

The marshal-chief of state, 84 years old, officially designated Laval, fifty-seven years old, as his eventual successor.

The British decided last night to postpone the scheduled removal of thousands of their children to the dominions and the United States because, the ministry of information announced, not enough warships were available to convoy the refugee ships. British children already have arrived in Canada and the United States and nearly 2,000 others reached Halifax yesterday.

Fighting in Africa

Fighting between British and Italian troops in Africa continued. British soldiers besieged by the Italians at Moyale, on the Kenya-Ethiopian frontier, repaired their damages and held off the enemy. Other Britons, besieging Italian troops in the forts of Capuzzo and Maddelana on the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, cut off a pipe line supplying the forts with water.

Indications of trouble for the Italians in Ethiopia were seen in the British recognition of Haile Selassie once again as emperor of the land wrested from him by the Italians in 1935-36. Ethiopian natives already are reported in arms against their Italian conquerors.

A calm declaration that Turkey is in no danger was made to the Turkish national assembly by Premier Refik Saydam at Ankara. He warned, however, that any menace which might appear would find the Turks rising "as one man."

Pinball Machines Easily Beaten By the Use of Electric Magnet

TOLEDO, O., July 12, (AP)—William T. McShane insisted that police return the magnetic gadget he uses to make machines do his bidding, but police insisted they wouldn't. There, apparently, the matter rested today.

It reached police hands when McShane, 38, and his wife, Betty, 26, were ejected from the restaurant where McShane was charming the little steel ball—to his consistent profit. "Five ugly fellows" rushed them out, they complained.

McShane concealed an electromagnet in his hand, with a pair of wires running up his coat sleeve and to a battery in his hip pocket. Thus a "game of chance" was turned into a sure thing, thank you.

He became irked when police confiscated the money-making gadget. They threatened his arrest as a suspicious person and McShane countered with a threat to swear out warrants against every Toledo store exchanging money for "amusement slugs" put out by pin-ball machines. He declared a city ordinance forbade this practice, but police were unimpressed.

McShane said he built the "sure-fire" device a year ago in Cokato, Minn. It uses a positive current magnet, he added, because pinball machines are equipped with a negative current magnet and his is more powerful than the rival. Thus he is able to control the steel ball by passing his hand over the top of the machine.

Shaking his head with mock distaste and laughing, the president said he ought to be insulted by the inquiry, since it seemed to be a slur on his veracity, inasmuch as he had said only a moment before that he was not going to Chicago.

He got a hearty laugh when another newsman remarked that members of the "Dunce Cap Club," made up of individuals who had asked third term questions and been told to stand in the corner wearing dunce caps, would meet in Chicago, dissolve the organization and turn in their caps.

He was asked whether club members might hope that the chief executive, as founder of the club, would send some form of communication to their Chicago meeting.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would have to study the membership list first, adding that good progress had been made in reducing the number of dunce cap wearers, although the corner still wasn't empty.

20 Prisons Studied

Before plans for the institution were agreed upon, the architect, Henry G. Perring of Baltimore, made a personal study of more than twenty women's prisons. In addition, data was gathered by State Prison Superintendent Harold E. Donnell from state prison officials in every section of the country.

Frank C. Wachter, engineer for the Perring farm, had general supervision of the project.

Features of the prison include cottage assembly rooms forty feet wide and twenty feet deep, with high vaulted ceilings treated with tile-effect insulation and sound-deadening composition material. Here the inmates may meet when not at work or in classrooms.

A huge fireplace, flanked by windows, dominates one wall in each assembly room.

Miss Helen Camp De Corse, recently named superintendent of the prison, reported at the house of correction May 15 and has been making daily visits there since, completing personnel of the institution.

Warden L. Leroy Wright of the house of correction said today between seventy-five and eighty women would be moved from his institution to the new buildings when they are opened.

Laval Named by Petain as His Principal Aide

Weygand and Marquet To Keep Posts in the French Cabinet

By JOHN LLOYD

VICHY, France, July 12, (AP)—By telephone to Bern)—Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, using the kingly "we," tonight named the cabinet to help him rule authoritarian France and chose Pierre Laval, canny rightist and long-time apostle of friendship with dictators, as his right-hand man and ultimate successor.

Twelve full ministers—including Petain — were appointed, plus three defense secretaries of state. The new cabinet meets tomorrow.

Laval, as vice-premier, his post in the last "defeat cabinet," heads the list.

Gen. Maxine Weygand, former Allied generalissimo, and Adrien Marquet keep their posts of national defense and minister of the interior respectively.

These three will be the key advisors of the aged "hero of Verdun," it is expected.

By a decree in the official journal, the 84-year old Petain also named Laval his eventual successor.

In the event Laval is not available for the post, his successor will be chosen by a majority of votes in ministerial council.

The Swarthy, White-necktied Laval is the son of a butcher. He studied and won a scholarship while driving his father's meat wagon.

Gen. Louis Colson, chief of staff of the army in Republican France, is secretary of state for war; Admiral Jean Darlan, secretary of state for the navy, and Gen. Bertrand Pujo, secretary of state in charge of aviation.

The latter three were not given the full ministries which they held in the old Petain cabinet, and will be answerable now to General Weygand.

The decree which will appear tomorrow in the official journal referring to Laval's right of succession as chief of state, says:

"If for any cause whatsoever before the nation ratifies the new constitution we (Petain) are impeded from exercising the sanctions of chief of state, Pierre Laval, vice-president of the council of ministers, will assume them in full right.

"In case Laval is impeded for any reason whatsoever from assuming these functions, he in turn will be replaced by persons designated by a majority of seven votes of the council of ministers.

"Until this person's investiture his functions would be exercised by the council of ministers."

The old chief's use of the plural pronoun "we" was manifested in the first communique he signed after taking President Albert LeBrun's place as head of the French nation.

Three decrees issued today, one defining his successive powers in the new governmental system, all begin "we, Philippe Petain, marshal of France, chief of the French state."

A communique published tonight through Havas, the French news service, stated that Petain would not transfer the seat of his government to the Paris region unless he got "all necessary guarantees assuring its complete independence."

The marshal had made all plans to set up his headquarters in the palace of kings in German-occupied Versailles, with some ministries also operating in Paris itself.

William Lawson Refused Parole

Former Baltimore Police Head Turned Down by Moser

ANNAPOLIS, MD., July 12, (AP) — William P. Lawson, former Baltimore police commissioner and ex-Republican state chairman, lost another bid today for parole from a three-year prison term for conspiracy.

Lawson, who entered the house of correction Jan. 13, 1939, was turned down for the second time by Parole Commissioner Herman M. Moser. Moser said heavy losses to stockholders resulting from Lawson's mismanagement of their funds was a factor in the decision.

Since the one-time police commissioner's latest application on June 26, Moser explained, he had learned that stockholders of the Consolidated Distillers Corporation "stand to lose $200,000 as a result of this subject's mismanagement of the corporation's affairs."

Lawson was a broker for several years, Moser continued, and had engaged in formation of "several corporations for trading in whisky."

"His manipulation and mismanagement of these corporations resulted in the defrauding of numerous stockholders," the commissioner asserted, "as a consequence of which he was found guilty by a jury and was sentenced to a term of three years.

"I am still of the opinion that the release of this subject on parole could not be justified as an effort to affect his readjustment of the community and it would serve no purpose other than to accelerate the time of his release from imprisonment."

Counting time off for prison work and good behavior, Lawson would be released next February.

Guild Re-elect Two Officers Accused of Being Inefficient

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 12 (AP) — With New York city's big vote block the deciding margin, the American Newspaper Guild today reelected two paid officers who had been accused of inefficiency and maladministration and chose 29-year-old Donal Sullivan of Boston as president.

The officers under fire from an anti-administration faction were Executive Vice-President Milton Kaufman and Secretary-Treasurer Victor Pasche. Kaufman beat Max Ways of Philadelphia and Pasche defeated I. L. Kenen of Cleveland. Both votes were 85 1-5 to 45 4-5, with New York casting its twenty-three ballots for the winning candidates.

Sullivan, a member of the Boston Globe's editorial staff since 1935, was elected over Kenneth Crawford, Washington newspaperman and incumbent president aligned with the group opposing Kaufman and Pasche.

The vote was 78 2-3 and 66 1-3 with the New York delegates giving Sullivan all but 1 8-15 of their twenty-three votes.

The Guild president is unpaid, and Kaufman and Pasche, as the two salaried officials, direct most of the union's activities.

The convention was concluded this afternoon.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Twenty-five days from its inception the battle of Britain (or rather, of England, for that is what it is) has attained such an intensity on two fronts that a new crisis in the war appears imminent.

The Germans are pressing the fight in the air and underseas. A nod from Adolf Hitler may soon disclose whether a third front is to flame into action in the form of a Nazi invasion or whether he will open a drive on a fourth front—a psychological assault on English nerves, on English will to prolong the battle.

Where Is Hitler?

Hitler's own whereabouts could furnish a clue to the next phase of the tragic drama. If he takes the field in conquered France it would sharpen expectation of invasion in England. It would again stress to all Germans Hitler's implied if not stated pledge at the outset of the war to ask his armies to take no risks he did not share.

If a fourth front German attack is in contemplation in the form of a dramatic last-moment peace gesture backed by the pistol-point threat of invasion, it must come from Hitler direct. No other German voice could give it authority in English ears sufficient to create political dissension in Britain paralleling that which led, in France, to complete capitulation.

There have been recent intimations that some such Hitler move as a final prelude to "all-out" attack on England was anticipated in some British circles. Every recent word spoken for British ears by Prime Minister Churchill and his aides has had in it the clear purpose of counteracting any spread of defeatism in the nation's hour of greatest peril.

Chamberlain Believed Active

The continuing campaign in minority British political circles to drive Neville Chamberain, former prime minister and symbol of the former "appeasement" sentiment, out of the Churchill war cabinet indicates a fear that defeatism still could precipitate an internal political crisis to snarl defense plans.

The mounting toll of civilian casualties from German day-and-night bombing raids cannot be concealed by censorship from the British public, yet Berlin contends she has thus struck only at military objectives and has made no ruthless effort to shatter English civilian courage.

It is certain that daylight bombing is a dangerous business, even when bombers from nearby bases in France are protected by fighter escorts. Britain's air force is outnumbered; but not yet outfought. Germany has far from attained that mastery of the air that would make invasion possible without German losses of staggering proportions. That is a factor even Hitler must weigh.

German Bombers Attack Scotland; Lose 11 Planes

TWO BRITISH ATTACK PLANES ARE MISSING

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 12 — Germany's bombers, methodically and tirelessly blasting Britain from the northern highlands to the southernmost reaches of the channel, struck deadly blows today at hardy, industrial Scotland.

They smashed again, as they have done day after day, at British shipping, on the east and south coasts.

The most savage blows were aimed in northeast Scotland, where at least ten persons were reported killed. This attack may have been directed from German bases in Stavanger, Norway, at which for weeks British airmen have been pounding methodically.

Tonight eleven of the raiders were reported officially to have been shot down. Two British planes were missing.

An air ministry communique thus summarized the destruction of these Nazi craft, and illustrated how far they had ranged over Britain:

Six shot down while they were attacking a convoy off the southeast coast; one sent to earth in flames on the outskirts of a Scottish port; two off the southeast coast; one shot down into the sea by coastal aircraft.

British Lose Three Planes

At the same time, however, the loss of three other British planes in a heavy assault last night on German munitions works, airdromes, blast furnaces and other objectives was acknowledged.

By these new raids in Scottish areas, a rough outline of the Nazi program seemed to emerge: a series of rotating attacks designed to hit ever so often every section of the British Isles.

The Scottish fatalities were described ominously in the phrase "as far as is known" and it was clear that the list of the dead and injured there might be much higher.

How many other casualties had occurred on the east, southeast and southern coasts was not permitted to be published.

Unofficial tabulations of the slain in raids from June 18 to this evening showed 167 deaths. Some 170 invading Nazi planes were indicated destroyed since the start of the war.

Nazi Raider Winged

The raid on northeast Scotland produced one aftermoth of some satisfaction to the British it was declared that the Nazi raider which had dropped bombs "in various parts" of a town there had been headed off by British fighter planes and shot down.

The day's melancholy visitations began in early morning with the arrival of a Nazi squadron over the southwest coast.

The Nazis dropped six bombs in the space of half a minute. One smashed a children's playground and then, as British fighter planes roared angrily aloft, the day's first aerial engagement was under way.

Other developments today included:

Sir John Anderson, the home secretary, banned aliens from employment in any defense area, in munitions industries, in gas, water, electric and transport enterprises and in welfare organizations associated with the fighting forces.

A curfew, beginning next Monday night, was ordered for the northeastern civil defense area.

Mountaineer Has Own Method for Quieting Squabble

Just Gets His Rifle and Does Some Fancy Target Practice

SUFFERN, N. Y., July 12 (AP)—The mountaineer method of quieting a squabble between man and wife without damage (theoretically) to the mediator was expounded in Ramapo justice court today by Gilbert Pitt, 76. Complainant against him was his brother, Albert, 75.

The Ramapo mountain cabins of the Pitt brothers, who trace their ancestry to Lord Pitt of England, are only thirty miles from Times Square, but in atmosphere, they're closer to 1776. Their forebears fought in the American revolution.

Said Gilbert in court: "Albert's cabin lies right below mine. He and his wife's been fightin' for a month. A feller couldn't set quiet on his stoop. I knew better than to butt in, so, I took my rifle every day and picked off a few shingles from their roof, and pinked a few tin cans in the yard. I thought it would take their minds off fightin'.

Albert testified: "I didn't mind none at first, but when I was whittlin' on my steps and the bullets got to buzzin' louder than bees, I decided it was time to get some law in here."

Remanded to Rockland country jail for illegal possession of a revolver, Gilbert was quickly bailed out by another mountaineer, a wealthy New Yorker who has a camp on the nearest highway—3½ miles from the Pitt cabins.

Handy Man Gets 10-Day Job in Jail

PADUCAH, KY., July 12, (AP) — George Gore, 35, talked too much in police court.

"What can you do?" Judge Rex Cornelison asked when the man was brought before him on a loitering charge.

"Anything," Gore replied.

"Ten days—we can use you," said the judge.

the various units to nearby posts for training under canvas.

While the plan announced by Early contemplating calling only four divisions of the guard to active duty, General Marshall told the Senate Committee that he personaly favored an immediate order for all the nation's 230,000 citizen-soldiers to don their uniforms.

In addition to the decision on national guard training, major developments bearing on the defense program were:

Packard To Make Engines

The defense commission secured approval of directors of the Packard Motor Company for an arrangement whereby the company will manufacture 9,000 rolls royce airplane engines—3,000 for the United States and 6,000 for Great Britain.

Authoritative sources reported that arangements had been made for construction of a $30,000,000 smokeless powder plant at Louisville, Ky., with defense funds. It would be operated by the DuPont Power Company.

The navy awarded twenty-three contracts totaling $136,743,900, largely to strengthen shore defenses. Improved aviation facilities at Island outposts and coast bases figured in most contracts.

It was disclosed that the army's mechanization plans include a force of 6,000 tanks, double the number now in service or on order.

Several hundred will be huge monsters comparable to the seventy-ton land battleships used by Germany.

Marshall Dicusses Drafts

Marshall discused the question of mobilizing the national guard in the course of endorsing compulsory military training. Enactmnt of a conscription law, he told the Senate committee, is "immediately necessary" to bring regular army and national guard units to full strength.

Rear Admiral C. W. Nimitz, speaking for the navy department, also endorsed compulsory training.

The committee has before it the Burke-Wadsworth training bill providing for registration and selective training of men between the ages of eighteen and sixty-five. While approving its principles, Marshall recommends several changes.

Chief among these were proposals that men in training get regular army pay—a minimum of $21 a month instead of $5 as provided in the bill—and that the training period be at least one year, rather than eight months. Col. H. L. Twaddle, army training expert who also was a witness, recommended eighteen months training.

Senate Vote Soon

Senator Sheppard (D-Tex), committee chairman, said it was hoped to incorporate the recommended changes and have a bill ready for action when the Senate meets again July 22 after the recess for the Democrtic convention. No further hearings are planned.

Capitol Hill and war department legal experts were of the opinion that special Congressional authority would be necessary before the National Guard could be mobilized. Mr. Roosevelt asked for this authority recently, but no action has been taken.

Marshall told the committee that there were "definite limits" to expansion of the army by voluntary enlistments. He went on to recount that Congress had supplied funds for an army of 375,000 and that only 249,000 were now enlisted.

A training law, he said, would be a "democratic measure" for bringing the regular army to the contemplated strength, and for increasing the national guard to 400,000 men.

Training "Simple Problem"

As for the training itself, Marshall said that was a "simple" problem.

The first step, he said, should be mobilization of the national guard four weeks ahead of the start of training. The new men then would be distributed among the guard and regular army units for training in their ranks.

From Twaddle, the committee heard an estimate that 400,000 conscripts could be brought into training by Oct. 1 if Congress enacted the bill without delay.

He figured on another 400,000 by next April and 600,000 additional by October of next year.

The program would cost, Twaddle said, about $1,000,000,000 the first year and about $750,000,000 each succeeding year.

Norway President Says His People Resist Invaders

Hambro in New York; Fears Famine during Coming Winter

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP)—Carl J. Hambro, a refugee after fifteen years as president of the Norwegian Parliament, said today the Norwegian people were resisting stubbornly Nazi efforts to placate them, and that the invaders were "growing impatient from the lack of results."

Hambro, who fled with King Haakon to London after the collapse of Allied resistance in northern Norway, arrived in New York yesterday on an official mission for his government.

As an instance of Norwegian passive resistance, he said that, on May 17, the nation's Constitution Day, the German military ordered all Norwegians to celebrate with usual ceremony.

However, the potent trade unions and Allied organizations advised the people to remain quietly in their homes and to place the Norwegian flag at half mast, Hambro continued, and the gesture of mourning was carried out despite German protests.

Hambro said he feared famine would hit Norway next winter because of scarcity of food and fuel. There are large reserves of fish, he explained, but Germany removed large stores of grain and potatoes, which Norway must import.

The occupation of Norway was "in no sense an inside job," he added, "after a surprise attack, it is natural that people, not in possession of the facts, would talk of treachery. But, I don't think that in a single case which was examined, was a charge of treachery substantiated."

Burma Road Issue Settled at Last

Japan and Great Britain Reach an Agreement at Tokyo

TOKYO, July 13 (Saturday) (AP)—Great Britain has acceded to Japan's demand to prohibit the shipment of war materials to China over the Burma road and a compromise on the Burma issue which has caused tension between the British and Japanese is expected soon, it was reported early today in reliable circles.

These sources said the British, however, had declined to prohibit the shipment of all "food materials" over the route. Japan had demanded that the road be closed.

Among the war materials it was said would be barred from the road under the reported agreement were munitions and gasoline.

The compromise on the troublesome question is expected to be reached "without further difficulties," it was said.

The reported agreement came after a two-hour conference yesterday between the British ambassador, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, and Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita.

"Britain's first reply to the Japanese demands failed to satisfy the Japanese and they asked the British government to reconsider. The ambassador had new instructions when he went to the conference yesterday.

Newspapers here reported without confirmation that the Japanese consulate staff at Rangoon, Burma, would have to be increased in order to insure the cessation of war shipments.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer Dies in Binghamton

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 12 (AP) — Willis Sharpe Kilmer, 71, publisher of the Binghampton Sun and owner of three of the greatest horses on the American turf — Exterminator, Sun Briar and Sun Beau — died tonight.

A well-known manufacturer of medicinal supplies in addition to his publishing, horse racing and thoroughbred breeding interests, Kilmer succumbed to pneumonia at his summer home at nearby Sky Lake after being in ill health for the past year.

Rep. Tinkham Says FDR and Hull Tell Deliberate Lies

Bay State Congressman Criticizes Foreign Policies

WASHINGTON, July 12, (AP) — Rep. Tinkham (R.-Mass.), said in a statement today that President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull have been guilty of "deliberate falsehoods" in describing their foreign policy.

He referred to their disclaimers of any intention to become involved in the territorial or political affairs of Europe and Asia.

The administration, Tinkham said, had taken "provocative and hostile action in the Ethiopian war by attempting, illegally, to embargo the shipment of oil to Italy" and had "subsidized China in the Sino-Japanese war x x x in accordance with Secretary Hull's declared policy of 'parallel action' with Great Britain."

In midsummer of 1938, he added, "President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull sent American officials to Czechoslovakia to support Great Britain in the political crisis there which eventuated in the Munich settlement."

Last November, the Congress continued, "President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull authorized a large RFC loan to Finland in its conflict with Russia and sanctioned shipment to Finland of United States airplanes built for our government."

Tinkham declared that the administration officials have "openly and aggressively supported Great Britain every step of the way."

were replaced by a new cabinet which with the aged marshal, will rule France.

Laval Vice President

The marshal's first appointment was that of Pierre Laval as vice president, Laval, a former premier, long has advocated closer ties with Germany and Italy.

Petain named General Maxime Weygand, Generalissimo of the Allied armies before France capitulated, as minister of defense, and Adrien Marquet, as minister of the interior, a post he held in the last cabinet of republican France. These three—Laval, General Weygand and Marquet, were said to be the key men of the new regime with Petain.

The marshal-chief of state, 84 years old, officially designated Laval, fifty-seven years old, as his eventual successor.

The British decided last night to postpone the scheduled removal of thousands of their children to the dominions and the United States because, the ministry of information announced, not enough warships were available to convoy the refugee ships. British children already have arrived in Canada and the United States and nearly 2,000 others reached Halifax yesterday.

Fighting in Africa

Fighting between British and Italian troops in Africa continued. British soldiers besieged by the Italians at Moyale, on the Kenya-Ethiopian frontier, repaired their damages and held off the enemy. Other Britons, besieging Italian troops in the forts of Capuzzo and Maddelana on the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, cut off a pipe line supplying the forts with water.

Indications of trouble for the Italians in Ethiopia were seen in the British recognition of Haile Selassie once again as emperor of the land wrested from him by the Italians in 1935-36. Ethiopian natives already are reported in arms against their Italian conquerors.

A calm declaration that Turkey is in no danger was made to the Turkish national assembly by Premier Refik Saydam at Ankara. He warned, however, that any menace which might appear would find the Turks rising "as one man."

Pinball Machines Easily Beaten By the Use of Electric Magnet

TOLEDO, O., July 12, (AP)—William T. McShane insisted that police return the magnetic gadget he uses to make machines do his bidding, but police insisted they wouldn't. There, apparently, the matter rested today.

It reached police hands when McShane, 38, and his wife, Betty, 26, were ejected from the restaurant where McShane was charming the little steel ball—to his consistent profit. "Five ugly fellows" rushed them out, they complained.

McShane concealed an electromagnet in his hand, with a pair of wires running up his coat sleeve and to a battery in his hip pocket. Thus a "game of chance" was turned into a sure thing, thank you.

He became irked when police confiscated the money-making gadget. They threatened his arrest as a suspicious person and McShane countered with a threat to swear out warrants against every Toledo store exchanging money for "amusement slugs" put out by pin-ball machines. He declared a city ordinance forbade this practice, but police were unimpressed.

McShane said he built the "sure-fire" device a year ago in Cokato, Minn. It uses a positive current magnet, he added, because pinball machines are equipped with a negative current magnet and his is more powerful than the rival. Thus he is able to control the steel ball by passing his hand over the top of the machine.

The answer was an unqulified negative.

Shaking his head with mock distaste and laughing, the president said he ought to be insulted by the inquiry, since it seemed to be a slur on his veracity, inasmuch as he had said only a moment before that he was not going to Chicago.

He got a hearty laugh when another newsman remarked that members of the "Dunce Cap Club," made up of individuals who had asked third term questions and been told to stand in the corner wearing dunce caps, would meet in Chicago, dissolve the organization and turn in their caps.

He was asked whether club members might hope that the chief executive, as founder of the club, would send some form of communication to their Chicago meeting.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would have to study the membership list first, adding that good progress had been made in reducing the number of dunce cap wearers, although the corner still wasn't empty.

20 Prisons Studied

Before plans for the institution were agreed upon, the architect, Henry G. Perring of Baltimore, made a personal study of more than twenty women's prisons. In addition, data was gathered by State Prison Superintendent Harold E. Donnell from state prison officials in every section of the country.

Frank C. Wachter, engineer for the Perring farm, had general supervision of the project.

Features of the prison include cottage assembly rooms forty feet wide and twenty feet deep, with high vaulted ceilings treated with tile-effect insulation and sound-deadening composition material. Here the inmates may meet when not at work or in classrooms.

A huge fireplace, flanked by windows, dominates one wall in each assembly room.

Miss Helen Camp De Corse, recently named superintendent of the prison, reported at the house of correction May 15 and has been making daily visits there since, completing personnel of the institution.

Warden L. Leroy Wright of the house of correction said today between seventy-five and eighty women would be moved from his institution to the new buildings when they are opened.

William Lawson Refused Parole

Former Baltimore Police Head Turned Down by Moser

ANNAPOLIS, MD., July 12, (AP) — William P. Lawson, former Baltimore police commissioner and ex-Republican state chairman, lost another bid today for parole from a three-year prison term for conspiracy.

Lawson, who entered the house of correction Jan. 13, 1939, was turned down for the second time by Parole Commissioner Herman M. Moser. Moser said heavy losses to stockholders resulting from Lawson's mismanagement of their funds was a factor in the decision.

Since the one-time police commissioner's latest application on June 26, Moser explained, he had learned that stockholders of the Consolidated Distillers Corporation "stand to lose $200,000 as a result of this subject's mismanagement of the corporation's affairs."

Lawson was a broker for several years, Moser continued, and had engaged in formation of "several corporations for trading in whisky."

"His manipulation and mismanagement of these corporations resulted in the defrauding of numerous stockholders," the commissioner asserted, "as a consequence of which he was found guilty by a jury and was sentenced to a term of three years.

"I am still of the opinion that the release of this subject on parole could not be justified as an effort to affect his readjustment of the community and it would serve no purpose other than to accelerate the time of his release from imprisonment."

Counting time off for prison work and good behavior, Lawson would be released next February.

By JOHN LLOYD

VICHY, France, July 12, (AP)—By telephone to Bern)—Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, using the kingly "we," tonight named the cabinet to help him rule authoritarian France and chose Pierre Laval, canny rightist and long-time apostle of friendship with dictators, as his right-hand man and ultimate successor.

Twelve full ministers—including Petain — were appointed, plus three defense secretaries of state. The new cabinet meets tomorrow.

Laval, as vice-premier, his post in the last "defeat cabinet," heads the list.

Gen. Maxine Weygand, former Allied generalissimo, and Adrien Marquet keep their posts of national defense and minister of the interior respectively.

These three will be the key advisors of the aged "hero of Verdun," it is expected.

By a decree in the official journal the 84-year old Petain also named Laval his eventual successor.

In the event Laval is not available for the post, his successor will be chosen by a majority of votes in ministerial council.

The Swarthy, White-necktied Laval is the son of a butcher. He studied and won a scholarship while driving his father's meat wagon.

Gen. Louis Colson, chief of staff of the army in Republican France, is secretary of state for war; Admiral Jean Darlan, secretary of state for the navy, and Gen. Bertrand Pujo, secretary of state in charge of aviation.

The latter three were not given the full ministries which they held in the old Petain cabinet, and will be answerable now to General Weygand.

The decree which will appear tomorrow in the official journal referring to Laval's right of succession as chief of state, says:

"If for any cause whatsoever before the nation ratifies the new constitution we (Petain) are impeded from exercising the sanctions of chief of state, Pierre Laval, vice-president of the council of ministers, will assume them in full right.

"In case Laval is impeded for any reason whatsoever from assuming these functions, he in turn will be replaced by persons designated by a majority of seven votes of the council of ministers.

"Until this person's investiture his functions would be exercised by the council of ministers."

The old chief's use of the plural pronoun "we" was manifested in the first communique he signed after taking President Albert LeBrun's place as head of the French nation.

Three decrees issued today, one defining his successive powers in the new governmental system, all begin "we, Philippe Petain, marshal of France, chief of the French state."

A communique published tonight through Havas, the French news service, stated that Petain would not transfer the seat of his government to the Paris region unless he got "all necessary guarantees assuring its complete independence."

The marshal had made all plans to set up his headquarters in the palace of kings in German-occupied Versailles, with some ministries also operating in Paris itself.

Guild Re-elect Two Officers Accused of Being Inefficient

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 12 (AP) — With New York city's big vote block the deciding margin, the American Newspaper Guild today reelected two paid officers who had been accused of inefficiency and maladministration and chose 29-year-old Donal Sullivan of Boston as president.

The officers under fire from an anti-administration faction were Executive Vice-President Milton Kaufman and Secretary-Treasurer Victor Pasche. Kaufman beat Max Ways of Philadelphia and Pasche defeated I. L. Kenen of Cleveland. Both votes were 85 1-5 to 45 4-5, with New York casting its twenty-three ballots for the winning candidates.

Sullivan, a member of the Boston Globe's editorial staff since 1935, was elected over Kenneth Crawford, Washington newspaperman and incumbent president aligned with the group opposing Kaufman and Pasche.

The vote was 78 2-3 and 66 1-3 with the New York delegates giving Sullivan all but 1 8-15 of their twenty-three votes.

The Guild president is unpaid, and Kaufman and Pasche, as the two salaried officials, direct most of the union's activities.

Elephant Executed For Attacking Keeper

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Twenty-five days from its inception the battle of Britain (or rather, of England, for that is what it is) has attained such an intensity on two fronts that a new crisis in the war appears imminent.

The Germans are pressing the fight in the air and underseas. A nod from Adolf Hitler may soon disclose whether a third front is to flame into action in the form of a Nazi invasion or whether he will open a drive on a fourth front—a psychological assault on English nerves, on English will to prolong the battle.

Where Is Hitler?

Hitler's own whereabouts could furnish a clue to the next phase of the tragic drama. If he takes the field in conquered France it would sharpen expectation of invasion in England. It would again stress to all Germans Hitler's implied if not stated pledge at the outset of the war to ask his armies to take no risks he did not share.

If a fourth front German attack is in contemplation in the form of a dramatic last-moment peace gesture backed by the pistol-point threat of invasion, it must come from Hitler direct. No other German voice could give it authority in English ears sufficient to create political dissension in Britain paralleling that which led, in France, to complete capitulation.

There have been recent intimations that some such Hitler move as a final prelude to "all-out" attack on England was anticipated in some British circles. Every recent word spoken for British ears by Prime Minister Churchill and his aides has had in it the clear purpose of counteracting any spread of defeatism in the nation's hour of greatest peril.

Chamberlain Believed Active

The continuing campaign in minority British political circles to drive Neville Chamberain, former prime minister and symbol of the former "appeasement" sentiment, out of the Churchill war cabinet indicates a fear that defeatism still could precipitate an internal political crisis to snarl defense plans.

The mounting toll of civilian casualties from German day-and-night bombing raids cannot be concealed by censorship from the British public, yet Berlin contends she has thus struck only at military objectives and has made no ruthless effort to shatter English civilian courage.

It is certain that daylight bombing is a dangerous business, even when bombers from nearby bases in France are protected by fighter escorts. Britain's air force is outnumbered; but not yet outfought. Germany has far from attained that mastery of the air that would make invasion possible without German losses of staggering proportions. That is a factor even Hitler must weigh.

THE DAILY STORY

THE BARRIER

The Thunder of the Great Guns Was So Great That Even the Dead Couldn't Sleep in Peace

BY HARRY DESMOND FARREN

Somewhere off to the left, in the fading shadows of night, a machine gun chattered like the rattle of loose teeth in a death's-head. It was a bleak, bitter near-dawn. Private Rene Avallon of Brest tugged the belt on his trench coat to shut out the cold. He shifted his weight from one foot to the other and peered cautiously out from his sentry outpost.

Here, deep in the Saar, they had won their first important victories of the new war. Here Rene knew, like the others, they would suffer the shocking brunt of a great German offensive. This rich strip of territory would be liquidated to the victor at a horrible price in human lives. No doubt of that, either.

Rene Avallon was 22. In Brest he had been well situated with an exporting firm. His future had been bright. Now Rene wondered if his future lay beyond the barrier of the Nazi line.

It had rained the first few hours of his watch and the fallen rain lay

"Are Your Afraid?"

in deep mucky puddles about the freshly turned earthworks. It was cold, and then of a sudden it was bitingly cold. Private Avallon shivered. He jerked with sudden fright when the voice at his side spoke. Then he flushed with hot embarrassment at his nervousness when he saw the old poilu next to him.

"I said it's a nasty morning, isn't it?" the poilu repeated.

"Yes," Rene replied, squinting into the semidark to see the men. "You'd better not have the lieutenant catch you up here talking with me. He would have you shot!"

"He is asleep, lucky one," the old poilu answered. "I can't sleep. I haven't slept since this thing started." The poilu looked at Rene with tired eyes. "Are you afraid, my son?"

Rene looked down the trench apprehensively. "Me? Afraid? I don't know yet. Why ask me that?"

"Because I'm afraid," the poilu replied. He pointed to the lapel of his trench coat. Rene leaned close to examine the bronze button. A veteran's button! "I know," the poilu smiled wanly, "what waits us out there." He shut his eyes and shook his head savagely. "It is terrible, my son, terrible!"

"You, a veteran of the last war?" Rene whispered.

"Yes, and I am afraid," the poilu interrupted.

Rene was afraid, too. What man isn't? Is there any man who anxiously wants to die? Yet Rene had developed a fatalistic attitude toward what waited for him out there. He would depend, like the rest, on the mass hysteria of the attack or defense; the desire for self-preservation, the glory of France, to give him strength.

"You'd better go," he advised. "If the lieutenant—"

"Hang the lieutenant!" the old poilu snapped. He stepped closer to Rene. "What are we fighting this war for?" He laughed bitterly. "To save the world for democracy again?"

"You'll have us both arrested and court-martialed," Rene whispered. He wanted no further discussion with this man. He had his own ideas about the war and about his fears and the longer he kept them subjected the better off he would be.

"Where do you come from?" the old poilu asked.

Would the fool never go? "Brest," Rene answered with a note of irritation. "Now please go."

"Brest, eh?" The old poilu's eyes lighted. "I had a dear friend who came from Brest—Armand Cote. Do you know his family?"

"Yes, yes," Rene answered impatiently. "I attended the lower school with his son.

"His son?" The old poilu was excited. "Is he here? I would like to have a talk with him."

"I don't know where he is," Rene answered curtly.

"His father fought alongside me for three year," the poilu reflected aloud. "An extraordinary soldier, my son. Decorated for valor twice. He captured three machinegun nests singlehanded. He confessed to me he was out of his mind with fear, when he did it."

"Go and leave me alone," Rene hissed, "or I'll call the officer on watch and have you arrested! I don't intend—"

"He was a powerful man, Armand Cote," the old poilu continued. "He went out on a patrol to cut wire one night. The next morning we went over and through those gaps he and the patrol had cut into the German lines. I saw Armand draped over the wire like a rag doll. He was whimpering, like an animal, for a drink. I couldn't stop. I never saw Armand again."

"Get out of here!" Rene screamed at the old poilu. The chill grip of fear had seized his stomach. "Get out! I don't want to hear another word of it!"

The lieutenant came around the elbow of the trench that joined the outpost at a trot, fastening his belt, his eyes alight with inquiry.

"What's the matter?" he inquired sharply of Rene.

"This man," Rene said, snapping to attention. "He refused to leave me alone."

The lieutenant looked around, then stepped forward quickly and sniffed the air in the vicinity of Rene's head. Then he stepped back, his eyes snapping angrily.

"You're not drunk, so you must be mad, you fool!" the lieutenant blazed. "There's no one here!"

Rene blinked and looked around. The old poilu was gone. With him had departed that chill, penetrating and raw, like the chill from a freshly turned grave.

Private Avallon was relieved of his gun and his duty. On order of the lieutenant he was returned to the base hospital for mental examination.

After all, how was the lieutenant, or Private Avallon, to know that the army of the dead cannot sleep among the thunder of guns?

THE DAILY STORY

THE BARRIER

The Thunder of the Great Guns Was So Great That Even the Dead Couldn't Sleep in Peace

BY HARRY DESMOND FARREN

Somewhere off to the left, in the fading shadows of night, a machine gun chattered like the rattle of loose teeth in a death's-head. It was a bleak, bitter near-dawn. Private Rene Avallon of Brest tugged the belt on his trench coat to shut out the cold. He shifted his weight from one foot to the other and peered cautiously out from his sentry outpost.

Here, deep in the Saar, they had won their first important victories of the new war. Here Rene knew, like the others, they would suffer the shocking brunt of a great German offensive. This rich strip of territory would be liquidated to the victor at a horrible price in human lives. No doubt of that, either.

Rene Avallon was 22. In Brest he had been well situated with an exporting firm. His future had been bright. Now Rene wondered if his future lay beyond the barrier of the Nazi line.

It had rained the first few hours of his watch and the fallen rain lay

"Are Your Afraid?"

in deep mucky puddles about the freshly turned earthworks. It was cold, and then of a sudden it was bitingly cold. Private Avallon shivered. He jerked with sudden fright when the voice at his side spoke. Then he flushed with hot embarrassment at his nervousness when he saw the old poilu next to him.

"I said it's a nasty morning, isn't it?" the poilu repeated.

"Yes," Rene replied, squinting into the semidark to see the men. "You'd better not have the lieutenant catch you up here talking with me. He would have you shot!"

"He is asleep, lucky one," the old poilu answered. "I can't sleep. I haven't slept since this thing started." The poilu looked at Rene with tired eyes. "Are you afraid, my son?"

Rene looked down the trench apprehensively. "Me? Afraid? I don't know yet. Why ask me that?"

"Because I'm afraid," the poilu replied. He pointed to the lapel of his trench coat. Rene leaned close to examine the bronze button. A veteran's button! "I know," the poilu smiled wanly, "what waits us out there." He shut his eyes and shook his head savagely. "It is terrible, my son, terrible!"

"You, a veteran of the last war?" Rene whispered.

"Yes, and I am afraid," the poilu interrupted.

Rene was afraid, too. What man isn't? Is there any man who anxiously wants to die? Yet Rene had developed a fatalistic attitude toward what waited for him out there. He would depend, like the rest, on the mass hysteria of the attack or defense; the desire for self-preservation, the glory of France, to give him strength.

"You'd better go," he advised. "If the lieutenant—"

"Hang the lieutenant!" the old poilu snapped. He stepped closer to Rene. "What are we fighting this war for?" He laughed bitterly. "To save the world for democracy again?"

"You'll have us both arrested and court-martialed," Rene whispered. He wanted no further discussion with this man. He had his own ideas about the war and about his fears and the longer he kept them subjected the better off he would be.

"Where do you come from?" the old poilu asked.

Would the fool never go? "Brest," Rene answered with a note of irritation. "Now please go."

"Brest, eh?" The old poilu's eyes lighted. "I had a dear friend who came from Brest—Armand Cote. Do you know his family?"

"Yes, yes," Rene answered impatiently. "I attended the lower school with his son.

"His son?" The old poilu was excited. "Is he here? I would like to have a talk with him."

"I don't know where he is," Rene answered curtly.

"His father fought alongside me for three year," the poilu reflected aloud. "An extraordinary soldier, my son. Decorated for valor twice. He captured three machinegun nests singlehanded. He confessed to me he was out of his mind with fear, when he did it."

"Go and leave me alone," Rene hissed, "or I'll call the officer on watch and have you arrested! I don't intend—"

"He was a powerful man, Armand Cote," the old poilu continued. "He went out on a patrol to cut wire one night. The next morning we went over and through those gaps he and the patrol had cut into the German lines. I saw Armand draped over the wire like a rag doll. He was whimpering, like an animal, for a drink. I couldn't stop. I never saw Armand again."

"Get out of here!" Rene screamed at the old poilu. The chill grip of fear had seized his stomach. "Get out! I don't want to hear another word of it!"

The lieutenant came around the elbow of the trench that joined the outpost at a trot, fastening his belt, his eyes alight with inquiry.

"What's the matter?" he inquired sharply of Rene.

"This man," Rene said, snapping to attention. "He refused to leave me alone."

The lieutenant looked around, then stepped forward quickly and sniffed the air in the vicinity of Rene's head. Then he stepped back, his eyes snapping angrily.

"You're not drunk, so you must be mad, you fool!" the lieutenant blazed. "There's no one here!"

Rene blinked and looked around. The old poilu was gone. With him had departed that chill, penetrating and raw, like the chill from a freshly turned grave.

Private Avallon was relieved of his gun and his duty. On order of the lieutenant he was returned to the base hospital for mental examination.

After all, how was the lieutenant, or Private Avallon, to know that the army of the dead cannot sleep among the thunder of guns?

The Almshouse Problem Of Maryland

THE CHALLENGE issued to Governor O'Conor and impliedly to the state commission he has appointed to investigate possible reorganization of the county alms house system of Maryland, respecting the status of the Allegany county home seems to rest upon solid ground.

There is no denying the fact that the Allegany institution is an excellently arranged and capably managed plant, which with the additions and improvements that have been planned, can cope with all requirements that may be imposed upon it.

The home is perhaps the outstanding institution of its kind in Maryland. Doubtless there is ground for the charges that have been frequently made that Maryland almshouses for the greater part are "wretched" institutions, neglected and out of date. There are doubtless reasons, both economic and social, why the existing system should be improved. The question of duplication of the social services involved is something that must be taken under careful consideration in view of the various plans for caring for the infirm and the indigent that have come into vogue the last several years, including those included within the national Social Security act, the state pension and hospitalization systems and so on. It is economic waste for taxpayers to go on supporting a multiplication of these services if they overlap or duplicate.

Perhaps the solution of the almshouse problem of Maryland lies in the abandonment of the most of the antiquated institutions and the organizations of regional homes whereby the inmates from several surrounding counties can be accommodated. In that case the Allegany county home offers obvious possibilities as a regional institution. Properly arranged for the purpose, it could be well utilized as such for occupants of all the Western Maryland counties.

A West Virginian Gets Due Recognition

WEST VIRGINIA REPUBLICANS are rather pleased over the fact that the national committeeman for that state, Walter S. Hallanan, of Charleston, has been chosen as one of the vice chairmen of the national committee entrusted with the campaign organization. It is evidence, according to the Wheeling Intelligencer, of the high regard in which Mr. Hallanan is held by persons high in the party.

Noting that Hallanan has acted as spokesman for the group in press relationships and has played a conspicuous part in the laying of campaign plans, the Intelligencer reminds that for some time now he has occupied a place of importance not generally recognized by Republicans of his state. "He has been a valued member of the unofficial board of strategy for several years," the Intelligencer says, and "was one of the first to recognize the significance of the Willkie movement and one of the first to urge that his party rise above narrow partisan considerations in selecting a leader capable of rescuing the country from the grip of New Deal collectivism."

The Intelligencer adds that its state may well be proud of the place assumed by Mr. Hallanan and declares that the position he occupied is a recognition of merit. Republicans of this area, who know him and especially those in the border towns of Keyser, the Tri-towns, Romney and other nearby places in West Virginia, can easily approve what the Wheeling newspaper says about him. It is good to have a man of his ability, foresight and organizing capacity in such a place.

Some Cogent Reasons For Changing Horses

THERE IS every indication that the New Deal publicity fellows are going to wear to a frazzle the old axiom about changing horses in the middle of the stream. In fact, they are already at it.

But W. L. Crum, professor of economics at Harvard university, points out that there are very good reasons why the country may well change horses and that, moreover, we are not yet in the middle of the stream.

"Do Not Change Horses in Midstream," was a slogan frequently used in the interest of the party then in power in certain earlier American political campaigns," Crum writes in Barron's Weekly, "it has already made its appearance in the campaign of 1940, and will no doubt be heard with increasing frequency as November approaches.

"I flatly deny that we are in midstream. Quite the contrary. We are on the bank, at the water's edge; and we have just become convinced, reluctantly and painfully, that we must presently plunge in. We know not how broad or deep or swift the stream is, nor do we know what sort of footing we shall find on the other side. We have ridden up to the bank of the stream on a horse which gave us—or at least many, and perhaps a majority, of us so believe—a distinctly uncomfortable and at times positively dangerous ride.

"The situation clearly demands that, before plunging into the stream, we look about to see whether a more suitable horse is available for the especially risky journey which lies ahead. And this is peculiarly true when we observe that if we keep our present horse, we may be obliged to change horses long before we reach the other shore or even before we get half way over, and that the present horse may prove even less satisfactory in the water than many of us think he has been on land. . . .

"The American people is free to change horses, in midstream or elsewhere. It not only is free to do so but also has the inescapable duty of making a deliberate decision whether to do so. The people must face the grave question whether the admission — implicit in the horses slogan and, indeed, in the entire third term propaganda—that only one man out of a nation of 130 millions is capable of leading the nation is not in truth an admission that we must abandon democratic control and have a totalitarian government. If we shirk this elemental duty of free citizens in 1940 and fail to make a resolute choice of leadership, we have already begun an inglorious retreat before the enemies of democracy; and that retreat may lead to a tragic collapse of our defense effort, and an overwhelming disaster which destroys democracy."

Indeed, we should not allow the danger of such a retreat to creep upon us, and it is well to keep in mind another slogan, "which is that Eternal Vigilance is the Price of Liberty.

Crossing the Border Not So Easy Now

CANADIAN AUTHORITIES have not yet imposed restrictions on tourists or business agents from the United States, but Uncle Sam's men investigate all persons coming here from the Dominion. As a result, residents or even bona fide citizens of the United States who forget to take along their naturalization papers, birth certificates or other proof of citizenship are being held up at the border.

Granted good weather, every indication points to a bumper tourist summer on this continent. Vacationers, barred from Europe, will explore the wide spaces of the United States and seek pleasure resorts in this part of the world. At the most, they will venture into Canada, or, if conditions there quiet down, into Mexico. But if they intend to cross the international borders they will be wise to equip themselves with all possible means of identification and citizenship status.

Though Canada is a country at war, it is exempt from the restrictions placed by the Neutrality act upon travel by United States citizens in belligerent countries. As usual, American dollars will help Canadian business this summer, and at a time when the neighbor to the North needs every kind of cash assistance.

Since it is quite probable, however, that foreign agents will try to mingle with the vacation crowd and obtain illegal entry into the United States, strict inquiries by border authorities are essential. If travelers live up to the regulations they will have no trouble, but so far repeated warnings in the newspapers have not prevented numerous embarrassing delays at the border.

When politicians during the coming national campaign start their usual "viewing with alarm" they'll find the public far ahead of them on that score.

Findings of the Browser

By MARSHALL MASLIN

A couple of years ago the Browser read a magazine article by Osa Johnson in which she told of her resolve to abandon a disintegrating and decade white civilization and spend the rest of her life in Africa. She wrote many paragraphs about the dignity and decency of the black folk and convinced the Browser that she meant what she said. . . But somehow she failed to keep her word and the Browser wrote a snooty paragraph about her. . . He hereby eats his words. Because he has just read her book, "I Married Adventure" (Lippencott) and he is convinced Osa Johnson is a fine and sincere woman. . . As her husband was a man.

Marshall Maslin

After all, the truth of the woman's personality comes out when she writes of herself and of her husband Martin. . . and "I Married Adventure" is a happy book about two young people who loved each other and had a good time living. They were a couple of nice Kansas kids with a zest for being alive and a great desire to go places and see things. . . Osa's father was a freight engineer on the Santa Fe. She was only 16 when she married Martin, gangling son of a watchmaker, who had just signed up as cook for Jack London's cruise of the Snark. They had hard times but they had good times, too, and at last they made their dream come true and voyaged to the South Seas, to Africa and to many another far place. . . The impression the book gives is of a happy, kindly, warm and humorous couple who never stopped having fun.

The Browser has never found more adventure in one book than Julia Cooley Althocchi packs into "Wolves Against the Moon" (Macmillan) which she has expanded from a scant biography of Joseph Bailly, written by his granddaughter. . . As she herself puts it, "In addition to being the story of adventure, a record of people and events of the early nineteenth century from Canada to the Gulf, and especially in the Middle Western portion of the Great Lakes region, and a record of the passing of the Indian life and the French life and the coming of the Anglo-Saxon frontiersman, the book also becomes a record of the vanishing wilderness of the Calumet marshes and the Indiana and Michigan dune country" Rich in color, packed with incident, overflowing with characters, the novel seems to have been written with both of the author's eyes on movie reproduction.

Are you interested in California? John Walton Caughey, associate professor of history in the University of California at Los Angeles, has written the most complete one-volume story of California the Browser has ever read, with the simple title "California" (Prentice-Hall). Dr. Caughey traces the state's history back to the coming of Cortez to Mexico, neglecting no era in the state's growth, brings his history up to 1940. The book has minor faults; it swings between such colloquial sentences as "The tie-up with the North Pacific area is more often overlooked" and such jaw-breakers as "Most of the tribes south of San Francisco were split into exogamous moieties that were patrilinear and totemic."

BOOKENDS: Little Brown & Co. believe that "the mantle of Zane Gray will descend upon the shoulders of Ernest Haycox." (Whose books are published by the L. B. & Co.) The Browser thinks that a silly statement because the late Zane Grey never saw the day he could write as well as Mr. Haycox. . . Rachel Field thinks her success as a writer comes from the fact that since the age of fifteen she has spent every summer on a wooded island off the coast of Maine. . . The Browser's success, you should know, comes from the fact he vacations every summer by a wooded Sierra lake. . . And that's enough impudence from Marsh Maslin.

THE BROWSER.

National Defense Plan Is Lacking, Johnson Says

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, July 12—The president was right in saying that the American people are prepared for any sacrifice for total defense. It should have begun long ago. But dancing a merry madrigal and tossing off billions like bay-leaves isn't total defense. Mr. Roosevelt's futile solution for every problem from unemployment to agriculture, from business depression to defense, is to ask Congress for blank checks for billions.

Hugh Johnson

On the very face of this message defense appropriations must have been wholly unplanned. It takes, or it should take, much time and study to blue-print and then undertake an industrial production progress of even one billion dollars. But this is the president's own time table of what he has asked—and when.

January, 1940	$2,000,000,000
May 16, 1940	1,182,000,000
May 31, 1940	1,277,741,170
July 10, 1940	4,848,171,067

"Roman Candle Juggling"

Nobody is going to complain about what defense costs. Nobody ought to complain about the belated awakening of our great American Daladier or the sound diplomatic, military and naval strategy both of demonstrating that we intend immediately to make ourselves invincible and of proceeding to do so. But this Roman candle juggling with billions isn't going to fool anybody but the American people.

For what is this money to be spent? For "naval expansion," for active and reserve equipment of a "land force" of 2,000,000 men and for 19,000 airplanes—all "to repel aggression against the United States or the Western Hemisphere." But we "will not send our men to take part in European wars."

How about results from the billions already authorized? "Excellent progress . . . every week, more and more is being delivered." That sounds exactly like the guns and munitions we have "on hand or on order."

Nothing Revealed

The trouble with every phrase of this message is that it reveals nothing except a hint that there is no plan. That the magnificent figures were picked out of the air, and that actual progress is too piffling to be described any more definitely than in the Dr. Core Pollyanna abracadabra, "Every day in every way I grow better and better."

Is there any military or naval opinion that we can or should prepare to repel aggression anywhere on the Western Hemisphere? It is not on record. A realistic approach to our defense problem reveals that, while we can and must become supreme and impregnable about as far as the Equator with such strength as would be a serious threat to any incursions farther South, we can't underwrite all the weak, undemocratic, unfriendly Latin nations between the Equator and Cape Horn.

Changes Too Fast

The strictly military problem does not require 2,000,000 men and, if it did, it would be folly to provide facilities to equip them in short order. War changes equipment too fast. If you gear a tool up to equip a million men in two years, you can equip the next millions in six months. If you try to equip the first two million in so short a time, you risk mountains of obsolete equipment and acres of idle plants.

A promise not to send Americans abroad doesn't mean anything if your policy invites foreign war. Our navy is manned by Americans. We can't tell whether it or the Army might have to go if we blunder into war.

Campaign Document

The American people should not be fooled into thinking that rearmament is "excellent." It is not. It could not be. It would be a miracle if we began to get balanced equipment in eighteen months, and this administration is neither manned, equipped nor organized to produce industrial miracles.

This defense message has all the earmarks of a campaign document on the eve of the Democratic Convention and none of a carefully prepared report and blue-print on national defense.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

THE ONLY DARK HORSE IN SIGHT

Unity of Republicans and Democratic Clearage Forecasts Victory for GOP

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

"In Union there is Strength," is a maxim older than the nation itself.

It may well be applied to the current national political campaign as a symbol of Republican strength and contrasting New Deal weakness.

The Republican party is united.

The Democratic party, made up of two widely divergent elements, the old line constitutional Democrats and the new, un-constitutional New Dealers, is disunited; hopelessly divided.

The Republican party realizes that issues far transcending party politics confront the nation. Accordingly it has unified its forces with the single purpose of patriotic endeavor to save America from the disrupting forces which dominate New Deal policies.

The Democratic nominees for president and vice president, regardless of whom they may be, must stand on the record of the New Deal.

No platform pledges, contrary to the New Deal record, will be accepted by the public as other than platitudes, honey spread for gullible votes.

The American people are, happily, fully alive to the seriousness of the issues, domestic and foreign, which this nation faces.

This was evidenced in the manner in which the Republican nominees for president and vice president were chosen at Philadelphia.

New Deal Failures Known

No amount of honey words, no number of fireside chats or campaign speeches can divert the public from its knowledge of New Deal failures, its fears as to where New Deal policies may lead; its determination that constitutional government in the United States be preserved from its enemies within as well as without.

Wendell L. Willkie has declared for a united America.

The New Deal has sought and partially succeeded in bringing about class and racial strife and hatreds.

It has aped totalitarian precepts and principles, the while declaring itself the friend of democratic processes which it has openly flaunted.

American voters have never been slow to distiguish the false from the true.

They will not allow themselves to be beguiled or led further toward an utopian mirage which exists only in the vision of visionaries.

The American people wish to face realities. They are capable of so doing.

They have been quick to grasp the realism of Wendell L. Willkie and Senator Charles L. McNary.

They know that these men, with the able assistance they can bring to their command, will save the American way for Americans.

That they will have no part in crack-pot, hair brained schemes, substituted for economic laws.

Free Enterprise Preserved

That they will not seek to impose upon Americans the regimentation of the masses which features the ways of life of Europe; that they will preserve individual initiative, free enterprise, personal liberties and will destroy bureaucracy and its attendant evils.

They know that Wendell L. Willkie and Charles L. McNary are champions of a government of laws rather than of men; that they will put American interests first; that in their hands the authority of the functions of the Congress and of the courts will be maintained and the system of checks and balances, written into the constitution, preserved.

The American people from the humblest working man to the richest capitalist understand that the rights of each will have equal standing under the law; that human rights and property rights alike will be accorded even handed justice.

The American people know that under this system, guaranteed by the Republican party, the unemployed will be given opportunities to go to work; political favoritism will be wiped out; discrimination will cease and prosperity to the whole people will be restored.

They also know that under a Republican administration can best be maintained the nation's dignity and security; its defenses made impregnable and the lives of its citizens safeguarded.

For these and countless other reasons the American people have decided to turn away from false prophets, blatant promises; insincerity, ineptitude, waste and extravagance; selfish ambitions; peanut politicians, fallacious economics and all the other trappings of the New Deal administration.

They will supplant them with sanity, common sense, honesty, administrative capacity, individual responsibility and a return to the wholly "American Way."

Wendell L. Willkie and Charles L. McNary will be the next president and vice president of the United States.

Shrinking the Dust Bowl

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

Any adequate program of national defense would be a sorry affair if it lost sight of the long-range view. No need for present preparedness is so great that it precludes any thought of the after effects. That is why it is heartening to see attention being paid to the possibility of a further increase in the size of the dustbowl.

The World War, fought though it was on the battlefields of Europe, was one of the major causes of the black blizzards of the thirties. That was because, under the press of war-inflated prices, grain production was expanded. Land on the Great Plains that had been range land was plowed into fields and sown to wheat and other grain. And removal of the grass cover laid the soil open to erosion by the wind.

Today, thanks to the practice of soil conservation and more abundant rainfall, the dustbowl is considerably shrunken in size. If that land is needed for expansion again, it can be used without a repetition of the tragedy of soil blowing away. But this requires planning and the adoption of scientific methods in contrast, as one expert has put it, to "the pell-mell fashion that prevailed during the last World War."

Fortunately the problem is getting plenty of thought.

Allegiance Is Essential

From the Altoona, Pa., Tribune

Refusal to sign affidavits of allegiance to the United States resulted in the dismissal of twenty-five employees of the WPA in Pennsylvania this week.

State WPA headquarters announced three of those dismissed are acknowledged Communists, fifteen are aliens and five gave no reasons for refusing to sign affidavits.

Twenty-five refusals in the thousands of WPA workers in Pennsylvania are only a small minority.

But this nation, if it is to stand free from oppression and ready to defend itself against the mightiest aggressor, must have complete unity. There must be none here unwilling to tender allegiance if they are receiving the benefits of the democracy.

Severing their source of income from WPA may produce a sobering influence and cause them to reconsider their refusal. In the meantime they should be—and probably are—watched. They may become workers in subversive movements.

Morning Motto

It is pride that piles the world with much harshness and severity. —We are as rightous to offenses as if we had never offended. — BLAIR.

A Poor Argument

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

In his defense of the appointment of Mr. Stimson to the position of secretary of war, Senator Sheppard advanced perhaps the weakest argument of all the ones available.

"The value and significance of his (Stimson's) appointment by a Democratic president," he declared, "in what may prove to be one of the most tragic periods in the annals of this nation, lies in the fact that it is notice to the World of the fundamental unity of the American people."

We wonder if Senator Sheppard really believes that the Stimson and Knox appointments reflect national unity. If so, he is the only person who does. Certainly the world at large will not be fooled.

To begin with, the appointments were an admission by the president that he had permitted unfit men to head our two great arms of defense in a time of national crisis. In the second place, the deliberate choice of Republicans on the eve of the Republican national convention was clearly an attempt to embarrass the Republican party; to create the illusion of a coalition government as the fall campaign was about to open.

The appointments were political gestures of the rawest type. That they backfired as such has nothing whatever to do with the qualifications of the two men for the positions to which they have been assigned. They should be judged on the basis of these qualifications, which include temperamental fitness for positions which might be used by intemperate men to lead us into war. But so far as the designations reflecting national unity is concerned, that is pure bunk.

Stone Carvers Are Pushed Out By Modern Art

BY EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

The huge barnlike building was the tomb of a dead craft. In the misty half-light you saw life-size effigies of saint and legendary hero and heroine, and bas-reliefs and busts and Grecian columns. They were plaster models from which carvers in stone had fashioned their marbles. Here in this great shed—why not call it a studio?—forty carvers in their time had plied chisel and hammer and all the implements of sculpture. Where are they now? "In the WPA, or working as janitors, or something," replied one who had retired from the once opulent business of stone and marble cutting, whose artistry appears on many of the older buildings, churches and public edifices of this country.

No one, it appears, wants marble decorations or furnishings either interior or exterior. The stark, towering plainness of the Rockefeller Center buildings stand as symbols of a current trend which is less the result of a change in taste, a diminished appreciation of art, as of economy.

Marble Most Precious

Marble, so I am advised by an eminent architect, is still loved by all who design and produce buildings. It is the most precious of stones, and many wonderful things can be done with it. Its cost is the trouble and when the question of immediate outlay for a new structure arises the elimination of marble is the first expedient that comes to mind.

They did not call stone carvers artists; but they were, many of them. They had souls of artists and the artists deft touch. Confronting a model, as for instance John Angel's conception of "The Last Supper"—now a reredos panel in the East Liberty Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh—they took a block of marble and implicated every detail of the plaster as accurately as a camera would have done.

Day after day, year after year, they worked and when they laid down their tools in the late afternoon, they went home filled with the pride of deft accomplishment.

Today there are few, if any, carvers, actively engaged in their trade. George Brown, whose firm, established in Newark, ninety years ago, has just gone out of business, tells me that no carvers are being trained anywhere. No carving for them to do. So vanishes something very fine and very lovely in handicraft art.

Awaiting Chisels

I walked with Mr. Brown through his Passaic River plant, now passing into the hands of a junk dealer. All about the main building were examples of the work of the vanished carvers and the models from which they worked. Their benches were still there and the carving stands. Marble blocks from Germany; the rare Formosa stone, the lovely Greiotte from France; marble from Sienna and Turkey's flaming red marble, pink stone from Lake Superior and gray from Tennessee; umber sandstone from Scotland—all await chisels they will never know.

Contractors out there in New Jersey are going to use them for fill. This is what marble has come to. They had tradition behind them, these stonecutters. Socrates was a carver and so did Praxiteles and Actinus. Also Michelangelo, whose nose was flattened to his face by a fellow artisan's maul. There were potential Michelangelo's here in this building. But they are all gone now. They are road diggers, janitors, anything, everything—and the Radio Center and other stark skyscrapers look down upon them ironically.

Few Appentices Now

Apprentice carvers used to spend three and a half years in hand-cutting and running the machines. Then, for six months, they were set to work on a building, learning to install their work. In the course of this process the fire of artistry would descend upon some of them. These were the elect, these the workers set to the more delicate pieces of craftmanship—shades of expression in figures, conversion of marble into luxury and garlands. At present in this area there seems to be but two apprentice carvers. Both are over thirty and they have not yet learned their trade because of lack of work. If some architect happened to talk a client into profust marble decoration for a sizeable building, considerable searching would have to be done in attempting to locate scattered practitioners in a trade once highly populous.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The Almshouse Problem Of Maryland

THE CHALLENGE issued to Governor O'Conor and impliedly to the state commission he has appointed to investigate possible reorganization of the county alms house system of Maryland, respecting the status of the Allegany county home seems to rest upon solid ground.

There is no denying the fact that the Allegany institution is an excellently arranged and capably managed plant, which with the additions and improvements that have been planned, can cope with all requirements that may be imposed upon it.

The home is perhaps the outstanding institution of its kind in Maryland. Doubtless there is ground for the charges that have been frequently made that Maryland almshouses for the greater part are "wretched" institutions, neglected and out of date. There are doubtless reasons, both economic and social, why the existing system should be improved. The question of duplication of the social services involved is something that must be taken under careful consideration in view of the various plans for caring for the infirm and the indigent that have come into vogue the last several years, including those included within the national Social Security act, the state pension and hospitalization systems and so on. It is economic waste for taxpayers to go on supporting a multiplication of these services if they overlap or duplicate.

Perhaps the solution of the almshouse problem of Maryland lies in the abandonment of the most of the antiquated institutions and the organizations of regional homes whereby the inmates from several surrounding counties can be accommodated. In that case the Allegany county home offers obvious possibilities as a regional institution. Properly arranged for the purpose, it could be well utilized as such for occupants of all the Western Maryland counties.

A West Virginian Gets Due Recognition

WEST VIRGINIA REPUBLICANS are rather pleased over the fact that the national committeeman for that state, Walter S. Hallanan, of Charleston, has been chosen as one of the vice chairmen of the national committee entrusted with the campaign organization. It is evidence, according to the Wheeling Intelligencer, of the high regard in which Mr. Hallanan is held by persons high in the party.

Noting that Hallanan has acted as spokesman for the group in press relationships and has played a conspicuous part in the laying of campaign plans, the Intelligencer reminds that for some time now he has occupied a place of importance not generally recognized by Republicans of his state. "He has been a valued member of the unofficial board of strategy for several years," the Intelligencer says, and "was one of the first to recognize the significance of the Willkie movement and one of the first to urge that his party rise above narrow partisan considerations in selecting a leader capable of rescuing the country from the grip of New Deal collectivism."

The Intelligencer adds that its state may well be proud of the place assumed by Mr. Hallanan and declares that the position he occupied is a recognition of merit. Republicans of this area, who know him and especially those in the border towns of Keyser, the Tri-towns, Romney and other nearby places in West Virginia, can easily approve what the Wheeling newspaper says about him. It is good to have a man of his ability, foresight and organizing capacity in such a place.

Some Cogent Reasons For Changing Horses

THERE IS every indication that the New Deal publicity fellows are going to wear to a frazzle the old axiom about changing horses in the middle of the stream. In fact, they are already at it.

But W. L. Crum, professor of economics at Harvard university, points out that there are very good reasons why the country may well change horses and that, moreover, we are not yet in the middle of the stream.

"Do Not Change Horses in Midstream," was a slogan frequently used in the interest of the party then in power in certain earlier American political campaigns," Crum writes in Barron's Weekly, "it has already made its appearance in the campaign of 1940, and will no doubt be heard with increasing frequency as November approaches.

"I flatly deny that we are in midstream. Quite the contrary. We are on the bank, at the water's edge; and we have just become convinced, reluctantly and painfully, that we must presently plunge in. We know not how broad or deep or swift the stream is, nor do we know what sort of footing we shall find on the other side. We have ridden up to the bank of the stream on a horse which gave us—or at least many, and perhaps a majority, of us so believe—a distinctly uncomfortable and at times positively dangerous ride.

"The situation clearly demands that, before plunging into the stream, we look about to see whether a more suitable horse is available for the especially risky journey which lies ahead. And this is peculiarly true when we observe that if we keep our present horse, we may be obliged to change horses long before we reach the other shore or even before we get half way over, and that the present horse may prove even less satisfactory in the water than many of us think he has been on land. . . .

"The American people is free to change horses, in midstream or elsewhere. It not only is free to do so but also has the inescapable duty of making a deliberate decision whether to do so. The people must face the grave question whether the admission — implicit in the horses slogan and, indeed, in the entire third term propaganda—that only one man out of a nation of 130 millions is capable of leading the nation is not in truth an admission that we must abandon democratic control and have a totalitarian government. If we shirk this elemental duty of free citizens in 1940 and fail to make a resolute choice of leadership, we have already begun an inglorious retreat before the enemies of democracy; and that retreat may lead to a tragic collapse of our defense effort, and an overwhelming disaster which destroys democracy."

Indeed, we should not allow the danger of such a retreat to creep upon us, and it is well to keep in mind another slogan, "which is that Eternal Vigilance is the Price of Liberty.

Crossing the Border Not So Easy Now

CANADIAN AUTHORITIES have not yet imposed restrictions on tourists or business agents from the United States, but Uncle Sam's men investigate all persons coming here from the Dominion. As a result, residents or even bona fide citizens of the United States who forget to take along their naturalization papers, birth certificates or other proof of citizenship are being held up at the border.

Granted good weather, every indication points to a bumper tourist summer on this continent. Vacationers, barred from Europe, will explore the wide spaces of the United States and seek pleasure resorts in this part of the world. At the most, they will venture into Canada, or, if conditions there quiet down, into Mexico. But if they intend to cross the international borders they will be wise to equip themselves with all possible means of identification and citizenship status.

Though Canada is a country at war, it is exempt from the restrictions placed by the Neutrality act upon travel by United States citizens in belligerent countries. As usual, American dollars will help Canadian business this summer, and at a time when the neighbor to the North needs every kind of cash assistance.

Since it is quite probable, however, that foreign agents will try to mingle with the vacation crowd and obtain illegal entry into the United States, strict inquiries by border authorities are essential. If travelers live up to the regulations they will have no trouble, but so far repeated warnings in the newspapers have not prevented numerous embarrassing delays at the border.

New Definition of Delegate to a Democratic convention: Jobholder living off taxpayers, selected to help name the Democratic candidate for president, but unable to function because The Word is still being withheld.

When politicians during the coming national campaign start their usual "viewing with alarm" they'll find the public far ahead of them on that score.

Findings of the Browser

By MARSHALL MASLIN

A couple of years ago the Browser read a magazine article by Osa Johnson in which she told of her resolve to abandon a disintegrating and decade white civilization and spend the rest of her life in Africa. She wrote many paragraphs about the dignity and decency of the black folk and convinced the Browser that she meant what she said. . . But somehow she failed to keep her word and the Browser wrote a snooty paragraph about her. . . He hereby eats his words. Because he has just read her book, "I Married Adventure" (Lippencott) and he is convinced Osa Johnson is a fine and sincere woman. . . As her husband was a man.

Marshall Maslin

After all, the truth of the woman's personality comes out when she writes of herself and of her husband Martin. . . and "I Married Adventure" is a happy book about two young people who loved each other and had a good time living. They were a couple of nice Kansas kids with a zest for being alive and a great desire to go places and see things. . . Osa's father was a freight engineer on the Santa Fe. She was only 16 when she married Martin, gangling son of a watchmaker, who had just signed up as cook for Jack London's cruise of the Snark. They had hard times but they had good times, too, and at last they made their dream come true and voyaged to the South Seas, to Africa and to many another far place. . . The impression the book gives is of a happy, kindly, warm and humorous couple who never stopped having fun.

The Browser has never found more adventure in one book than Julia Cooley Althocchi packs into "Wolves Against the Moon" (Macmillan) which she has expanded from a scant biography of Joseph Bailly, written by his granddaughter. . . As she herself puts it, "In addition to being the story of adventure, a record of people and events of the early nineteenth century from Canada to the Gulf, and especially in the Middle Western portion of the Great Lakes region, and a record of the passing of the Indian life and the French life and the coming of the Anglo-Saxon frontiersman, the book also becomes a record of the vanishing wilderness of the Calumet marshes and the Indiana and Michigan dune country" Rich in color, packed with incident, overflowing with characters, the novel seems to have been written with both of the author's eyes on movie reproduction.

Are you interested in California? John Walton Caughey, associate professor of history in the University of California at Los Angeles, has written the most complete one-volume story of California the Browser has ever read, with the simple title "California" (Prentice-Hall). Dr. Caughey traces the state's history back to the coming of Cortez to Mexico, neglecting no era in the state's growth, brings his history up to 1940. The book has minor faults; it swings between such colloquial sentences as "The tie-up with the North Pacific area is more often overlooked" and such jaw-breakers as "Most of the tribes south of San Francisco were split into exogamous moieties that were patrilinear and totemic."

BOOKENDS: Little Brown & Co. believe that "the mantle of Zane Gray will descend upon the shoulders of Ernest Haycox." (Whose books are published by the L. B. & Co.) The Browser thinks that a silly statement because the late Zane Grey never saw the day he could write as well as Mr. Haycox. . . Rachel Field thinks her success as a writer comes from the fact that since the age of fifteen she has spent every summer on a wooded island off the coast of Maine. . . The Browser's success, you should know, comes from the fact he vacations every summer by a wooded Sierra lake. . . And that's enough impudence from Marsh Maslin.

National Defense Plan Is Lacking, Johnson Says

Hugh Johnson

Washington, July 12—The president was right in saying that the American people are prepared for any sacrifice for total defense. It should have begun long ago. But dancing a merry madrigal and tossing off billions like bay-leaves isn't total defense. Mr. Roosevelt's futile solution for every problem from unemployment to agriculture, from business depression to defense, is to ask Congress for blank checks for billions.

On the very face of this message defense appropriations must have been wholly unplanned. It takes, or it should take, much time and study to blue-print and then undertake an industrial production progress of even one billion dollars. But this is the president's own time table of what he has asked—and when.

January, 1940	$2,000,000,000
May 16, 1940	1,182,000,000
May 31, 1940	1,277,741,170
July 10, 1940	4,848,171,067

"Roman Candle Jugglery"

Nobody is going to complain about what defense costs. Nobody ought to complain about the belated awakening of our great American Daladier or the sound diplomatic, military and naval strategy both of demonstrating that we intend immediately to make ourselves invincible and of proceeding to do so. But this Roman candle jugglery with billions isn't going to fool anybody but the American people.

For what is this money to be spent? For "naval expansion," for active and reserve equipment of a "land force" of 2,000,000 men and for 19,000 airplanes—all "to repel aggression against the United States or the Western Hemisphere." But we "will not send our men to take part in European wars."

How about results from the billions already authorized? "Excellent progress . . . every week, more and more is being delivered." That sounds exactly like the guns and munitions we have "on hand or on order."

Nothing Revealed

The trouble with every phrase of this message is that it reveals nothing except a hint that there is no plan. That the magnificent figures were picked out of the air, and that actual progress is too piffling to be described any more definitely than in the Dr. Core Pollyanna abracadabra, "Every day in every way I grow better and better."

Is there any military or naval opinion that we can or should prepare to repel aggression anywhere on the Western Hemisphere? It is not on record. A realistic approach to our defense problem reveals that, while we can and must become supreme and impregnable about as far as the Equator with such strength as would be a serious threat to any incursions farther South, we can't underwrite all the weak, undemocratic, unfriendly Latin nations between the Equator and Cape Horn.

Changes Too Fast

The strictly military problem does not require 2,000,000 men and, if it did, it would be folly to provide facilities to equip them in short order. War changes equipment too fast. If you gear a tool up to equip a million men in two years, you can equip the next millions in six months. If you try to equip the first two million in so short a time, you risk mountains of obsolete equipment and acres of idle plants.

A promise not to send Americans abroad doesn't mean anything if your policy invites foreign war. Our navy is manned by Americans. We can't tell whether it or the Army might have to go if we blunder into war.

Campaign Document

The American people should not be fooled into thinking that rearmament is "excellent." It is not. It could not be. It would be a miracle if we began to get balanced equipment in eighteen months, and this administration is neither manned, equipped nor organized to produce industrial miracles.

This defense message has all the earmarks of a campaign document on the eve of the Democratic Convention and none of a carefully prepared report and blue-print on national defense.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

CHECKS ON ALIENS

E. G. Harrison

Director of registration of the Immigration and Naturalization Bureau of the department of Justice, E. G. Harrison, Philadelphia attorney, is in charge of the fingerprinting of 3,500,000 aliens in the U. S. The fingerprinting law was passed recently as an aid in checking possible Fifth Columnists.

THE ONLY DARK HORSE IN SIGHT

Unity of Republicans and Democratic Clearage Forecasts Victory for GOP

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

"In Union there is Strength," is a maxim older than the nation itself.

It may well be applied to the current national political campaign as a symbol of Republican strength and contrasting New Deal weakness.

The Republican party is united.

The Democratic party, made up of two widely divergent elements, the old line constitutional Democrats and the new, un-constitutional New Dealers, is disunited; hopelessly divided.

The Republican party realizes that issues far transcending party politics confront the nation. Accordingly it has unified its forces with the single purpose of patriotic endeavor to save America from the disrupting forces which dominate New Deal policies.

The Democratic nominees for president and vice president, regardless of whom they may be, must stand on the record of the New Deal.

No platform pledges, contrary to the New Deal record, will be accepted by the public as other than platitudes, honey spread for gullible votes.

The American people are, happily, fully alive to the seriousness of the issues, domestic and foreign, which this nation faces.

This was evidenced in the manner in which the Republican nominees for president and vice president were chosen at Philadelphia.

New Deal Failures Known

No amount of honey words, no number of fireside chats or campaign speeches can divert the public from its knowledge of New Deal failures, its fears as to where New Deal policies may lead; its determination that constitutional government in the United States be preserved from its enemies within as well as without.

Wendell L. Willkie has declared for a united America.

The New Deal has sought and partially succeeded in bringing about class and racial strife and hatreds.

It has aped totalitarian precepts and principles, the while declaring itself the friend of democratic processes which it has openly flaunted.

American voters have never been slow to distiguish the false from the true.

They will not allow themselves to be beguiled or led further toward an utopian mirage which exists only in the vision of visionaries.

The American people wish to face realities. They are capable of so doing.

They have been quick to grasp the realism of Wendell L. Willkie and Senator Charles L. McNary.

They know that these men, with the able assistance they can bring to their command, will save the American way for Americans.

That they will have no part in crack-pot, hair brained schemes, substituted for economic laws.

Free Enterprise Preserved

That they will not seek to impose upon Americans the regimentation of the masses which features the ways of life of Europe; that they will preserve individual initiative, free enterprise, personal liberties and will destroy bureaucracy and its attendant evils.

They know that Wendell L. Willkie and Charles L. McNary are champions of a government of laws rather than of men; that they will put American interests first; that in their hands the authority of the functions of the Congress and of the courts will be maintained and the system of checks and balances, written into the constitution, preserved.

The American people from the humblest working man to the richest capitalist understand that the rights of each will have equal standing under the law; that human rights and property rights alike will be accorded even handed justice.

The American people know that under this system, guaranteed by the Republican party, the unemployed will be given opportunities to go to work; political favoritism will be wiped out; discrimination will cease and prosperity to the whole people will be restored.

They also know that under a Republican administration can best be maintained the nation's dignity and security; its defenses made impregnable and the lives of its citizens safeguarded.

For these and countless other reasons the American people have decided to turn away from false prophets, blatant promises; insincerity, ineptitude, waste and extravagance; selfish ambitions; peanut politicians, fallacious economics and all the other trappings of the New Deal administration.

They will supplant them with sanity, common sense, honesty, administrative capacity, individual responsibility and a return to the wholly "American Way."

Wendell L. Willkie and Charles L. McNary will be the next president and vice president of the United States.

Shrinking the Dust Bowl

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

Any adequate program of national defense would be a sorry affair if it lost sight of the long-range view. No need for present preparedness is so great that it precludes any thought of the after effects. That is why it is heartening to see attention being paid to the possibility of a further increase in the size of the dustbowl.

The World War, fought though it was on the battlefields of Europe, was one of the major causes of the black blizzards of the thirties. That was because, under the press of war-inflated prices, grain production was expanded. Land on the Great Plains that had been range land was plowed into fields and sown to wheat and other grain. And removal of the grass cover laid the soil open to erosion by the wind.

Today, thanks to the practice of soil conservation and more abundant rainfall, the dustbowl is considerably shrunken in size. If that land is needed for expansion again, it can be used without a repetition of the tragedy of soil blowing away. But this requires planning and the adoption of scientific methods in contrast, as one expert has put it, to "the pell-mell fashion that prevailed during the last World War."

Fortunately the problem is getting plenty of thought.

Allegiance Is Essential

From the Altoona, Pa., Tribune

Refusal to sign affidavits of allegiance to the United States resulted in the dismissal of twenty-five employees of the WPA in Pennsylvania this week.

State WPA headquarters announced three of those dismissed are acknowledged Communists, fifteen are aliens and five gave no reasons for refusing to sign affidavits.

Twenty-five refusals in the thousands of WPA workers in Pennsylvania are only a small minority.

But this nation, if it is to stand free from oppression and ready to defend itself against the mightiest aggressor, must have complete unity. There must be none here unwilling to tender allegiance if they are receiving the benefits of the democracy.

Severing their source of income from WPA may produce a sobering influence and cause them to reconsider their refusal. In the meantime they should be—and probably are—watched. They may become workers in subversive movements.

Morning Motto

It is pride that plies the world with much harshness and severity. —We are as rightous to offenses as if we had never offended. —BLAIR.

A Poor Argument

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

In his defense of the appointment of Mr. Stimson to the position of secretary of war, Senator Sheppard advanced perhaps the weakest argument of all the ones available.

"The value and significance of his (Stimson's) appointment by a Democratic president," he declared, "in what may prove to be one of the most tragic periods in the annals of this nation, lies in the fact that it is notice to the World of the fundamental unity of the American people."

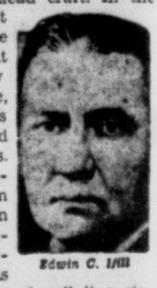

We wonder if Senator Sheppard really believes that the Stimson and Knox appointments reflect national unity. If so, he is the only person who does. Certainly the world at large will not be fooled.

To begin with, the appointments were an admission by the president that he had permitted unfit men to head our two great arms of defense in a time of national crisis. In the second place, the deliberate choice of Republicans on the eve of the Republican national convention was clearly an attempt to embarrass the Republican party; to create the illusion of a coalition government as the fall campaign was about to open.

The appointments were political gestures of the rawest type. That they backfired as such has nothing whatever to do with the qualifications of the two men for the positions to which they have been assigned. They should be judged on the basis of these qualifications, which include temperamental fitness for positions which might be used by intemperate men to lead us into war. But so far as the designations reflecting national unity is concerned, that is pure bunk.

Stone Carvers Are Pushed Out By Modern Art

Edwin C. Hill

The huge barnlike building was the tomb of a dead craft. In the misty half-light you saw life-size effigies of saint and legendary hero and heroine, and bas-reliefs and busts and Grecian columns. They were plaster models from which carvers in stone had fashioned their marbles. Here in this great shed—why not call it a studio?—forty carvers in their time had plied chisel and hammer and all the implements of sculpture. Where are they now? "In the WPA, or working as janitors, or something," replied one who had retired from the once opulent business of stone and marble cutting, whose artistry appears on many of the older buildings, churches and public edifices of this country.

No one, it appears, wants marble decorations or furnishings either interior or exterior. The stark, towering plainness of the Rockefeller Center buildings stand as symbols of a current trend which is less the result of a change in taste, a diminished appreciation of art, as of economy.

Marble Most Precious

Marble, so I am advised by an eminent architect, is still loved by all who design and produce buildings. It is the most precious of stones, and many wonderful things can be done with it. Its cost is the trouble and when the question of immediate outlay for a new structure arises the elimination of marble is the first expedient that comes to mind.

They did not call stone carvers artists; but they were, many of them. They had souls of artists and the artists deft touch. Confronting a model, as for instance John Angel's conception of "The Last Supper"—now a reredos panel in the East Liberty Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh—they took a block of marble and implicated every detail of the plaster as accurately as a camera would have done.

Day after day, year after year, they worked and when they laid down their tools in the late afternoon, they went home filled with the pride of deft accomplishment.

Today there are few, if any, carvers, actively engaged in their trade. George Brown, whose firm, established in Newark, ninety years ago, has just gone out of business, tells me that no carvers are being trained anywhere. No carving for them to do. So vanishes something very fine and very lovely in handicraft art.

Awaiting Chisels

I walked with Mr. Brown through his Passaic River plant, now passing into the hands of a junk dealer. All about the main building were examples of the work of the vanished carvers and the models from which they worked. Their benches were still there and the carving stands. Marble blocks from Germany; the rare Formosa stone, the lovely Greiotte from France; marble from Sienna and Turkey's flaming red marble, pink stone from Lake Superior and gray from Tennessee; umber sandstone from Scotland—all await chisels they will never know.

Contractors out there in New Jersey are going to use them for fill. This is what marble has come to. They had tradition behind them, these stonecutters. Socrates was a carver and so did Praxiteles and Actinus. Also Michelangelo, whose nose was flattened to his face by a fellow artisan's maul. There were potential Michelangelo's here in this building. But they are all gone now. They are road diggers, janitors, anything, everything—and the Radio Center and other stark skyscrapers look down upon them ironically.

Few Appentices Now

Apprentice carvers used to spend three and a half years in hand-cutting and running the machines. Then, for six months, they were set to work on a building, learning to install their work. In the course of this process the fire of artistry would descend upon some of them. These were the elect, these the workers set to the more delicate pieces of craftmanship—shades of expression in figures, conversion of marble into luxury and garlands. At present in this area there seems to be but two apprentice carvers. Both are over thirty and they have not yet learned their trade because of lack of work. If some architect happened to talk a client into profust marble decoration for a sizeable building, considerable searching would have to be done in attempting to locate scattered practitioners in a trade once highly populous.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Teaching Baby To Drink Milk from Cup Is Outlined

It's a Problem That Can Be Solved but It Takes Patience

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Wise is the mother who trains her infant early to take water and fruit juices from a cup. But some parents who easily effect this training have trouble getting the baby to take milk from a cup instead of a bottle.

Some child doctors advise letting the baby have the night bottle even past the age of two, in order to induce the child to take enough milk. It is doubtful if this procedure is necessary. Nevertheless, the mother should carry out her doctor's instructions.

One Mother's Problem

Assuming that you have resolved to have your baby abandon the bottle, what is a good procedure? I answered this question in my reply to the mother who wrote the following:

"Dear Dr. Myers: I've a problem I would like solved. It may be small to some but to me it is quite a task. I have a baby fifteen months old She still takes her milk in a bottle. Has done so since two months old. I have tried every way I know of to get her to drink her milk from a cup. She absolutely refuses. I've taken her bottle away from her at times. She still won't drink from the cup. She doesn't make any fuss about drinking water from a cup.

"Some tell me she will ruin the shape of her mouth and teeth. Others say to let her have the bottle as long as she wants it, just so long as she gets her milk. I wish you would please advise me."

Can You Be Firm?

I answered:

"Since your baby takes water from a cup, she easily can learn to take milk in like manner. The trouble with so many of you mothers is that you don't stick to any plan long enough to make it work. Just remove the bottle and never bring it back. It might be a good plan to have a little ceremony in which you bury the bottle while the baby watches.

"Then as it is buried—all other bottles put away—she might choose without resistance to get along without it. A number of babies have under such conditions. Otherwise just let her cry She won't starve even though she might hold out a day or more. Of course, you will hasten results if all other food is denied her in the meanwhile. In case she develops nausea consult your doctor."

Having advised another mother who had a hard eating problem with a three-year-old, I received the following from the mother after a few weeks:

"Dear Dr. Myers: Your plan worked.

"It was difficult at first, but at the end of two weeks he had formed new eating habits and was taking his milk. Believe me, it took a lot of courage or grit to stick to the program once it was started, and to have to put the baby to bed hungry for several nights. It was all we could do as parents to keep from giving in. I can honestly say that once he realized that eating was solely for his own pleasure and satisfaction, he has been a different child to feed. I think in this case the parents were disciplined as well as the child."

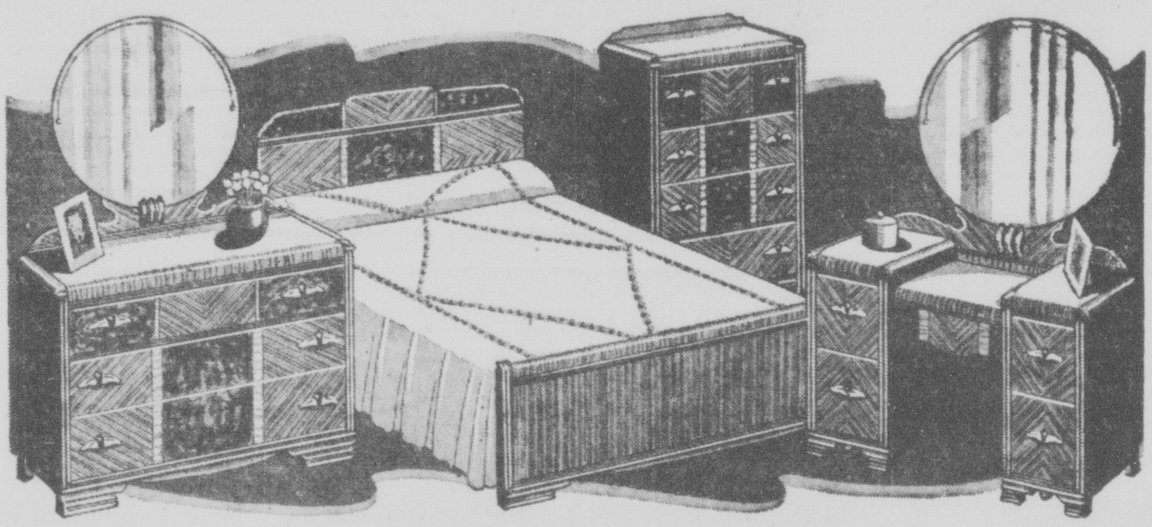

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Do you think a father should whip an adolescent girl?

A. Certainly not. Any one who has read this column regularly must know that I say repeatedly that we should try to get along without using corporal punishment after the child is four or five. One of the best arguments for selective, intelligent corporal punishment of the tot is that he might be prepared to escape all corporal punishment before he is old enough to enter school, need very little of any kind of punishment thereafter, and be a happy, likable citizen.

Has done so since two months old. I have tried every way I know of to get her to drink her milk from a cup. She absolutely refuses. I've taken her bottle away from her at times. She still won't drink from the cup. She doesn't make any fuss about drinking water from a cup.

"Some tell me she will ruin the shape of her mouth and teeth. Others say to let her have the bottle as long as she wants it, just so long as she gets her milk. I wish you would please advise me."

Can You Be Firm?

I answered:

"Since your baby takes water from a cup, she easily can learn to take milk in like manner. The trouble with so many of you mothers is that you don't stick to any plan long enough to make it work. Just remove the bottle and never bring it back. It might be a good plan to have a little ceremony in which you bury the bottle while the baby watches.

"Then as it is buried—all other bottles put away—she might choose without resistance to get along without it. A number of babies have under such conditions. Otherwise just let her cry She won't starve even though she might hold out a day or more. Of course, you will hasten results if all other food is denied her in the meanwhile. In case she develops nausea consult your doctor."

Having advised another mother who had a hard eating problem with a three-year-old, I received the following from the mother after a few weeks:

"Dear Dr. Myers: Your plan worked.

"It was difficult at first, but at the end of two weeks he had formed new eating habits and was taking his milk. Believe me, it took a lot of courage or grit to stick to the program once it was started, and to have to put the baby to bed hungry for several nights. It was all we could do as parents to keep from giving in. I can honestly say that once he realized that eating was solely for his own pleasure and satisfaction, he has been a different child to feed. I think in this case the parents were disciplined as well as the child."

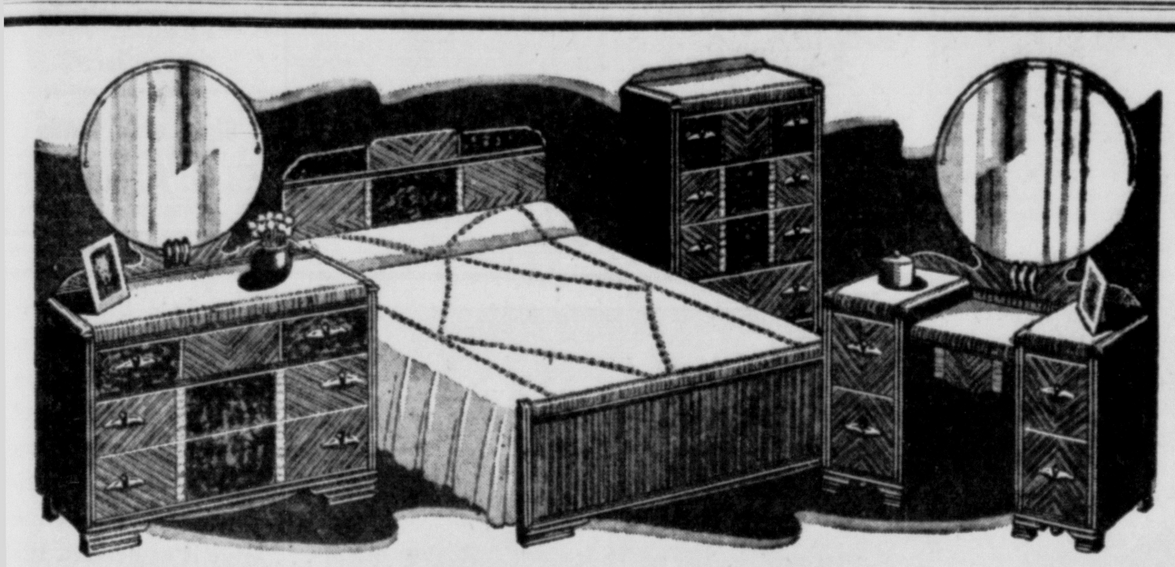

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Do you think a father should whip an adolescent girl?

A. Certainly not. Any one who has read this column regularly must know that I say repeatedly that we should try to get along without using corporal punishment after the child is four or five. One of the best arguments for selective, intelligent corporal punishment of the tot is that he might be prepared to escape all corporal punishment before he is old enough to enter school, need very little of any kind of punishment thereafter, and be a happy, likable citizen.

Miss Julia Raphel Will Become the Bride of Luther Rowe Here Today

Miss Julia Braden Raphel, daughter of Mrs. Eugene F. Raphel, 502 Washington street, and the late Dr. Raphel, and Luther Curtis Rowe, Baltimore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles David Rowe, New Castle, Pa., will be married at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Patrick's rectory. The Rev. Fr. Francis J. McKeown will officiate.

The rectory will have an improvised altar banked with gladioli and palms. White candles will adorn the altar.

The bride, who will be given away by her brother, Eugene Victor Raphel, Baltimore, will wear a white marquisette gown with inserts of lace. Her finger-tip veil will fall from a halo of orange blossoms. She will also wear a gold chain which her mother wore in her wedding. Her bouquet will be white bridal roses and baby breath.

Miss Raphel will have as her maid of honor her sister, Miss Mary Alida Raphel, this city, who will wear a gown of aqua net. Her accessories will be pink. She will carry a bouquet of pink roses and baby breath.

The bride's mother will wear blue and white chiffon and her accessories will be white. Her corsage will be roses.

Mr. Rowe will have as his best man, W. Davenport Claus, this city.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast will be served at the bride's home for members of the immediate families.

Miss Raphel was graduated from Girls' Catholic Central high school, this city, and Potomac State college, Keyser, W. Va. Mr. Rowe was graduated from New Castle high school, New Castle, Pa., and the University of Pittsburgh. He is a designing engineer at the Glen L. Martin Corporation, Baltimore.

Following a wedding trip, the couple will reside at Stansbury Manor, Baltimore.

Among out-of-town guests here for the wedding are the bride's brother, Eugene Victor Raphel, Baltimore; the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles David Rowe, New Castle, Pa.; Miss Virginia Raphel, Towson; Miss Deborah Dorsey, Baltimore; Mrs. Marshall Dorsey, Baltimore; Miss Kathleen Gaffney, Washington, D. C., and William Bender, Westminster.

Married in Church

Miss Fannie Elizabeth Clites and Robert William Groves, this city, were married June 29 at St. Joseph's Catholic church, Midland. The Rev. Elmer T. Fisher performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Groves are making their home at 213 Cecelia street.

Sponaugle-Bittner

The marriage of Miss Marie Agnes Bittner, this city, daughter of Mrs. Mary Brooks, Washington, D. C., and Alba Lee Sponaugle, this city, was performed Wednesday at the Bethel Evangelical church parsonage, 51 Maple street, by the Rev. Clewell E. Miller, pastor of the church.

The couple is residing with Mr. and Mrs. James W. Summers, 1350 Kentucky avenue.

Announce Marriage

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mrs. Virginia G. Webster, 521 Fayette street, and Philip G. Petri, Martinsburg, W. Va., one time foreman of the Baltimore and Ohio bolt and forge shops here. The ceremony took place July 3. The Rev. Dr. Lloyd Archibald Parker officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Petri, following a brief trip through Southern Virginia, are at home temporarily at the Shenandoah hotel, Martinsburg.

The bride was graduated from Shepherd State Teachers' college, Shepherdstown, W. Va., and also attended the University of Virginia and has been associated here with the adult education program of Allegany county. Mr. Petri was graduated from Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh, and is superintendent of Maintenance of Way of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company, Martinsburg.

Events in Brief

Miss Joy Small, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Small, The Dingle, has returned to Moss Lake Camp in the Adirondack Mountains for the 1940 season.

St. Luke's Lutheran church, 312 Bedford street, will hold a rummage sale at 10 o'clock this morning at the church.

A rummage sale will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at Central Methodist church, South George street.

Chosen Friends Lodge, No. 34, I. O. O. F., held a public social at 9 o'clock last night at the Odd Fellows hall, South Mechanic street.

Personals

YOUNG FORD STEPS OUT

Henry Ford, 2nd, son of Edsel Ford and grandson of auto magnate Henry Ford, is shown with his bride-to-be, Miss Anne McDonnell, as they celebrated at a swank New York night club their imminent marriage. Miss McDonnell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Francis McDonnell, of New York and Southampton.

Graceful Walk On Right Heels

A WOMAN should be lovely from her head to her heels. Heels mean a lot. If they are too high they throw the body out of balance. The upper portion of the torso goes forward, the arms as well; the back has an ugly line. Knees buckle which means that the legs are not straight and neat as they should be.

"When using mascara or eye shadows, be careful not to get these preparations in the eyes."

Weak ankles result from the wearing of spiked heels because they assume a side to side swing for which they are not designed. Haven't you observed that many times? If the foot has a substantial hold on the ground that will not happen. Heels that are run over on the outer side make a girl look bow legged; those worn on the inner side give her knock knees. Hence, watch your taps, my paper friends. As soon as they show signs of wear, toddle to the cobbler, have them repaired.

Keep Straight

High heels were intended only for evening wear. Won't do much harm if lower heels are worn during the day.

It is vitally important that the spinal column be kept tall and straight, a condition to which lifted heels is not conducive. It is the straight backbone that gives spirit to the body and makes for good carriage. If a woman hasn't correct posture she need have no ambition to be a snappy dresser, it just can't be done.

Do you dream about magic drops that will make your eyes sparkle? Stop dreaming. Glitter on the soul windows is created by good health and natural animation. Keep jolly thoughts inside your head and they'll peek out of your eyes.

When the eyes are tired, bathe with hot water, then with cold. Never rub the eyes with a soiled glove; that's the best possible way of starting up an infection. When using mascara or eye shadows, be careful not to get these preparations in the eyes. If vision isn't normal, don't hesitate to get specs no matter how much you hate them. Eye strain causes wrinkles, has a devastating effect upon the central nervous system.

In 1929, a fine antique mahogany Chippendale highboy was sold for $44,000, the highest price ever paid for a single piece of furniture in the United States.

DON'T FOLLOW A RULE

RULES ABOUT returning your partner's suit, playing second hand low, third hand high and not finessing against your partner are all right as far as they go. They should be working tools which you use whenever they help you to accomplish your purpose. But no rule should be followed blindly on all occasions, any more than a carpenter would always use one particular kind of plane or saw without first thinking of whether it fitted the job at hand.

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠
2 ♥	2 ♠	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♥	3 ♠	4 ♥	4 ♠

A double might have given North and South a better score than making their own game, a much better one, certainly, than what they actually got when South fumbled his contract.

When West led his heart Q, South could have figured out the correct play by simple card reading, but didn't. It was pretty sure from the lead that East held the heart A, and from West's rebid of a weak suit it was very likely he had six and East only two. South went wrong, however. He reckoned that covering the Q with dummy's K would force the ace and thus make his own 10 a third-round trick.

So the declarer called the heart K from dummy. East took with the A, fired his 3 back to the J and on a third heart over-ruffed the dummy's 10 with his K. Since South had to lose a diamond later, he was set one trick.

If South had played low from dummy on the first trick, West would have won it. East would have taken the second heart with his A, but then could not have got West into the lead again until the defensive trumps were gone. As a consequence the spade K would have been disposed of in a winning finesse, and the declarer would have lost only a total of three tricks, two in hearts and one in diamonds.

Your Week-End Lesson

Playing a 3-No Trumps contract, with plenty of entries to both your own hand and dummy, and amply safe stoppers of the other suits, which of the following suits should ordinarily be preferred in the effort to take as many total tricks as possible, if your choice was between some two of them?

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York models' agency, starts to rebuild her romance with

RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "swung his way to fame on a trumpet," but

SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile

ROBERT BARTON, young engineer, strikes up a friendship with Linda. He introduces her to

TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart,

CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work. Life is complicated by

MINA NEVINS, a famous actress, who is determined to marry Robert. She believes Linda is romancing with the young engineer.

YESTERDAY: Linda and Caroline are frightened by an apparent attempt to chloroform them during the night. With the odor of the chloroform they also detect the scent of the perfume used by Mina Nevins, but a telephone call to her home proves that she could not possibly have been responsible. While Caroline, Robert and she discuss the affair, Linda suddenly thinks of another enemy she has.

"Listen, Macrae, did anyone come in or go out late?"

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

NOT EVEN to Robert and Caroline, though, did Linda mention Sarah's name as a possible enemy. It would have been a natural admission, but she realized that she had no reason to believe that Sarah would try to murder her or frighten her. Anyway, there was no possible way for the theatrical magnate's daughter to gain entrance into the apartment.

Robert, thinking the matter over, finally insisted that the police be notified. Together the three of them reported the matter at the nearest station and walked back to the apartment. Dawn was breaking as they retraced their path. Men were emptying the refuse cans along the curb and milkmen were hurrying back and forth with their white bottles. The rain was blowing away in a cold mist.

Linda shivered. The world was an eerie place this morning, and she didn't want to enter her apartment. But when Robert had examined it carefully, announced that it was safe, and offered his own hospitality if the girls were frightened, she decided to rest on her own bed.

Her head ached the next day. The telephone rang constantly at the agency, and people dropped in to question appointments, to express satisfaction or dissatisfaction. When she heard Ronnie's voice at two, she answered gratefully.

"It's been a terrible day. I'm just now going out for lunch." Then, remembering that Sarah had come for him last night, "Was the party fun?"

"Not bad. I'm due at a rehearsal or I'd take you out for luncheon. Will you have dinner with me tomorrow night, Linda?"

He had not said, "I'll see you tonight. Let's have dinner tonight. What are you doing at tea time?" He had placed her thirty hours ahead on his schedule. Nor had he mentioned Sarah. But why should he?

Linda knew her voice was low and tight as she answered, "Sorry, Ronnie. I'm booked up."

He laughed and she could see the teasing light in his blue eyes. It had been there before, long ago, when she had refused a class party date or a picnic because he had carried somebody's else books home from school. Oh, it was torture to let one man upset your life. Women were so silly, and yet so helpless.

Now Ronald said, "How about the next night?"

"It's open."

"Good. I'll call you."

Two o'clock. The telephone began to ring again, but she didn't answer. She called to Hortense Mitchell, who did secretarial work and substituted for her at lunch time, and asked her to take over. Then, without powdering her nose or deepening the red on her lips, she put on her coat and hat and went out.

She ordered a malted milk and a chicken sandwich at a nearby drug store counter, drank the beverage and left the sandwich, and walked down the street. Spring had arrived since the cool, gray dawn. Sunlight laid gay rugs across the streets, flower venders begged the laughing people to choose violets or gardenias, and the stores had decked their windows in brighter colors.

Because the odor of chloroform was still drifting somewhere near, she decided to be reckless and buy a small vial of her favorite perfume. It was a crushed lilac fragrance and she had not had any for a long time. Once Ronnie had sent her some for Christmas. Ronnie—

She went to the perfume counter and asked for her purchase.

"We have some other delightful new fragrances," the salesgirl explained. "This, for instance. Isn't it exotic and seductive?"

She put the bottle under Linda's tilted nose and the strange scent that she had caught when Mina Nevins drew near, the victorious odor that had stayed in spite of the chloroform, suddenly was all around.

"It's our special creation, made abroad for us," the informative attendant went on talking. "Several well-known people are using it. Sarah Markley, the glamor girl, is one of them."

"Sarah Markley?" Linda forgot that she was just a casual shopper and added, "But she wasn't using it a week or so ago."

"Oh, you know her?" The salesgirl's eyes viewed Linda's slim gray suit and green beret doubtfully. "She just bought it day before yesterday."

"Mina Nevins, the actress, likes it, too, doesn't she?"

"Does she? I wouldn't know. Maybe she gets it in Paris. But you want some, don't you?"

Linda ordered her first choice and slipped the small vial in her pocket. All the way back to the office she reflected on her new information. Sarah and Mina both used this weird, exciting scent. Either one could have left it, and yet both of them had been busy elsewhere last night. And how could anyone have gained access to her room? The door was locked and the night lock was set, too. On a sudden impulse she crossed to a hardware store and bought a steel chain and bolt. She would take no further risks.

It was after six that evening when she went to the custodian's rooms to ask him to have the chain and bolt put on her door. Briefly she told him what had happened.

He was a man around sixty, gray-haired, blue-eyed, rotund, mild and merry.

"Miss Linda, you had a bad dream," he said. "Now, who would want to be knocking you off? And besides, those locks hold. Tut, tut, child, forget it. But I'll put on this contraption if you wish it."

"Caroline is another witness that the room was saturated with chloroform," Linda went on. "Listen, MacCrae, did anyone come in or go out late? Didn't you hear any noises?"

He drew himself up to his round, short stature and spoke impressively. "These houses in this block belong to the Markley agency and there's never one bit of wrong doing."

"Markley—the theatrical man?"

"Yes, madam, himself!"

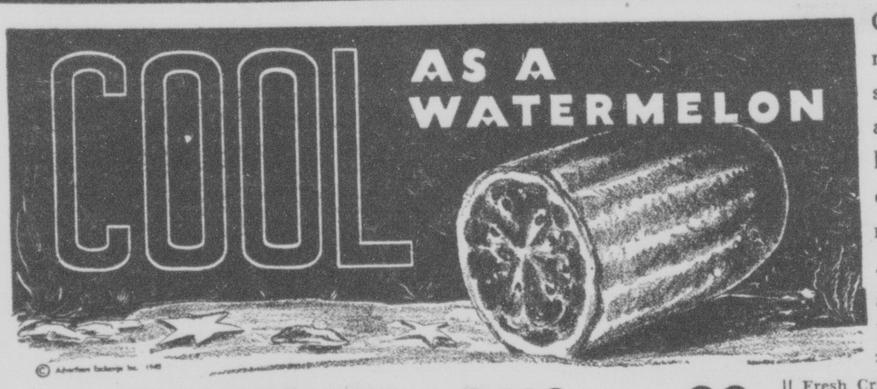

So Sarah's father might have the right to pass keys—that was foolish—a busy man wouldn't be annoyed with such trivialities. MacCrae was speaking again.

"—and nobody has had a pass key, ever, except Miss Mina Nevins, the actress, who wanted to get in to a friend's rooms the other night. Miss Nevins is our most glorious actress—I used to see her twenty years ago—and she is a friend of mine. She comes and sits and drinks a spot of tea with me. Miss Nevins would not open your door."

Linda listened quietly. "Has Miss Nevins returned the key?" she asked.

YOUNG FORD STEPS OUT

Graceful Walk

A WOMAN should be lovely from her head to her heels. Heels mean a lot. If they are too high they throw the body out of balance. The upper portion of the torso goes forward, the arms as well; the back has an ugly line. Knees buckle which means that the legs are not straight and neat as they should be.

Weak ankles result from the wearing of spiked heels because they assume a side to side swing for which they are not designed. Haven't you observed that many times? If the foot has a substantial hold on the ground that will not happen. Heels that are run over on the outer side make a girl look bow legged; those worn on the inner side give her knock knees. Hence, watch your taps, my paper friends. As soon as they show signs of wear, toddle to the cobbler, have them repaired.

On Right Heels

Keep Straight

High heels were intended only for evening wear. Won't do much harm if lower heels are worn during the day.

It is vitally important that the spinal column be kept tall and straight, a condition to which lifted heels is not conducive. It is the straight backbone that gives spirit to the body and makes for good carriage. If a woman hasn't correct posture she need have no ambition to be a snappy dresser, it just can't be done.

Do you dream about magic drops that will make your eyes sparkle? Stop dreaming. Glitter on the soul windows is created by good health and natural animation. Keep jolly thoughts inside your head and they'll peek out of your eyes.

When the eyes are tired, bathe with hot water, then with cold. Never rub the eyes with a soiled glove; that's the best possible way of starting up an infection. When using mascara or eye shadows, be careful not to get these preparations in the eyes. If vision isn't normal, don't hesitate to get specs no matter how much you hate them. Eye strain causes wrinkles, has a devastating effect upon the central nervous system.

In 1929, a fine antique mahogany Chippendale highboy was sold for $44,000, the highest price ever paid for a single piece of furniture in the United States.

DON'T FOLLOW A RULE

RULES ABOUT returning your partner's suit, playing second hand low, third hand high and not finessing against your partner are all right as far as they go. They should be working tools which you use whenever they help you to accomplish your purpose. But no rule should be followed blindly on all occasions, any more than a carpenter would always use one particular kind of plane or saw without first thinking of whether it fitted the job at hand.

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠
2 ♥	2 ♠	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♥	3 ♠	4 ♥	4 ♠

A double might have given North and South a better score than making their own game, a much better one, certainly, than what they actually got when South fumbled his contract.

When West led his heart Q, South could have figured out the correct play by simple card reading, but didn't. It was pretty sure from the lead that East held the heart A, and from West's rebid of a weak suit it was very likely he had six and East only two. South went wrong, however. He reckoned that covering the Q with dummy's K would force the ace and thus make his own 10 a third-round trick.

So the declarer called the heart K from dummy. East took with the A, fired his 3 back to the J and on a third heart over-ruffed the dummy's 10 with his K. Since South had to lose a diamond later, he was set one trick.

If South had played low from dummy on the first trick, West would have won it. East would have taken the second heart with his A, but then could not have got West into the lead again until the defensive trumps were gone. As a consequence the spade K would have been disposed of in a winning finesse, and the declarer would have lost only a total of three tricks, two in hearts and one in diamonds.

Love without Music

THE CHARACTERS:

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York models' agency, starts to rebuild her romance with

RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "swung his way to fame on a trumpet," but

SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile

TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart,

CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work. Life is complicated by

MINA NEVINS, a famous actress, who is determined to marry Robert. She believes Linda is romancing with the young engineer.

YESTERDAY: Linda and Caroline are frightened by an apparent attempt to chloroform them during the night. With the odor of the chloroform they also detect the scent of the perfume used by Mina Nevins, but a telephone call to her home proves that she could not possibly have been responsible. While Caroline, Robert and she discuss the affair, Linda suddenly thinks of another enemy she has.

"Listen, Macrae, did anyone come in or go out late?"

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

NOT EVEN to Robert and Caroline, though, did Linda mention Sarah's name as a possible enemy. It would have been a natural admission, but she realized that she had no reason to believe that Sarah would try to murder her or frighten her. Anyway, there was no possible way for the theatrical magnate's daughter to gain entrance into the apartment.

Robert, thinking the matter over, finally insisted that the police be notified. Together the three of them reported the matter at the nearest station and walked back to the apartment. Dawn was breaking as they retraced their path. Men were emptying the refuse cans along the curb and milkmen were hurrying back and forth with their white bottles. The rain was blowing away in a cold mist.

Linda shivered. The world was an eerie place this morning, and she didn't want to enter her apartment. But when Robert had examined it carefully, announced that it was safe, and offered his own hospitality if the girls were frightened, she decided to rest on her own bed.

Her head ached the next day. The telephone rang constantly at the agency, and people dropped in to question appointments, to express satisfaction or dissatisfaction. When she heard Ronnie's voice at two, she answered gratefully.

"It's been a terrible day. I'm just now going out for lunch." Then, remembering that Sarah had come for him last night, "Was the party fun?"

"Not bad. I'm due at a rehearsal or I'd take you out for luncheon. Will you have dinner with me tomorrow night, Linda?"

He had not said, "I'll see you tonight. Let's have dinner tonight. What are you doing at tea time?" He had placed her thirty hours ahead on his schedule. Nor had he mentioned Sarah. But why should he?

Linda knew her voice was low and tight as she answered, "Sorry, Ronnie. I'm booked up."

He laughed and she could see the teasing light in his blue eyes. It had been there before, long ago, when she had refused a class party date or a picnic because he had carried somebody's else books home from school. Oh, it was torture to let one man upset your life. Women were so silly, and yet so helpless.

Now Ronald said, "How about the next night?"

"It's open."

"Good. I'll call you."

Two o'clock. The telephone began to ring again, but she didn't answer. She called to Hortense Mitchell, who did secretarial work and substituted for her at lunch time, and asked her to take over. Then, without powdering her nose or deepening the red on her lips, she put on her coat and hat and went out.

She ordered a malted milk and a chicken sandwich at a nearby drug store counter, drank the beverage and left the sandwich, and walked down the street. Spring had arrived since the cool, gray dawn. Sunlight laid gay rugs across the streets, flower venders begged the laughing people to choose violets or gardenias, and the stores had decked their windows in brighter colors.

Because the odor of chloroform was still drifting somewhere near, she decided to be reckless and buy a small vial of her favorite perfume. It was a crushed lilac fragrance and she had not had any for a long time. Once Ronnie had sent her some for Christmas. Ronnie—

She went to the perfume counter and asked for her purchase.

"We have some other delightful new fragrances," the salesgirl explained. "This, for instance. Isn't it exotic and seductive?"

She put the bottle under Linda's tilted nose and the strange scent that she had caught when Mina Nevins drew near, the victorious odor that had stayed in spite of the chloroform, suddenly was all around.

"It's our special creation, made abroad for us," the informative attendant went on talking. "Several well-known people are using it. Sarah Markley, the glamor girl, is one of them."

"Sarah Markley?" Linda forgot that she was just a casual shopper and added, "But she wasn't using it a week or so ago."

"Oh, you know her?" The salesgirl's eyes viewed Linda's slim gray suit and green beret doubtfully. "She just bought it day before yesterday."

"Mina Nevins, the actress, likes it, too, doesn't she?"

"Does she? I wouldn't know. Maybe she gets it in Paris. But you want some, don't you?"

Linda ordered her first choice and slipped the small vial in her pocket. All the way back to the office she reflected on her new information. Sarah and Mina both used this weird, exciting scent. Either one could have left it, and yet both of them had been busy elsewhere last night. And how could anyone have gained access to her room? The door was locked and the night lock was set, too. On a sudden impulse she crossed to a hardware store and bought a steel chain and bolt. She would take no further risks.

It was after six that evening when she went to the custodian's rooms to ask him to have the chain and bolt put on her door. Briefly she told him what had happened.

He was a man around sixty, gray-haired, blue-eyed, rotund, mild and merry.

"Miss Linda, you had a bad dream," he said. "Now, who would want to be knocking you off? And besides, those locks hold. Tut, tut, child, forget it. But I'll put on this contraption if you wish it."

"Caroline is another witness that the room was saturated with chloroform," Linda went on. "Listen, MacCrae, did anyone come in or go out late? Didn't you hear any noises?"

He drew himself up to his round, short stature and spoke impressively. "These houses in this block belong to the Markley agency and there's never one bit of wrong doing."

"Markley—the theatrical man?"

"Yes, madam, himself!"

So Sarah's father might have the right to pass keys—that was foolish—a busy man wouldn't be annoyed with such trivialities. MacCrae was speaking again.

"—and nobody has had a pass key, ever, except Miss Mina Nevins, the actress, who wanted to get in to a friend's rooms the other night. Miss Nevins is our most glorious actress—I used to see her twenty years ago—and she is a friend of mine. She comes and sits and drinks a spot of tea with me. Miss Nevins would not open your door."

Linda listened quietly. "Has Miss Nevins returned the key?" she asked.

Preserving Time Is Now Here

The best features of two favorites, grapes and limes, go into this appetizing looking jelly.

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

The season is ripe—and so are heaps of burgeoning berries and fruits—for you to start your summer's preserves.

You may be an amateur gardener so proud of your harvest you simply must save some of it in gleaming glass to gloat over next winter. Or you may be the good provider for a family of appreciative eaters who knows how much a dish of a favorite conserve can add to appreciation of a roast or a chicken.

Whatever, or why ever, you decide to can some fruits this year, there's no doubt of the satisfaction it will give you in contemplation of a good job well done now and pride in achievement when the time comes to break the seal.

If you want to start the season with a conserve that's new and especially delicious, try this BLACK CHERRY recipe. Cut 4 oranges into thin slices, discard and seeds, cover 2 inches deep with cold water, put a cover on the kettle and simmer until the rinds are tender—it usually takes about 30 minutes. Mix in 8 cups of seeded cherries and ⅔ cup lemon juice. Boil quickly for 3 minutes, then add 8 cups of sugar and stir until it has dissolved. Boil the conserve quickly until it jells when tested on a cold plate. You can substitute regular pie cherries for the black one if more convenient, but of course, the flavor will be slightly different.

Spiced gooseberry jam will find a permanent spot in your jam cupboard each year if you make it like this: Wash and stem 4 pounds of gooseberries, add 8 cups granulated sugar, 1½ cups vinegar, ¼ cup lemon juice, 2 tablespoons powdered cinnamon, 2 teaspoons powdered cloves, ½ teaspoon mace, ¼ teaspoon salt and 2 oranges chopped (be sure to include the juice). Let stand for 12 hours—or longer. Boil quickly for 10 minutes, then cook very slowly until the jam thickens. This is such a delecatble jam that it will pay you to use canned gooseberries if you cannot get fresh ones. It is just made for fowl, meats and escalloped mixtures. And it's grand on hot toast for afternoon tea.

Old fashioned blackberry jam should be a standby on every pantry shelf. It's always a favorite spread for breads and it's handy to have to blend into sauces, puddings, cake sand cookies. Easy to make, too. Wash, and carefully pick over, 4 pounds of berries. Arrange them in layers with 3 pounds (6 cups) of sugar in a large preserving kettle. Let stand an hour or so to draw out some of the juice. Add ¼ cup lemon juice and cook the jam until very thick. Stir frequently. You can substitute raspberries in part or whole for the blackberries.

For a spread that's gay in color and in flavor intriguing serve this fruit conserve. Cook together quickly, 4 cups seeded, peeled apricots, 2 cups sliced peaches, 4 cups crushed or finely chopped pineapple, ½ cup lemon juice, ½ cup of orange juice and 8 cups sugar. Stir frequently. The conserve is done when a small portion jells on a plate. For a spicy touch, add a tablespoon of powdered cinnamon and ½ teaspoon each of cloves and nutmeg.

RULES FOR IMPROVING JAMS AND PRESERVES

Here are some pointers from a successful maker of spreads that will help you in putting up jams and jellies:

1—Select under-ripe, fresh, well shaped berries or fruits to obtain the best flavors.
2—Pour a thin layer of melted paraffin over the spread as soon as it is in the jars. This keeps out impurities. When cool, add another layer of paraffin to complete the seal.
3—Jams and thick butters burn easily so stir them frequently. An asbestos mat placed under the kettle is often helpful.
4—A little salt improves all spreads. And grated lemon rind and lemon juice brings out the flavors of most conserves and jams—use about 1 tablespoon of juice to each 3 cups of fruit.

CONCORD LIME JELLY

2 cups grape juice, juice of 5 limes (¾ cup), 4 cups sugar, ½ bottle fruit pectin.

Combine juices and sugar in large saucepan, bring to boil over hottest fire. Add pectin, boil hard for one-half minute, then pour immediately into hot, sterilized glasses. Makes about 6 glasses.

Try This Recipe For Cakier Shortcake

Old-fashioned shortcake is made of biscuit dough. But nowadays most people prefer a sweeter, cakier shortcake. To satisfy them, try this recipe:

Assemble two cups flour, one or two egg yolks (well beaten), one-third cup butter, one-third cup milk, one-fourth cup sugar, four teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and a few grains nutmeg. Sift the dry ingredients together, work in the shortening, then add egg and milk. Bake in hot oven for fifteen or twenty minutes and serve with plenty of berries.

Caramalizing Sugar For Sauces, Icings

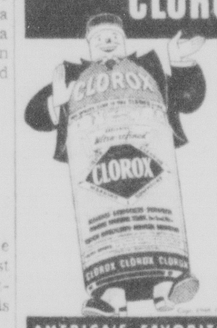

Most cooks know how to caramalize sugar for sauces or icing and have their own individual methods. But here is a little trick not many of them use. Place the sugar to be caramalized in a bright clean, frying pan and shake the pan until the sugar is spread as level as possible. Then place pan over fire and when the sugar starts melting, rock the pan gently to keep the melting sugar moving until it is a golden brown sirup. Do not stir with a spoon, just rock the pan.

To freshen stale bread, place it in a paper sack, pinch the ends of the sack together and sprinkle with warm water. Bake 5 minutes in a moderately hot oven and serve the bread warm.

Parsley will keep fresh several days if it's washed well and placed in a jar or pail while dripping. Cover tightly and store in the refrigerator.

Preserving Time Is Now Here

The best features of two favorites, grapes and limes, go into this appetizing looking jelly.

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

The season is ripe—and so are heaps of burgeoning berries and fruits—for you to start your summer's preserves.

You may be an amateur gardener so proud of your harvest you simply must save some of it in gleaming glass to gloat over next winter. Or you may be the good provider for a family of appreciative eaters who knows how much a dish of a favorite conserve can add to appreciation of a roast or a chicken.

Whatever, or why ever, you decide to can some fruits this year, there's no doubt of the satisfaction it will give you in contemplation of a good job well done now and pride in achievement when the time comes to break the seal.

If you want to start the season with a conserve that's new and especially delicious, try this BLACK CHERRY recipe. Cut 4 oranges into thin slices, discard and seeds, cover 2 inches deep with cold water, put a cover on the kettle and simmer until the rinds are tender—it usually takes about 30 minutes. Mix in 8 cups of seeded cherries and ⅔ cup lemon juice. Boil quickly for 3 minutes, then add 8 cups of sugar and stir until it has dissolved. Boil the conserve quickly until it jells when tested on a cold plate. You can substitute regular pie cherries for the black one if more convenient, but of course, the flavor will be slightly different.

Spiced gooseberry jam will find a permanent spot in your jam cupboard each year if you make it like this: Wash and stem 4 pounds of gooseberries, add 8 cups granulated sugar, 1½ cups vinegar, ¼ cup lemon juice, 2 tablespoons powdered cinnamon, 2 teaspoons powdered cloves, ½ teaspoon mace, ½ teaspoon salt and 2 oranges chopped (be sure to include the juice). Let stand for 12 hours—or longer. Boil quickly for 10 minutes, then cook very slowly until the jam thickens. This is such a delecatble jam that it will pay you to use canned gooseberries if you cannot get fresh ones. It is just made for fowl, meats and escalloped mixtures. And it's grand on hot toast for afternoon tea.

Old fashioned blackberry jam should be a standby on every pantry shelf. It's always a favorite spread for breads and it's handy to have to blend into sauces, puddings, cake sand cookies. Easy to make, too. Wash, and carefully pick over, 4 pounds of berries. Arrange them in layers with 3 pounds (6 cups) of sugar in a large preserving kettle. Let stand an hour or so to draw out some of the juice. Add ¼ cup lemon juice and cook the jam until very thick. Stir frequently. You can substitute raspberries in part or whole for the blackberries.

For a spread that's gay in color and in flavor intriguing serve this fruit conserve. Cook together quickly, 4 cups seeded, peeled apricots, 2 cups sliced peaches, 4 cups crushed or finely chopped pineapple, ½ cup lemon juice, ½ cup of orange juice and 8 cups sugar. Stir frequently. The conserve is done when a small portion jells on a plate. For a spicy touch, add a tablespoon of powdered cinnamon and ½ teaspoon each of cloves and nutmeg.

RULES FOR IMPROVING JAMS AND PRESERVES

Here are some pointers from a successful maker of spreads that will help you in putting up jams and jellies:

1—Select under-ripe, fresh, well shaped berries or fruits to obtain the best flavors.
2—Pour a thin layer of melted paraffin over the spread as soon as it is in the jars. This keeps out impurities. When cool, add another layer of paraffin to complete the seal.
3—Jams and thick butters burn easily so stir them frequently. An asbestos mat placed under the kettle is often helpful.
4—A little salt improves all spreads. And grated lemon rind and lemon juice brings out the flavors of most conserves and jams—use about 1 tablespoon of juice to each 3 cups of fruit.

CONCORD LIME JELLY

2 cups grape juice, juice of 5 limes (¾ cup), 4 cups sugar, ½ bottle fruit pectin.

Combine juices and sugar in large saucepan, bring to boil over hottest fire. Add pectin, boil hard for one-half minute, then pour immediately into hot, sterilized glasses. Makes about 6 glasses.

Try This Recipe For Cakier Shortcake

Old-fashioned shortcake is made of biscuit dough. But nowadays most people prefer a sweeter, cakier shortcake. To satisfy them, try this recipe:

Assemble two cups flour, one or two egg yolks (well beaten), one-third cup butter, one-third cup milk, one-fourth cup sugar, four teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and a few grains nutmeg. Sift the dry ingredients together, work in the shortening, then add egg and milk. Bake in hot oven for fifteen or twenty minutes and serve with plenty of berries.

Caramalizing Sugar For Sauces, Icings

Most cooks know how to caramalize sugar for sauces or icing and have their own individual methods. But here is a little trick not many of them use. Place the sugar to be caramalized in a bright clean, frying pan and shake the pan until the sugar is spread as level as possible. Then place pan over fire and when the sugar starts melting, rock the pan gently to keep the melting sugar moving until it is a golden brown sirup. Do not stir with a spoon, just rock the pan.

To freshen stale bread, place it in a paper sack, pinch the ends of the sack together and sprinkle with warm water. Bake 5 minutes in a moderately hot oven and serve the bread warm.

Parsley will keep fresh several days if it's washed well and placed in a jar or pail while dripping. Cover tightly and store in the refrigerator.

Job's Struggle to Faith in Life After Death

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON 7-13

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 14 is Job 3-19, the Golden Text being Job 19:25, "As for me, I know that my Redeemer liveth.")

POOR JOB, suffering intensely in body and also in his mind by reason of his losses in property, and more especially from losing his beloved children, wondered why he had ever been born or allowed to live so long. He longed for death, where, he said, "the wicked ceased from troubling; and there the weary are at rest."

You remember at the end of last week's lesson, three friends came to where he lay and at first they did not recognize him because of the loathsome disease with which he was afflicted. When they did, they rent their mantles for grief, put dust in their hair, and sat beside him for seven days and seven nights, not speaking.

When they heard him complain of his lot and wish he were in his grave, they began to argue with him, one at a time. All were convinced that he would not have suffered his dreadful afflictions if he had not sinned. Eliphaz the Temanite, was the first to speak: "Remember, I pray thee," said he "who ever perished being innocent? or where were the righteous cut off?

"Even as I have seen, they that plow iniquity, and sow wickedness, reap the same."

Tells of Ghostly Dream

It must have seemed very hard to Job, who had lived such a righteous life, to have his supposed friends blame him for all his troubles. They might just as well have told him, "It serves you right." He could not see the justice of such reasoning. Eliphaz even told him of a ghostly dream he had wherein "a spirit passed before my face, the hair of my flesh stood up:

"It stood still, but I could not discern the form thereof: an image was before mine eyes, there was silence, and I heard a voice saying,

"Shall mortal man be more just than God? shall a man be more pure than his Maker?"

He also reminded Job that "man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward," all of which was not very comforting. Job could not see wherein he had erred and rebuked his friend by saying that after a suffering day "When I say, My bed shall ease my complaint; then thou scarest me with dreams, and terriflest me with visions."

Bildad, the Shuhite, was the next one to speak, and he argued in much the same vein as had Eliphaz.

"If thou wert pure and upright; surely now He would awake for thee, and make the habitation of thy righteousness prosperous," he said, and much more in the same manner.

Poor Job answered him much as he had answered Eliphaz, and also addressed himself to God, asking where he had offended and what he should do. "I am full of confusion; therefore see Thou mine affliction," he mourned.

The third friend, Zophar, the Naamathite, then addressed him, and his accusations and arguments were rougher and far less considerate of his feelings than those of the other two. He even accused Job of lying and mockery.

"Should thy lies make men hold their peace? and when thou mockest, shall no man make thee ashamed?" he asked him. Can you imagine a good man visiting a friend who was poor, ill and had lost his children, and talking to him as this man talked to Job?

Job Grows Angry

Job, angered, answered them all sarcastically: "No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you.

"But I have understanding as well as you: I am not inferior to you: yea, who knoweth not such things as these?"

Eliphaz answered Job, reviling him, and Job turned on them all at last, saying: "I have heard many such things: miserable comforters are ye all."

Through his misery and the chidings of his supposed friends, poor suffering Job wailed: "they whom I loved have turned against me . . .

"Have pity upon me, have pity upon me, O ye my friends: for the hand of God hath touched me."

But even in this agony he struggled through to faith in God, and cried:

"I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth:

"And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God."

Thus Job, who suffered as few men are called upon to do, refrained from cursing his Maker, and fought through to faith in life after death.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Job's Struggle to Faith — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Job 3-19

In his bereavement, agony and grief, Job wished that he was in his grave. "There," he said, "the wicked cease from troubling; and there the weary be at rest."

Job's three friends argued with him that he must have sinned and so brought on his troubles, but they could not convince him, for he knew he had always been a righteous man.

At last, after much argument, Job rebuked Eliphaz for telling him of a horrible dream and told all three: "I have heard many such things: miserable comforters are ye all."

In spite of all, Job has faith in God, saying: "For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that in my flesh shall I see God."

Job's Struggle to Faith in Life After Death

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 14 is Job 3-19, the Golden Text being Job 19:25, "As for me, I know that my Redeemer liveth.")

POOR JOB, suffering intensely in body and also in his mind by reason of his losses in property, and more especially from losing his beloved children, wondered why he had ever been born or allowed to live so long. He longed for death, where, he said, "the wicked ceased from troubling; and there the weary are at rest."

You remember at the end of last week's lesson, three friends came to where he lay and at first they did not recognize him because of the loathsome disease with which he was afflicted. When they did, they rent their mantles for grief, put dust in their hair, and sat beside him for seven days and seven nights, not speaking.

When they heard him complain of his lot and wish he were in his grave, they began to argue with him, one at a time. All were convinced that he would not have suffered his dreadful afflictions if he had not sinned. Eliphaz the Temanite, was the first to speak: "Remember, I pray thee," said he "who ever perished being innocent? or where were the righteous cut off?

"Even as I have seen, they that plow iniquity, and sow wickedness, reap the same."

Tells of Ghostly Dream

It must have seemed very hard to Job, who had lived such a righteous life, to have his supposed friends blame him for all his troubles. They might just as well have told him, "It serves you right." He could not see the justice of such reasoning. Eliphaz even told him of a ghostly dream he had wherein "a spirit passed before my face, the hair of my flesh stood up:

"It stood still, but I could not discern the form thereof: an image was before mine eyes, there was silence, and I heard a voice saying,

"Shall mortal man be more just than God? shall a man be more pure than his Maker?"

He also reminded Job that "man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward," all of which was not very comforting. Job could not see wherein he had erred and rebuked his friend by saying that after a suffering day "When I say, My bed shall ease my complaint; then thou scarest me with dreams, and terrifiest me with visions."

Bildad, the Shuhite, was the next one to speak, and he argued in much the same vein as had Eliphaz.

"If thou wert pure and upright; surely now He would awake for thee, and make the habitation of thy righteousness prosperous," he said, and much more in the same manner.

Poor Job answered him much as he had answered Eliphaz, and also addressed himself to God, asking where he had offended and what he should do. "I am full of confusion; therefore see Thou mine affliction," he mourned.

The third friend, Zophar, the Naamathite, then addressed him, and his accusations and arguments were rougher and far less considerate of his feelings than those of the other two. He even accused Job of lying and mockery.

"Should thy lies make men hold their peace? and when thou mockest, shall no man make thee ashamed?" he asked him. Can you imagine a good man visiting a friend who was poor, ill and had lost his children, and talking to him as this man talked to Job?

Job Grows Angry

Job, angered, answered them all sarcastically: "No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you.

"But I have understanding as well as you: I am not inferior to you: yea, who knoweth not such things as these?"

Eliphaz answered Job, reviling him, and Job turned on them all at last, saying: "I have heard many such things: miserable comforters are ye all."

Through his misery and the chidings of his supposed friends, poor suffering Job wailed: "they whom I loved have turned against me . . .

"Have pity upon me, have pity upon me, O ye my friends: for the hand of God hath touched me."

But even in this agony he struggled through to faith in God, and cried:

"I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth:

"And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God."

Thus Job, who suffered as few men are called upon to do, refrained from cursing his Maker, and fought through to faith in life after death.

Job's Struggle to Faith — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Job 3-19

In his bereavement, agony and grief, Job wished that he was in his grave. "There," he said, "the wicked cease from troubling; and there the weary be at rest."

Job's three friends argued with him that he must have sinned and so brought on his troubles, but they could not convince him, for he knew he had always been a righteous man.

At last, after much argument, Job rebuked Eliphaz for telling him of a horrible dream and told all three: "I have heard many such things: miserable comforters are ye all."

In spite of all, Job has faith in God, saying: "For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that in my flesh shall I see God."

Stocks Irregular in Day Marked By Greatly Restricted Trading

Only a Few Scattered Issues Manage To Register Advance

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, July 12. (AP)—Domestic political and European war imponderables continued as speculative handicaps in today's stock market and leading issues shifted listlessly over a restricted area.

Scattered stocks managed to emerge with negligible advances but these were overbalanced by declines of fractions.

The Associated Press average of sixty issues was off .1 of a point at 41.1. In the four preceding sessions the composite had remained at 41.2. Transfers of 255,990 shares were the second smallest for the week to date and compared with 328,330 yesterday.

Pullman was one of the few losers of more than a point, seemingly reflecting action of the justice department in filing civil proceedings against this company to divorce manufacture from operation of sleeping cars.

Unchanged to lower were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, General Electric, Anaconda, Consolidated Edison, Santa Fe, Sears Roebuck and Eastman Kodak. Advances were held by Bethlehem Steel, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Great Northern, Texas Corp., Westinghouse and Woolworth.

In a spotty Curb market modest gains were posted for Pantepec, Fairchild Engineering and Aircraft, Bell Aircraft and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. A trifle under water were Electric Bond and Share, Cities Service, Lake Shore and Bath Iron Works. Volume here was around 74,000 shares against 141,000 Thursday.

Singing Feature Is Offered at Maryland

"New Moon," the latest Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy film, is showing at the Maryland theater.

"New Moon" contains romance, intrigue, melody and spectacle.

The story is placed before a colorful setting. It opens on shipboard in the year 1780, travels on to gay New Orleans during Mardi Gras time, back again for thrilling adventures on the high seas, and from there to a tropic island where a strange assortment of individuals, led by Eddy, set up their own republic from the remnants of a ship and cargo wrecked in a storm.

Miss MacDonald's songs include "Lover Come Back to Me," "Rondolet," "One Kiss," "Wanting You" and "Paree," together with a sequence in which Miss MacDonald sings Handel's "Largo" with a choir.

Eddy's songs include "Softly As in a Morning Sunrise," "Shoe Shine Song" and the stirring "Stout Hearted Men."

Picture with Tropical Setting Is Offered

"Torrid Zone," which opens today at the New Liberty theater, brings together James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, and Ann Sheridan.

As the title indicates, "Torrid Zone" has a tropical setting, down in the banana country, where the big fruit companies own and manage vast plantations. O'Brien and Cagney are cast as rough and ready plantation bosses, while Miss Sheridan portrays a torch singer from the U.S.A., who comes to the tropics because she figures redheads will be more of a novelty there. Her adeptness at dealing cards is also an asset. When O'Brien attempts to have her shipped back to the States, Cagney, who is constantly feuding with him, helps her to stay, and from then on finds himself saddled with her. Although he pretends not to like it, he is not proof against the Sheridan charm. Another contender for Cagney's favor is blonde Helen Vinson, who plays the discontented wife of another of the plantation bosses, a role portrayed by Jerome Cowan.

New Double Bill Is Booked at Embassy

Another double bill is booked for tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

One feature will be Deanna Durbin in "First Love" with Eugene Pallette, Robert Stack and Helen Parrish.

The second feature will be Charles Bickford in "Street of Missing Men" with Harry Carey and Nana Bryant.

Closing today at the Embassy will be the double attraction consisting of Roy Rogers in "Carson City Kid" with Bob Steele and Ann Sothern and William Gargan in the first-run Metro Goldwyn Mayer picture, "Joe And Ethel Terp Call on the President".

In addition, there will be another chapter of the serial, "The Shadow".

IN ROMANCE DRAMA

Robert Stack and Deanna Durbin, as they appear in Deanna's romantic drama, Universal's "First Love," opening tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

Majestic Scenery Is Background of Film

Filmed against majestic backgrounds in the Canadian northwoods, and blending action scenes with romantic suspense, Universal's "Man From Montreal" is currently playing at the Garden theater with Richard Arlen and Andy Devine costarred.

Kay Sutton and Anne Gwynne, have the leading feminine roles. Others prominently cast include Reed Hadley, Addison Richards, Joseph Sawyer, Jerry Marlowe, Tommy Whitten, Eddy C. Waller and Lane Chandler.

Courage and daring of mounted police, and battles between outlaws and trappers, highlight the picture which reveals Arlen as the fur trapper who is innocently charged with robbery and murder. Devine, in the red-jacketed uniform of a Mountie, is the friend who helps Arlen track down the real criminals. Ben Pivar was associate producer on the picture, which was directed by Christy Cabanne.

Mussolini Praises The Italian Navy

ROME, July 12 (AP)—Premier Mussolini praised the Italian navy's encounter with the British in the central Mediterranean saying the battle demonstrated the "Italian cast could not be approached with impunity."

In an order of the day to the admiral commander's headquarters Il Duce said:

"Naval forces of Fascist Italy June 9 victoriously sustained a first encounter with the British navy in the Mediterranean beyond Punto Stilo.

"The attempted maneuver of the English failed in the central Mediterranean and missed the objective at which it was aimed. The conscious valor of which you gave proof before a preponderant adversary has notified the enemy—with the concentrated salvos of our cannon—that the Italian coast could not be approached with impunity . . .

"The Italian people is proud of the result of this first battle. I give you with equal prudence my praises."

Stocks Irregular in Day Marked By Greatly Restricted Trading

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, July 12. (AP)—Domestic political and European war imponderables continued as speculative handicaps in today's stock market and leading issues shifted listlessly over a restricted area.

Scattered stocks managed to emerge with negligible advances but these were overbalanced by declines of fractions.

The Associated Press average of sixty issues was off .1 of a point at 41.1. In the four preceding sessions the composite had remained at 41.2. Transfers of 255,990 shares were the second smallest for the week to date and compared with 328,330 yesterday.

Pullman was one of the few losers of more than a point, seemingly reflecting action of the justice department in filing civil proceedings against this company to divorce manufacture from operation of sleeping cars.

Unchanged to lower were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, General Electric, Anaconda, Consolidated Edison, Santa Fe, Sears Roebuck and Eastman Kodak. Advances were held by Bethlehem Steel, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Great Northern, Texas Corp., Westinghouse and Woolworth.

In a spotty Curb market modest gains were posted for Pantepec, Fairchild Engineering and Aircraft, Bell Aircraft and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. A trifle under water were Electric Bond and Share, Cities Service, Lake Shore and Bath Iron Works. Volume here was around 74,000 shares against 141,000 Thursday.

Singing Feature Is Offered at Maryland

"New Moon," the latest Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy film, is showing at the Maryland theater.

"New Moon" contains romance, intrigue, melody and spectacle.

The story is placed before a colorful setting. It opens on shipboard in the year 1780, travels on to gay New Orleans during Mardi Gras time, back again for thrilling adventures on the high seas, and from there to a tropic island where a strange assortment of individuals, led by Eddy, set up their own republic from the remnants of a ship and cargo wrecked in a storm.

Miss MacDonald's songs include "Lover Come Back to Me," "Rondolet," "One Kiss," "Wanting You" and "Paree," together with a sequence in which Miss MacDonald sings Handel's 'Largo" with a choir.

Eddy's songs include "Softly As in a Morning Sunrise," "Shoe Shine Song" and the stirring "Stout Hearted Men."

Picture with Tropical Setting Is Offered

"Torrid Zone," which opens today at the New Liberty theater, brings together James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, and Ann Sheridan.

As the title indicates, "Torrid Zone" has a tropical setting, down in the banana country, where the big fruit companies own and manage vast plantations. O'Brien and Cagney are cast as rough and ready plantation bosses, while Miss Sheridan portrays a torch singer from the U.S.A., who comes to the tropics because she figures redheads will be more of a novelty there. Her adeptness at dealing cards is also an asset. When O'Brien attempts to have her shipped back to the States, Cagney, who is constantly feuding with him, helps her to stay, and from then on finds himself saddled with her. Although he pretends not to like it, he is not proof against the Sheridan charm. Another contender for Cagney's favor is blonde Helen Vinson, who plays the discontented wife of another of the plantation bosses, a role portrayed by Jerome Cowan.

New Double Bill Is Booked at Embassy

Another double bill is booked for tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

One feature will be Deanna Durbin in "First Love" with Eugene Pallette, Robert Stack and Helen Parrish.

The second feature will be Charles Bickford in "Street of Missing Men" with Harry Carey and Nana Bryant.

Closing today at the Embassy will be the double attraction consisting of Roy Rogers in "Carson City Kid" with Bob Steele and Ann Sothern and William Gargan in the first-run Metro Goldwyn Mayer picture, "Joe And Ethel Terp Call on the President".

In addition, there will be another chapter of the serial, "The Shadow".

Majestic Scenery Is Background of Film

Filmed against majestic backgrounds in the Canadian northwoods, and blending action scenes with romantic suspense, Universal's "Man From Montreal" is currently playing at the Garden theater with Richard Arlen and Andy Devine costarred.

Kay Sutton and Anne Gwynne, have the leading feminine roles. Others prominently cast include Reed Hadley, Addison Richards, Joseph Sawyer, Jerry Marlowe, Tommy Whitten, Eddy C. Waller and Lane Chandler.

Courage and daring of mounted police, and battles between outlaws and trappers, highlight the picture which reveals Arlen as the fur trapper who is innocently charged with robbery and murder. Devine, in the red-jacketed uniform of a Mountie, is the friend who helps Arlen track down the real criminals. Ben Pivar was associate producer on the picture, which was directed by Christy Cabanne.

NOTED SINGING TEAM

IN ROMANCE DRAMA

Robert Stack and Deanna Durbin, as they appear in Deanna's romantic drama, Universal's "First Love," opening tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

Bond Market Strong

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP)—Bonds clung to the uptrail today despite little support from the stock market and a fair amount of weekend profitselling in recent leaders.

The pace was slower than yesterday, yet small new gains were recorded by the Associated Press rail and industrial averages. For the carriers it was the ninth consecutive rise.

U. S. Governments idled at irregular levels, closing 6-32ds higher to 4-32ds lower.

Transactions totaled $4,393,700 face value against $4,620,550 Thursday.

Position of Treasury

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—The position of the treasury July 12:

Receipts $8,588,960.77; expenditures $23,602,394.15; net balance $1,772,399, 376.28; working balance included $1,043,784,320.84; customs receipts for month $9,836,929.70.

Receipts for fiscal year (July 1) $133,319,421.28; expenditures $354,007,738.25; excess of expenditures $220,688,316.97; Gross debt $43,057,571,226.29; decrease under previous day $5,204,659.30; gold assets $10,165,936,065.61.

Mussolini Praises The Italian Navy

ROME, July 12 (AP)—Premier Mussolini praised the Italian navy's encounter with the British in the central Mediterranean saying the battle demonstrated the "Italian cast could not be approached with impunity."

In an order of the day to the admiral commander's headquarters Il Duce said:

"Naval forces of Fascist Italy June 9 victoriously sustained a first encounter with the British navy in the Mediterranean beyond Punto Stilo.

"The attempted maneuver of the English failed in the central Mediterranean and missed the objective at which it was aimed. The conscious valor of which you gave proof before a preponderant adversary has notified the enemy—with the concentrated salvos of our cannon—that the Italian coast could not be approached with impunity . . .

"The Italian people is proud of the result of this first battle. I give you with equal prudence my praises."

Gas Buggies Exempt

WORCESTER, Mass., (AP)—A district court judge suggested amending city traffic ordinances after counsel for a double-parker informed the court that present laws refer only to carriages and horse-drawn vehicles.

Democratic Convention Previews Are Booked by Radio Networks

Other Special Programs Will Be Given Today and Sunday

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, July 12.—The Democratic convention, assembling next Monday in Chicago, goes into network preview on Saturday with several special programs. The announced list:

WABC-CBS — 6 p. m. People's Platform, leaders discussing the Democratic Platform; 9:15 Discussion of issues; also 1 p. m. Discussion.

WEAF-NBC—7:15 comment period.

WJZ-NBC—8:30 Rep. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, and others.

MBS—9:35 Postmaster General James A. Farley and others.

Uncle Ezra Returns

Uncle Ezra and his powerful little Five-watter, call letters E-Z-R-A, comes back to broadcasting with a series of half hour programs on WEAF-NBC at 9. He takes the time vacated by Bob Crosby's orchestra, which has been moved to Thursday nights. Uncle Ezra is played by Pat Barrett, who first created the role back in 1932 and has been on and off the air regularly and irregularly ever since.

Joe E. Brown, of stage and screen, will play "Elmer the Great," a baseball yarn, for the WEAF-NBC Lincoln Highway series at 9 a. m.

Irving Berlin, born in Odessa, Russia, who at the age of five came to the United States to make a name for himself as a composer of popular songs, will appear in "I'm an American, WEAF-NBC at 1 p. m.

Europe list, subject to change: NBC 7 a. m., 11 p. m.; CBS 7 a. m., 5:45, 7:55, 9:30 p. m.; WEAF-NBC 12:45, 6:15, 6:45 p. m.; MBS 5:45, 7; WJZ-NBC 9.

Horse racing: WJZ-NBC, CBS.

Do not set house plants out of doors in a pot-bound condition. Do not shift a root-bound plant from a small container to one that is considerably larger. One size larger is the general rule.

As shown in the Garden-Graph, when you find the roots of a plant have worked their way through the bottom hole of the pot be sure to repot the plant immediately. The roots should not be cut off or broken when removing the plant from the pot. Sometimes it is necessary to break the pot (providing it is an inexpensive one) to prevent tearing the roots in an effort to pull them back through the hole in the bottom of the container through which they have escaped.

During periods of hot weather mildew should be watched for, especially in hardy phloxes, dahlias and chrysanthemums. The roses also should be watched carefully and all fallen leaves picked up. Rose bushes must be kept sprayed or dusted at least once a week or after each rain, preferably with one of the combination sprays.

This is the season when sudden and unexpectedly severe attacks by both insects and plant diseases are likely to occur in the garden. Therefore a little extra vigilance is needed to insure protection of the garden.

Forget-me-nots, violas and candytufts may be cut back quite severely now to encourage new growth and flowers later on.

Pruning, mulching and watering of all recently planted woody plants, especially the conifers, is important this month. Mulches should be kept loose, and all dead or dying branches promptly removed from the plants.

Rock gardens often suffer badly from neglect during the summer months and should be kept weeded and watered.

The planting season for bearded irises starts now. Most of the leaves of irises should be cut off and the rhizomes examined for the "root rot" disease as soon as they are dug.

Kidnaps Woman, Kills Her, Tries Suicide

PETALUMA, Calif., July 12 (AP) — A ranch hand who abducted his woman employer, shot and killed her and critically wounded himself here as a pose closed in on him Sheriff Walter B. Sellmer reported.

Victims of the violence, the sheriff said, were Mrs. Louise Carminati, 48, and America Bragga, 48. The woman was found dead in Bragga's automobile. He was shot in the chest.

Search for the pair was begun after Mrs. Carminati's sister, Miss Olympia Garzoli, 53, had been found seriously wounded. She said she had been shot by Bragga, who then seized the other woman and fled.

The sheriff quoted Miss Garzoli as relating both she and her sister had censured Bragga for drinking and had planned to discharge him as a worker on their ranch.

Advice Given On Treatment Of Sunstroke

Doctor Tells What to Do in the Case of an Emergency

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Heat stroke or sunstroke is due to an upset of the heat regulating centers of the body, and the worst symtoms, the actual "stroke," loss of consciousness and collapse, are preceded by a period when the victime becomes very sensitive to the oppressive atmospheric conditions, gets pale with clammy skin, feels weak, may be nauseated. Shortly after the skin, instead of being clammy, feels hot and dry and mentality is disturbed.

The English physiologist, Haldane, has shown that if the temperature of the environment is greater than the body, heat storage may occur and a gain in body temperature of one degree an hour is possible. Humidity, that old enemy, tends to increase this heat storage.

Cooling Imperative

Treatment in these early stages will ward off the serious later stages. Cold water on the skin to reduce temperature is the indication. Ice is not so effective as cold water evaporated by a fan. The evaporation of a quart of water removes seven times as much heat as the melting of two pounds of ice.

The water should be thrown on the body with some force; from a hose, if available, or sluiced on from a bucket. This impingement of the water on the skin is a stimuliant and very valuable because the real danger of heat stroke is circulatory collapse.

Of course, remove the heat exhausted victim to the coolest place that can be found, away from the sun.

The ideal treatment is to remove all the clothes, wrap the patient in a sheet and put him on a cot on a rubber sheet. A hose is played on him from a distance of several feet. Every two or three minutes a stream of cold water is poured on his head from a distance of six to eight feet. Heat must not be extracted too suddenly and when the body temperature falls to 102 degrees Fahrenheit he is wrapped in blankets.

Exhausts Victim

Anyone who handles one of these patients is liable to report that he is "sizzling hot" to touch. Sometimes the body temperature gets as high as 109 degrees Fahrenheit.

One heat stroke or attack of heat exhaustion makes the victim heat-sensitive, and he must be careful of hot weather ever afterward.

It only needs the newspaper headlines to tell us that the condition may be fatal. A bad heart or kidneys naturally predisposes to heat stroke, and people who know they have such disability should be doubly careful on hot days.

DICK TRACY—First Interest

Democratic Convention Previews Are Booked by Radio Networks

Other Special Programs Will Be Given Today and Sunday

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, July 12.—The Democratic convention, assembling next Monday in Chicago, goes into network preview on Saturday with several special programs. The announced list:

WABC-CBS — 6 p. m. People's Platform, leaders discussing the Democratic Platform; 9:15 Discussion of issues; also 1 p. m. Discussion.

WEAF-NBC—7:15 comment period.

WJZ-NBC—8:30 Rep. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, and others.

MBS—9:35 Postmaster General James A. Farley and others.

Uncle Ezra Returns

Uncle Ezra and his powerful little Five-watter, call letters E-Z-R-A, comes back to broadcasting with a series of half hour programs on WEAF-NBC at 9. He takes the time vacated by Bob Crosby's orchestra, which has been moved to Thursday nights. Uncle Ezra is played by Pat Barrett, who first created the role back in 1932 and has been on and off the air regularly and irregularly ever since.

Joe E. Brown, of stage and screen, will play "Elmer the Great," a baseball yarn, for the WEAF-NBC Lincoln Highway series at 9 a. m.

Irving Berlin, born in Odessa, Russia, who at the age of five came to the United States to make a name for himself as a composer of popular songs, will appear in I'm an American, WEAF-NBC at 1 p. m.

Europe list, subject to change: NBC 7 a. m., 11 p. m.; CBS 7 a. m., 5:45, 7:55, 9:30 p. m.; WEAF-NBC 12:45, 6:15, 6:45 p. m.; MBS 5:45, 7; WJZ-NBC 9.

Horse racing: WJZ-NBC, CBS.

Legion Post To Close Campaign For Members

Farrady Post No. 24 Has Enrolled 232 Members This Year

FROSTBURG, July 12 — Farrady Post, No. 24, American Legion, this city, whose membership committee achieved a record this year by enrolling 232 members, will hold two important meetings next week, one of which will mark the close of the 1940 membership campaign.

The first meeting of the week will be held Monday, July 15, at 8 o'clock in Legion hall, Mechanic street, when the annual election of officers will be held. Delegates and alternates to the State convention in Cumberland, August 21, 22 and 23, will be chosen.

The celebration in observance of the closing of the membership will be held Tuesday evening, July 15, and will be featured with an address by State Commander James Fitzgerald, a floor show and refreshments.

William Festerman, commander of the post, is head of the committees arranging both events.

Bake Sale

The Young People's League of the Eckhart Methodist church will hold a bake sale in the basement of the church Saturday, July 20. The committee in charge is seeking donations to be delivered on the date of the sale. The proceeds of the sale will be applied to the treasury of the league.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wright, Mill street, entertained Monday evening in honor of their son, Joseph, who was five years old. The guests included Elsie Mae Whetstone, Sall Ann Krietzburg, Catherine Giles, Jerry and James Muir, Dale and Duane Smith, Samuel Scarpelli, Frances and Mary Catherine McDonald, Yvonne Goodrich, Dolores, Robert, Joanne and Suzanne Wright, Mrs. John McDonald, Mrs. Patrick O'Brien, Harold and Veronica O'Brien and Bett Narey.

The July business meeting of the Fellowship Group of First Methodist church, held Monday evening at the home of Thomas Miller, Borden Mines, was followed by a weiner roast. 15 members attended.

Holt Names Andrews Banking Commissioner

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 12 (AP) — Governor Holt announced the appointment today of R. Carl Andrews, defeated candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the May 14 primary, as State Bank Commissioner.

The appointment was made effective immediately but is subject to approval by the state Senate, which will not be in session until January.

Andrews will succeed George Ward, who resigned last December to become trust officer of the Charleston National Bank.

Since Ward's resignation the office has been filled by H. P. Brightwell as acting commissioner.

Andrews, who was defeated for the gubernatorial nomination by Senator M. M. Neely, was named to a term expiring March 31, 1943.

Andrews retired June 1 as Democratic State Chairman at the party's reorganization meeting in Parkersburg which elected A. Hale Watkins of Fairmont.

In his campaign for the gubernatorial nomination, Andrews had the active support of Governor Holt.

BACK INTO THE LIGHT

Officers Named At Mt. Savage

Past Councilors Select Mrs. Florence Burrall as President

MT. SAVAGE, July 12—The Past Councilors organization, No. 20, Daughters of America, held their annual meeting for election of officers Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Martha Herring. The following were elected:

Presdient, Mrs. Florence Burrall; vice-president, Mrs. Hazel Uhl; secretary, Mrs. Etta Mae Porter; treasurer, Mrs. Minnie Sourbrine, Mrs. Evelyn Blank, Mrs. Martha Herring and Mrs. Anna Mary Snyder were selected to serve on the sick committee.

After the business meeting a social was held during which refreshments were served. Members present were Mesdames Laura Smith, Florence Burrall, Thelma Uhl, Minnie Sourbrine, Hazel Uhl, Anna Mary Snyder, Elva Lashley, Edna Uhl, Margaret Blank, Etta Mae Porter, Rosetta Adams and Miss Mary Margaret Herring and Miss Gladys Adams.

Aid Has Social

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church held a social last night in the recreation hall. A dramatic program was presented. Miss Geraldine Lewis represented "Columbia" and sang "God Bless America" and Misses Sally Black, Rose Aldridge, LaVerne Lashley and Alice Pfister formed a tableau in the background. They were dressed in long white gowns and carried American flags.

After this a style show and contest was presented with Billy Best and Franklin Pfister acting as judges. Participants in the show were Misses Mary Ann Lewis, LaVerne Lashley, Norma Lee Blank, Rose Aldridge, Alice Pfister, Sally Black, Glendora Uhl, Joyce Burch, Jolene Hess, Wanda Lee Farrell, Carol Beal and Elaine Hess.

Prizes were awarded to Carol Beal and Elaine Hess for displaying what the well-dressed lady of five wears to bed.

Misses Glendora Uhl and Joyce Burch sang "Playmates" and other groups sang "Oh, Johnny" and "In an Old Dutch Garden." The program was concluded with a ventriloquist act featuring Junior Voit and Billy Best. Piano accompaniments were played by Mrs. Florence Burrall and the program was directed by Mrs. Etta Mae Porter.

Due to rain it was impossible to have a lawn fete as planned and instead refreshments were served in the rear of the recreation hall.

James Hipp, 35, Dies Suddenly At Meyersdale

Attack of Acute Indigestion Is Fatal to Gas Station Worker

MEYERSDALE, Pa., July 12.—James Hipp, 35, working on the night shift at a local gas station on Grant street, last night suffered an attack of acute indigestion and died before a physicial could be summoned.

He was a son of the late Charles Hipp who died about thirty years ago, and Mrs. Clara Hipp, North street, where he also resided.

Surviving besides his mother are two sisters, Mrs. Robert Spence, High street, and Miss Isabel Hipp, Pittsburgh.

Electrical Storm

A severe electrical storm passed over this section last evening and among the casualties were Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Walker, who reside on a farm about three miles north of Meyersdale, who were stricken by a bolt of lightning and severely burned. Latest advices are to the effect that both will revover.

Church Conference

The sesqui-centennial commemorative conference of the Mennonite churches of the southern section of Somerset county and several sections in Garrett county, Md., began this morning in the Springs Mennonite church, located a few miles south of Salisbury, and will continue with morning ,afternoon and evening sessions, through Sunday evening.

The event will commemorate the organization of the first Mennonite congregation in the Casselman valley 150 years ago. It is believed, however, that local history of the church antedates the year 1790, but the members of the sect have recorded evidence for that year in a will recorded in Somerset by one Jacob Seiler, "a minister of the society called Mennonites," and dated February 20, 1790. It is probable that the church locally dates back at least ten years earlier, or 1780, but since the later date is the first recorded one, the members have chosen to accept the same.

Woman Is Held After Accident

Betty Michaels Will Be Given Hearing before Magistrate

KEYSER, W. Va., July 12—A Keyser woman was awaiting trial in Justice of the Peace court here today on a drunken driving charge, preferred against her by state police after her car crashed into another automobile near here last night.

Betty Michaels was arrested after her automobile and a car driven by Olen Marks wrecked on the Keyser-Fort Ashby road, near the Reeves service station late yesterday. No one was injured.

Two other Keyser residents were assessed $50 fines on similar charges here today. They were Charles Byford and Carnell Lewis.

Lewis was arrested on route 50 near Ridgeville by State Trooper R. R. Karickhoff, and arraigned this morning before Justice of the Peace C. C. Compton.

Byford, who was taken into custody here last night by Chief of Police James E. Leatherman appeared in Police court before Judge A. A. Jordan.

Four Persons Hurt

Four members of a Cleveland, O., family were admitted to Potomac Valley hospital here this morning for treatment for scratches and bruises sustained when their car left the road and overturned on route 50, between the top of Knobley mountain and New Creek.

Emory J. Merkle, driver, Mrs. Merkle, and two children, were en route to Cleveland when the automobile skidded on the slippery road.

Firemen Coming

Fire Chief E. Wade Thomas said today that fifteen fire companies and two bands so far have accepted invitations to come to Keyser Saturday, July 29, when the Mineral County Volunteer Firemen's Association will hold a convention here.

Among the fire-fighting organizations to appear here are groups from as far away as Grafton and Elkins, he said. The Moose band of Cumberland and the Oakland band also will appear in the morning parade.

Among the speakers who will address the Mineral county firemen in the K. of P. armory at 9:30 next Saturday morning are: Potomac State President E. E. Church, State Fire Marshal Fred B. Watkins and

Westernport Men Win $135 Cash At Convention

Winning Company One of Finest Drill Teams in the State

LONACONING, July 12—Potomac Valley Fire Company, No. 2, of Westernport, today carried away three first prizes amounting to $135 and thus kept the money in circulation in Allegany county, while Westminster returned home $75 richer than when they departed three days ago for the forty-seventh annual convention which will come to a close here tomorrow. Pennsylvania companies divided $50.

There was no question as to the Westernport company's right to the big money—that was the concensus of opinion of the visitors, who saw one of the finest drill teams in the state perform before a throng that taxed every nook and corner, window cills and poles. This team has come to the front in the last few years under the captaincy of Claude Kight, who displayed his ability as a most able drill master.

Drill Team Wins Two

This same drill team, which was uncontested in the drill contest, was awarded two first prizes in the parade—one for making the best appearance in line and the other for being the company best drilled. The company drilled along the line of march and despite this grueling task the Westernport boys had enough pep left in late afternoon to put on a colorful and snappy drill exhibition on Main street. The prize money was $50, $35 and $50, for a total of $135.

Thirty-nine men participated in the drill contest and parade and were nattily attired in green uniforms trimmed in gold, which made a striking appearance. Heading these drillers in the parade was the Westernport band, which received honorable mention.

The Westernport fire department, accompanied by the Westminster band, won $50 in the parade for the company coming the longest distance with band. Later, the band was adjudged winner for being the best band in the parade and was awarded $25.

Today's parade, which was in four divisions, was most colorful and was one of the finest seen here in years. It took over one hour for the marchers to pass the reviewing stand on Main street on which fifteen judges were seated—six women and nine men. The women, Miss Margaret Hepburn, Mrs. Fred T. Bowden, Sr., and Mrs. Althea Stakem, judged the drum corps, while Miss Edith Holder, Mrs. Henry Herron, and Mrs. D. Clarkson Laird, wife of the Lonaconing mayor, judged the Ladies' Auxiliaries.

The men, Patrick Nolan, Hugh Moses and Lloyd Durst, judged the best band in line and the company making the best appearance from out of the state; Lowell M. Sowers, Alvin H. Ternent and James Steele, judged the company with the most men in line and the best drilled company in line; James Park, John R. Hamilton, Gorman E. Getty, D.D., judged the company making the best appearance and the best piece of fire fighting apparatus in line.

Prize Winners

So difficult was the tabulating of votes that the results were not known until one hour later. Other prizes awarded in the parade were:

Company coming the longest distance, Cambridge, $35; company with the most men in line (76), Hagerstown, $25; auxiliary with the most women in line (35), Frederick, $25; best piece of apparatus in line, Reisterstown, $25; oldest piece of apparatus in line, Borden Shaft, $25. (This truck formerly was owned by Goodwill Fire Company, No. 1, and was purchased March 16, 1921, and was sold several months ago to the newly organized company).

Oldest fireman in parade, S. Pressman, Frostburg, $5; company

Plans Made by Midland Firemen For Street Bazaar in August

MIDLAND, July 12 — Preparations for the annual street bazaar, sponsored by the Midland Fire Department, advanced another notch with a meeting held this week by volunteer women workers. The women will do the work in conjunction with the supper August 1 and also in the outside refreshment stand the three nights of the bazaar.

With Richard Hotchkiss, representing the fire company, in charge of the meeting it was decided to canvass this section for donations to prepare the supper and stock the refreshment stand. Mrs. Richard Elliott was chosen by the women to take charge of the soliciting arrangements and appointed the solicitors for the different sections.

Mrs. Charlotte McAlpine and Mrs. Jessie Stevens will canvass Koontz Addition, Bertha McMillan and Jennie Graham will be in the O'Mara avenue section, Mrs. John Grimes and Mrs. Henry Eisentrout, the business section, Mrs. Thomas Gray and Mrs. John Bryson or Mrs. John Cullen will have the Railroad street section, Mrs. Richard Elliott and Mrs. Patrick Stakem will have the Paradise street section.

Mrs. Robert Miller and Mrs. Douglas Somerville will have the Miller section, Mrs. Jane Plummer and Mrs. Margaret Lancaster will have the Miller section, Mrs. Jane Plummer and Mrs. Margaret Lancaster will have the Gilmore section, Mrs. Harry Sulser will have the Ocean section and Mrs. William Winner and Mrs. James Murray will take the Klondike section.

Donations of various things will be requested by the solicitors. The plan of forming a ladies auxiliary to the company will be polled at the same time. Most of the solicitors will be at their various sections during the next week.

W. Va., Biological Expedition Is Making Studies in Grant County

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 12 (AP)—Four members of the West Virginia delegation in Congress declared themselves in favor today of a third term for President Roosevelt while Senator Holt, critic of the New Deal, expressed opposition.

In telegrams answering a query by Northern West Virginia Democratic leaders prior to the Democratic National Convention, U. S. Senator M. M. Neely and Reps. Randolph, Kee and Edmiston said they wanted the president to continue in office.

Reps. George Johnson of Parkersburg and Joe L. Smith of Beckley did not reply to the inquiry.

Holt, in a wire made public by the questioners, declared:

"No president should accept a third term, that is, if he believes in the continuation of democracy in this country.

"Foundation stones are being swept away throughout the world. It is no time for us to join in the attack. Democracy and liberty have lost ground as executive power — one-man rule—has gained."

His Fairmont colleague in the Senate and the party's gubernatorial nominate asserted:

"Franklin D. Roosevelt should not seek renomination as president; the American people should demand that he accept it."

Jennings Randolph of Elkins, John Kee of Bluefield and Andrew Edmiston of Weston expressed similar views, some declaring the world condition should compel the president's renomination.

Edmiston added that "in my opinion President Roosevelt is a candidate for reelection x x x."

MOOREFIELD, July 12 — The West Virginia University Biological Expedition is camping at the town bulwarks this week making studies of biological and zoological specimens in this section.

The expedition, which annually makes a six weeks trip in various parts of the state, consists of two professors and their wives and fifteen students. In addition there are visitors and camp personnel.

Dr. L. H. Taylor is the zoology professor and Dr. Aaron J. Sharp is the professor of biology. The expedition in university trucks and busses erect their own tents, carry laboratory equipment and have their own light plant which enables it to hold classes at night. This is the first visit to Hardy county since 1931.

The expedition will go to Kingwood from here. Specimens are gathered in the morning and microscopic study and classifications are carried on in the afternoon. The expedition carries it's own camp kitchen and commissary.

In addition to the two instructors and their wives the members of the camp are Arlie Blizzerd, Robert Grimes, Miss Hazel Case, Claude E. DeHaven, Miss Elberta Currey, George Hoylman, Miss Gladys Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ludwig, James Emery, William B. Fox, Caddie D. Mathews, Aaron Rapkin, Jr., Virgil A. Sarrett, Wayland F. Slayton, Dana Lee Stike, Miss Cornelia Tyler, James Waldron Watson, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Homel and Miss Grace Boggess.

Most of the students are graduate students or teachers taking summer work.

Holt Names Andrews Banking Commissioner

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 12 (AP) — Governor Holt announced the appointment today of R. Carl Andrews, defeated candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the May 14 primary, as State Bank Commissioner.

The appointment was made effective immediately but is subject to approval by the state Senate, which will not be in session until January.

Andrews will succeed George Ward, who resigned last December to become trust officer of the Charleston National Bank.

Since Ward's resignation the office has been filled by H. P. Brightwell as acting commissioner.

Andrews, who was defeated for the gubernatorial nomination by Senator M. M. Neely, was named to the term expiring March 31, 1943.

Andrews retired June 1 as Democratic State Chairman at the party's reorganization meeting in Parkersburg which elected A. Hale Watkins of Fairmont.

In his campaign for the gubernatorial nomination, Andrews had the active support of Governor Holt.

BACK INTO THE LIGHT

After two years in England, where blackouts are a nightly affair, Jack Harrison, 17, and his sister, Rona, 16, seem happy to return to Oaklyn, N. J., where lights shine all night. The children, natives of England, had lived in the United States ten years before visiting their birthplace.

MT. SAVAGE, July 12—The Past Councilors organization, No. 20, Daughters of America, held their annual meeting for election of officers Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Martha Herring. The following were elected:

President, Mrs. Florence Burrall; vice-president, Mrs. Hazel Uhl; secretary, Mrs. Etta Mae Porter; treasurer, Mrs. Minnie Sourbrine, Mrs. Evelyn Blank, Mrs. Martha Herring and Mrs. Anna Mary Snyder were selected to serve on the sick committee.

After the business meeting a social was held during which refreshments were served. Members present were Mesdames Laura Smith, Florence Burrall, Thelma Uhl, Minnie Sourbrine, Hazel Uhl, Anna Mary Snyder, Elva Lashley, Edna Uhl, Margaret Blank, Etta Mae Porter, Rosetta Adams and Miss Mary Margaret Herring and Miss Gladys Adams.

Aid Has Social

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church held a social last night in the recreation hall. A dramatic program was presented. Miss Geraldine Lewis represented "Columbia" and sang "God Bless America" and Misses Sally Black, Rose Aldridge, LaVerne Lashley and Alice Pfister formed a tableau in the background. They were dressed in long white gowns and carried American flags.

After this a style show and contest was presented with Billy Best and Franklin Pfister acting as judges. Participants in the show were Misses Mary Ann Lewis, LaVerne Lashley, Norma Lee Blank, Rose Aldridge, Alice Pfister, Sally Slack, Glendora Uhl, Joyce Burch, Jolene Hess, Wanda Lee Farrell, Carol Beal and Elaine Hess.

Prizes were awarded to Carol Beal and Elaine Hess for displaying what the well-dressed lady of five wears to bed.

Misses Glendora Uhl and Joyce Burch sang "Playmates" and other groups sang "Oh, Johnny" and "In an Old Dutch Garden." The program was concluded with a ventriloquist act featuring Junior Volt and Billy Best. Piano accompaniments were played by Mrs. Florence Burrall and the program was directed by Mrs. Etta Mae Porter.

Due to rain it was impossible to have a lawn fete as planned and instead refreshments were served in the rear of the recreation hall.

Church Conference

The sesqui-centennial commemorative conference of the Mennonite churches of the southern section of Somerset county and several sections in Garrett county, Md., began this morning in the Springs Mennonite church, located a few miles south of Salisbury, and will continue with morning ,afternoon and evening sessions, through Sunday evening.

The event will commemorate the organization of the first Mennonite congregation in the Casselman valley 150 years ago. It is believed, however, that local history of the church antedates the year 1790, but the members of the sect have recorded evidence for that year in a will recorded in Somerset by one Jacob Seiler, "a minister of the society called Mennonites," and dated February 20, 1790. It is probable that the church locally dates back at least ten years earlier, or 1780, but since the later date is the first recorded one, the members have chosen to accept the same.

Epworth League Rally Is Held At Grantsville

Miss Olive Cook of Frostburg Delivers Principal Address

GRANTSVILLE, July 12—Eighty persons attended the Epworth League Youth rally which was held at the Methodist church here last night. The affair included the Epworth League Societies in the Oakland Zone of the Moorefield District and representatives were present from Cranesville, Mt. Lake, Friendsville, Oakland, State Line, Johnson Emmanuel, Mt. Zion and New Germany churches as well as Grantsville. A number of visitors were also in attendance.

Mrs. A. Emmons Warnick, Devotional Advisor of the local society, introduced Miss Olive Cook, of Frostburg, who was the speaker of the evening. Miss Cook is president of the Cumberland Sub-District of Methodist Youth, and has been active in Epworth League work for about five years. Her topic was, "What Epworth League Means to Me and You". Brief remarks were also made by the Rev. Minor Sprague, Oakland, the Rev. R. L. Greynolds, Friendsville, and the Rev. T. H. Taylor, Cranesville, visiting ministers.

The Junior and Senior choirs, under the respective direction of Mrs. Leonard B. Schaefer and Mrs. William E. Tarbell, and Miss Rita Edwards, organist, gave several musical selections. Others participating in the program were Raymond Crowe, of Johnson Emmanuel church, who has recently graduated from a Theological school in Virginia, the Rev. D. R. Carder, pastor of the local church, Elizabeth Yommer, Jaunita Carder, and Mary and Helen Houck. At the conclusion of a business session conducted by the Rev. Garrett H. Evans, Mt. Lake Park, Associate Youth Director, a social hour was enjoyed during which refreshments were served by the Grantsville league. The next Rally will be held at Friendsville.

Butler Rites

Funeral services for Mrs. Hampton Butler were held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Jennings Lutheran church. The Rev. Samuel D. Sigler, pastor of the Grantsville Lutheran church, who officiated, was assited by the Rev. A. C. Curran, pastor of the Jennings church. Six grandsons of the deceased served as pallbearers. They were Rodney Patton, Harry Patton, Dale Patton, Robert Butler, Robert Yommer and William Yommer. Interment was in the Grantsville cemetery. Mrs. Butler's death, which came late Tuesday night, after a months illness, was a shock to the entire community where she has always been held in the highest esteem.

Swauger Is Fined

State Police Officer Carl G. Storm and Constable Daniel W. Hershberger arrested Hubert Swauger, of near Grantsville, yesterday on a petty larceny charge. Swauger, who is employed at Meyersdale, is alleged to have stolen a radiator from a hoisting machine belonging to the Black Diamond Coal Company which operates here. The theft occurred June 28. Swauger is reported to have admitted taking the radiator, which he said he sold to a junk dealer for the sum of eighty cents. After paying a fine of $10 and costs, and paying for the cost of the radiator, which amounted to $8, he concluded his venture had not proven very profitable.

Woman Is Held After Accident

Betty Michaels Will Be Given Hearing before Magistrate

KEYSER, W. Va., July 12.—A Keyser woman was awaiting trial in Justice of the Peace court here today on a drunken driving charge, preferred against her by state police after her car crashed into another automobile near here last night.

Betty Michaels was arrested after her automobile and a car driven by Olen Marks wrecked on the Keyser-Fort Ashby road, near the Reeves service station late yesterday. No one was injured.

Two other Keyser residents were assessed $50 fines on similar charges here today. They were Charles Byford and Carnell Lewis.

Lewis was arrested on route 50 near Ridgeville by State Trooper R. R. Karickhoff, and arraigned this morning before Justice of the Peace C. C. Compton.

Byford, who was taken into custody here last night by Chief of Police James E. Leatherman appeared in Police court before Judge A. A. Jordan.

Four Persons Hurt

Four members of a Cleveland, O., family were admitted to Potomac Valley hospital here this morning for treatment for scratches and bruises sustained when their car left the road and overturned on route 50, between the top of Knobley mountain and New Creek.

Emory J. Merkle, driver, Mrs. Merkle, and two children, were en route to Cleveland when the automobile skidded on the slippery road.

Firemen Coming

Fire Chief E. Wade Thomas said today that fifteen fire companies and two bands so far have accepted invitations to come to Keyser Saturday, July 29, when the Mineral County Volunteer Firemen's Association will hold a convention here.

Among the fire-fighting organizations to appear here are groups from as far away as Grafton and Elkins, he said. The Moose band of Cumberland and the Oakland band also will appear in the morning parade.

Among the speakers who will address the Mineral county firemen in the K. of P. armory at 9:30 next Saturday morning are: Potomac State President E. E. Church, State Fire Marshal Fred B. Watkins and

Westernport Men Win $135 Cash At Convention

Winning Company One of Finest Drill Teams in the State

LONACONING, July 12—Potomac Valley Fire Company, No. 2, of Westernport, today carried away three first prizes amounting to $135 and thus kept the money in circulation in Allegany county, while Westminster returned home $75 richer than when they departed three days ago for the forty-seventh annual convention which will come to a close here tomorrow. Pennsylvania companies divided $50.

There was no question as to the Westernport company's right to the big money—that was the concensus of opinion of the visitors, who saw one of the finest drill teams in the state perform before a throng that taxed every nook and corner, window cills and poles. This team has come to the front in the last few years under the captaincy of Claude Kight, who displayed his ability as a most able drill master.

Drill Team Wins Two

This same drill team, which was uncontested in the drill contest, was awarded two first prizes in the parade—one for making the best appearance in line and the other for being the company best drilled. The company drilled along the line of march and despite this grueling task the Westernport boys had enough pep left in late afternoon to put on a colorful and snappy drill exhibition on Main street. The prize money was $50, $35 and $50, for a total of $135.

Thirty-nine men participated in the drill contest and parade and were nattily attired in green uniforms trimmed in gold, which made a striking appearance. Heading these drillers in the parade was the Westernport band, which received honorable mention.

The Westernport fire department, accompanied by the Westminster band, won $50 in the parade for the company coming the longest distance with band. Later, the band was adjudged winner for being the best band in the parade and was awarded $25.

Today's parade, which was in four divisions, was most colorful and was one of the finest seen here in years. It took over one hour for the marchers to pass the reviewing stand on Main street on which fifteen judges were seated—six women and nine men. The women, Miss Margaret Hepburn, Mrs. Fred T. Bowden, Sr., and Mrs. Althea Stakem, judged the drum corps, while Miss Edith Holder, Mrs. Henry Herron, and Mrs. D. Clarkson Laird, wife of the Lonaconing mayor, judged the Ladies' Auxiliaries.

The men, Patrick Nolan, Hugh Moses and Lloyd Durst, judged the best band in line and the company making the best appearance from out of the state; Lowell M. Sowers, Alvin H. Ternent and James Steele, judged the company with the most men in line and the best drilled company in line; James Park, John R. Hamilton, Gorman E. Getty, D.D., judged the company making the best appearance and the best piece of fire fighting apparatus in line.

So difficult was the tabulating of votes that the results were not known until one hour later. Other prizes awarded in the parade were:

Company coming the longest distance, Cambridge, $35; company with the most men in line (76), Hagerstown, $25; auxiliary with the most women in line (35), Frederick, $25; best piece of apparatus in line, Reisterstown, $25; oldest piece of apparatus in line, Borden Shaft, $25. (This truck formerly was owned by Goodwill Fire Company, No. 1, and was purchased March 16, 1921, and was sold several months ago to the newly organized company).

Oldest fireman in parade, S. Pressman, Frostburg, $5; company

W. Va., Biological Expedition Is Making Studies in Grant County

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 12 (AP)—Four members of the West Virginia delegation in Congress declared themselves in favor today of a third term for President Roosevelt while Senator Holt, critic of the New Deal, expressed opposition.

In telegrams answering a query from Northern West Virginia Democratic leaders prior to the Democratic National Convention, U. S. Senator M. M. Neely and Reps. Randolph, Kee and Edmiston said they wanted the president to continue in office.

Reps. George Johnson of Parkersburg and Joe L. Smith of Beckley did not reply to the inquiry.

Holt, in a wire made public by the questioners, declared:

"No president should accept a third term, that is, if he believes in the continuation of democracy in this country.

"Foundation stones are being swept away throughout the world. It is no time for us to join in the attack. Democracy and liberty have lost ground as executive power — one-man rule—has gained."

His Fairmont colleague in the Senate and the party's gubernatorial nominate asserted:

"Franklin D. Roosevelt should not seek renomination as president; the American people should demand that he accept it."

Jennings Randolph of Elkins, John Kee of Bluefield and Andrew Edmiston of Weston expressed similar views, some declaring the world condition should compel the president's renomination.

Edmiston added that "in my opinion President Roosevelt is a candidate for reelection x x x."

making best appearance from out of the state, Salisbury (Pa.), $25; company coming the longest distance from out of the state, Meyersdale, (Pa.), $25; drum corps, Kelly Mansfield Post, No. 52, American Legion, of Piedmont, W. Va., first, $15, and second, Moose Drum Corps, No. 212, of Hagerstown, $10. The auxiliary coming the longest distance has not been decided upon by the committee.

Twenty-four pieces of fire fighting apparatus and a Rescue Squad ambulance was in the three-mile long parade, together with approximately 1,000 marchers and 300 others that rode in automobiles, representing auxiliaries.

Frostburg Band Wins

Frostburg's Arion Band, under the direction of R. Hilleary Lancaster, was judged the winner in the band contest. The Westminster band, the only other contender, was directed by Paul Crouse.

The bands competed under rules in which each band would play a number of its own selection and then a number selected by J. Bradley Marshall, director of the Lonaconing City Band, and committee head.

For the first number, the Westminster musicians played a march, "El Captain," by Sousa. Frostburg, for its first number, played "Troopers Tribunal," by Henry Fillmore. The overture "Lisha", by G. Holmes, was the unfamiliar number played by each band.

John Hornberger, a member of the United States Naval Academy Band of Annapolis, one of the judges in the contest, led the winning band in the fox trot, "The Beer Barrel Polka", and William Malcolm, of Barton, veteran band master, and John R. McPartland, local piano teacher, were the other judges. As a climaxing feature, both bands combined and, under the direction of J. Bradley Marshall, they played "Stars and Stripes for Ever".

The Arion band is one of the oldest in Maryland. It has been in existence for sixty-three years and has had only four directors. Conrad Nickel, the first director, served for five years and was succeeded by John Miller. He served four years; then came George Vogtman, the veteran of the lot, who served forty-four years. Mr. Lancaster, the present director, has served for the last ten years, and remarked following the decision of the judges:

"The band responded perfectly and gave me the utmost attention. We all are sure pleased to have been adjudged the winners".

Business Session Ends

The convention business came to a close this morning with the re-election of Roy L. Morgan, of Annapolis, as chairman of the Board of Trustees. Mr. Morgan's term will expire in 1944. C. C. Larrimore, Easton, who will hold office through next year, was elected secretary. Other members of the board are E. J. C. Raney, of Kensington, and Leo Moore, of Havre de Grace.

Mr. Larrimore, who succeeded Harry L. Smith, of Cumberland, as secretary, urged that all departments that have claims for disability incurred in fire fighting, be sent to him direct, so that they may be properly entered on the books and paid.

Percy S. T. Reinwall, past president of the association, paid high tribute to Lonaconing at the conclusion of his term today. He said:

"I think the firemen's convention in Lonaconing was one of the best I have ever attended in my career as a volunteer fireman and as a delegate at numerous other conventions.

"In behalf of the association, which has gone on record with a unanimous vote, I also thank Goodwill Fire Company No. 1 and the good people of Lonaconing for their splendid hospitality and co-operation in making this convention one of the best. I hope to return soon again."

Saturday, will be "Get-Away Day" although many of the delegates departed tonight. Tomorrow's program will include a water battle at 6:30 p. m., between a combined team from Mt. Savage and LaVale and the Western Pennsylvania champions—Glassport, Pa. Throughout the day the street carnival will continue climaxed by a dance in the evening at Firemen's Armory. In the afternoon Eckhart will play Lonaconing in a league game at community park.

Although overcast skies threatened to ruin the three-day celebration, the weather was ideal for both marchers and merry-makers. The mercury continued to drop toward evening.

General Chairman George Eichhorn tonight extended his thanks to the recently organized Junior Chamber of Commerce, which body has taken an active part in the celebration.

Tucker County Camp Is Open

Church Groups and Other Organizations Invited To Use It

PARSONS, W. Va., July 12. The State Young Men's Christian Association, under the supervision of the state secretary, Frank M. Liddle, and wife, is located at Horseshoe, near the Horseshoe Forest camp, eleven miles northeast of Parsons. The facilities and camp provides spacious accommodations for ninety-six campers and a complete staff. All lodges are screened and curtained for comfort. The dining hall has a large fireplace and both dining room and kitchen are well equipped.

The camp is open to all church groups, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, 4-H groups, etc. There will be no effort to dominate groups going to camp under their own leadership except to protect the interest of the campers themselves.

Lodge Meets

The Parsons Order of Loyal Moose, lodge No. 804, held its first regular weekly meeting in the new lodge hall, Thursday, at 8 o'clock, with W. E. Baker, Elkins as principal speaker. His topic was a discussion of the Moose National Convention, held recently at Des Moines, Iowa. He represented the Elkins Order of Moose at the convention.

The Elkins degree team was present and conferred degree on eight new members of the Parsons lodge. They are, Don Rennix, Stan Lambert, Bob Lipscomb, John Goss, W. C. Curran, Forrest Armentrout, Dave Jolly and Gaston Poling. Six members were awarded gold membership pins, M. E. Hilliard, past governor, Ernest L. Moon, governor, Earl Griffith, W. W. making best appearance from out of the state, Salisbury (Pa.), $25; company coming the longest distance from out of the state, Meyersdale, (Pa.), $25; drum corps, Kelly Mansfield Post, No. 52, American Legion, of Piedmont, W. Va., first, $15, and second, Moose Drum Corps, No. 212, of Hagerstown, $10. The auxiliary coming the longest distance has not been decided upon by the committee.

Twenty-four pieces of fire fighting apparatus and a Rescue Squad ambulance was in the three-mile long parade, together with approximately 1,000 marchers and 300 others that rode in automobiles, representing auxiliaries.

Frostburg Band Wins

Frostburg's Arion Band, under the direction of R. Hilleary Lancaster, was judged the winner in the band contest. The Westminster band, the only other contender, was directed by Paul Crouse.

The bands competed under rules in which each band would play a number of its own selection and then a number selected by J. Bradley Marshall, director of the Lonaconing City Band, and committee head.

For the first number, the Westminster musicians played a march, "El Captain," by Sousa. Frostburg, for its first number, played "Troopers Tribunal," by Henry Fillmore. The overture "Lisha", by G. Holmes, was the unfamiliar number played by each band.

John Hornberger, a member of the United States Naval Academy Band of Annapolis, one of the judges in the contest, led the winning band in the fox trot, "The Beer Barrel Polka", and William Malcolm, of Barton, veteran band master, and John R. McPartland, local piano teacher, were the other judges. As a climaxing feature, both bands combined and, under the direction of J. Bradley Marshall, they played "Stars and Stripes for Ever".

The Arion band is one of the oldest in Maryland. It has been in existence for sixty-three years and has had only four directors. Conrad Nickel, the first director, served for five years and was succeeded by John Miller. He served four years; then came George Vogtman, the veteran of the lot, who served forty-four years. Mr. Lancaster, the present director, has served for the last ten years, and remarked following the decision of the judges:

"The band responded perfectly and gave me the utmost attention. We all are sure pleased to have been adjudged the winners".

Business Session Ends

The convention business came to a close this morning with the re-election of Roy L. Morgan, of Annapolis, as chairman of the Board of Trustees. Mr. Morgan's term will expire in 1944. C. C. Larrimore, Easton, who will hold office through next year, was elected secretary. Other members of the board are E. J. C. Raney, of Kensington, and Leo Moore, of Havre de Grace.

Mr. Larrimore, who succeeded Harry L. Smith, of Cumberland, as secretary, urged that all departments that have claims for disability incurred in fire fighting, be sent to him direct, so that they may be properly entered on the books and paid.

Percy S. T. Reinwall, past president of the association, paid high tribute to Lonaconing at the conclusion of his term today. He said:

"I think the firemen's convention in Lonaconing was one of the best I have ever attended in my career as a volunteer fireman and as a delegate at numerous other conventions.

"In behalf of the association, which has gone on record with a unanimous vote, I also thank Goodwill Fire Company No. 1 and the good people of Lonaconing for their splendid hospitality and co-operation in making this convention one of the best. I hope to return soon again."

Saturday, will be "Get-Away Day" although many of the delegates departed tonight. Tomorrow's program will include a water battle at 6:30 p. m., between a combined team from Mt. Savage and LaVale and the Western Pennsylvania champions—Glassport, Pa. Throughout the day the street carnival will continue climaxed by a dance in the evening at Firemen's Armory. In the afternoon Eckhart will play Lonaconing in a league game at community park.

Although overcast skies threatened to ruin the three-day celebration, the weather was ideal for both marchers and merry-makers. The mercury continued to drop toward evening.

General Chairman George Eichhorn tonight extended his thanks to the recently organized Junior Chamber of Commerce, which body has taken an active part in the celebration.

Taylor Is Taken To Grafton by Authorities

Garage Mechanic Said To Be Implicated in 15 Robberies

OAKLAND, Md., July 12, Ivan Taylor, garage mechanic of Grafton, W. Va., who was arrested here, Sunday morning, has been turned over to Preston County, (W. Va.) authorities. West Virginia police said Taylor confessed to participating in at least fifteen robberies in Preston and Taylor counties.

He was arrested here when the owner of a truck caught him about to remove a tire from the vehicle.

Ed Schmidt, owner of the truck, captured Taylor after the Grafton man drove up alongside his truck after having previously loosened the lugs on the wheel. Shortly before Taylor is alleged to have taken a radio out of Thomas Foster's automobile which was parked in the street near the Schmidt truck.

Getting in touch with local authorities Schmidt decided to wait beneath the truck for further developments and they were not long in coming. About one o'clock a car without lights drove up and stopped. Schmidt stepped out with a gun and Taylor was taken to jail. The radio stolen from the Foster car was found later in the Taylor car.

Coincident with Taylor's arrest in Oakland, Grafton police searched his home in Grafton and seized a large quantity of what they believed to be stolen property, including jewelry, watches, cameras, guns, hunting knives, fishing tackle, typewriter and many other items. Preston county authorities also cooperated in the investigation and Taylor was turned over to them.

Loses Parents

C. E. Sharps, owner of the Sharps Motor Company here, has lost both his father and mother by death within the space of a week.

His father, Lewis A. Sharps, 83, died at his home in Newburg, W. Va., Tuesday, July 2, after a short illness. Funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon with interment in the Newburg Knights of Pythias cemetery. Mr. Sharps was a retired merchant.

His mother, Mrs. Anna Squires Sharps, 79, died Tuesday at her home just a week after her husband. She had been ill since last fall. Her funeral was conducted Friday.

Brief Items

The new issue of the Garrett county telephone directory is now being issued to subscribers in this area, according to an announcement by W. R. Pancake, manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City, at Oakland.

Because of many changes in the directory listing it is being urged that all old directories either be turned in or destroyed when the new book is delivered.

A box supper and social will be held Saturday night, July 13, at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Varley, near Altamont. All provisions have been made for those who enjoy a good supper and an evening of fun. Everyone is invited.

This event, sponsored by members of the Log Church, Altamont, is for the benefit of the Log Church Building Fund, and is the first of many similar activities which will be held by this group during the summer months. Plans are under way for the erection of a Parish Hall on the grounds of the Log Church and those in charge are hoping that by the close of the summer season this project will be well on the way to completion.

Thirty-five young men of Garrett county applied at the office of the Garrett county welfare board Wednesday for admission to the Civilian Conservation Camps. The number was seven less than the county's quota. Two applications were not accepted because of physical disabilities. The boys left by train for Frederick where they will enter a camp in that county.

Farley To Back

ulated upon the meaning of the president's statement today that he would not come to Chicago during the convention.

It was recalled that Mr. Roosevelt appeared in person before the 1932 and 1936 conventions to accept the nominations. But the inference that, since he was not coming to this convention, he would decline another nomination failed to dampen the enthusiastic expectations of the hotel lobby crowds. All who predicted his acceptance were quick to acknowledge that they had nothing but their own personal opinions to go on.

One or possibly two of the day's arrivals, however, was generally thought to know what Mr. Roosevelt plans to do. The first was the president's intimate friend, Secretary Hopkins, here to serve, it was said, as a liason man between the White House and convention leaders. The other was Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, who reportedly will act as floor leader for the third term supporters.

As the crowds began to arrive en masse, convention routine got into its swing. The National Committee met in the morning, adopted a resolution thanking Farley for his eight years of service as national chairman and heard him in turn thank them for their cooperation.

His remarks were couched in terms and tone which some interpreted as a farewell, but when reporters asked Farley about it his reply was simply that it was too early to answer that question. Although it is now clear that Farley will not walk out on the party if it renominates the president, his determination to quit his post as national chairman in that event, remains unchanged.

In the afternoon the resolutions committee, which will draft the party platform, got to work around a long green baize-covered table in the Blackstone hotel, with Senator Wagner (D-NY) presiding, and five senators — Wheeler, McCarran (Nev), Harrison (Miss), Walsh (Mass), and Hatch (NM) — grouped about him. Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago was seated at the foot of the table.

The platform committee first heard a charge from Philip Murray, speaking for the CIO, that Wendell Willkie's firm—the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation—was violating the Wagner Labor Relations act on the day the Republican presidential candidate was nominated.

The CIO spokesman linked the utility concern with the Bethlehem Steel Company and several others which he said had violated the act. He did not elaborate.

He outlined to the committee, during a session in which he alternately shook his finger at the Senatorial members of the group and agreed with them, a nine point program.

It called for retention and protection of the labor relations act; peace and the preservation of social and labor legislation; solution of the unemployment problem through a program to be worked out by industry and labor; expansion of the social security program; broadening the houseing program; shifting the tax load to avoid the "disproportionate burden now born by low income groups" by imposing an excess profits tax; maintenance of civil liberties; elimination of state poll taxes; and retention of the Guffey coal stabilization act.

Three Killed in Bus-Truck Crash

TOLEDO, O., July 12 (AP) — A youthful driver, dozing at the wheel of a cattle truck today, awakened to find a Greyhound bus meeting him on a curve. The vehicles sideswiped, killing the bus driver and two of the thirty-odd passengers. Ten were injured.

"I guess I dozed off," nineteen-year old Gerald Nye of Napoleon, O., driver of the truck, told deputy sheriffs.

"I was on the left side of the road right in the path of the approaching bus," Nye said. "My truck, which was supposed to be on the inside of the curve, was across the dividing line on the wrong side.

"I tried to swerve to safety and the bus did too. My left front fender struck the left front of the bus and the stakes on the truck sideswiped the bus. My car went into the ditch."

The Indianapolis-Detroit bus broke off two telephone poles and several concrete posts before coming to a stop. Killed were driver John French of Fort Wayne, Ind., Jesse Copeland, Detroit, and Mrs. Beulah Curd of Muncie, Ind. The crash occurred near Waterville, southwest of Toledo.

Haile Selassie Again Recognized

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 12 — Great Britain faced about again today on Ethiopia and little, black-beared Haile Selassie once more is recognized as emperor of Ethiopia, Lion of Judah, and his government is a full ally against Italy.

The British will assure Ethiopian independence "when the war is won," said R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, today in the House of Commons.

British and those Ethiopian forces opposed to the Italian rule which was impressed on Selassie's 350,000-square-mile empire in 1935-36 are to coordinate "all activities likely to damage the enemy's effort in north and east Africa and in Abyssinia (Ethiopia)," Butler said.

C. W. Martin, who was Ethiopian minister to London at the time of the Italian conquest, says at least 300,000 to 400,000 of his countrymen are ready to fight Italy if they can get enough guns.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 12 (AP)—An outing ended an annual conference today of the Southern division of the West Virginia Health Association. The meeting was attended by health officers, nurses and sanitation officials from approximately twenty counties.

Bimelech Passes Up Scheduled Match Race Today at Suffolk Downs

BOSTON, July 12. (AP)—Rainy weather, which turned the Suffold Downs racing strip into a quagmire, ended hopes of New England fans for a sight of Col. E. R. Bradley's Bimelech playing a return engagement at the scene of his maiden racing triumph.

Bimelech had been scheduled to meet Sirocco, of the Dixiana stable, and The Finest, a promising three-year-old from the Glen Riddle Farms, tomorrow in a mile and one sixteenth non-wagering event for a $1,500 purse.

Continued rain today and a gloomy forecast for tomorrow caused the three trainers to withhold their entries from the special race.

Ward Proves He Has "Stuff" of Champions

MINNEAPOLIS, July 12, (AP), Bud Ward of Spokane today proved he was of the stuff champions are made fo when neither a pine tree, a bush nor such a golfing figure as Johnny Godman of Omaha could keep him from entering the semi-finals of the 41st annual Western amateur tournament at the Minneapolis golf club.

The national amateur champion spilled Goodman, former holder of both the nation's amateur and open crowns, one up after the pine tree cost him a hole at a crucial moment and was partly responsible for the loss of another, while the bush nearly permitted his opponent to pull up to even terms late in the match.

That was but one of three spectacular quater-final matches with Jim Ferrier of Sidney, Australia, nosing out Wilford Wehrle of Chicago in a dramatic finish 2 up and George Victor of Chicago defeating Earl Larson, Minneapolis, 1 up. The fourth match found Harry Todd of Dallas, defending champion, crushing Bill Kostelecky of Fargo, N. D., 6 and 4.

Ward gets another stiff test in the other semi-finals match Saturday when he meets the tournament's defending champion, Todd. Todd defeated Larry Moller of Quincy, Il., who he also met and vanquished in the tournament finals a year ago, 3 and 2, in the third round, and Kostelecky in the quater-finals. In the morning's third round Ward defeated Warren Berl of Stanford, 3 and 2.

Two Feature Races on Arlington Card Today

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—A nine-race program, featured by the $20,000 added Lassie Stakes and the initial home-town appearance of Mrs. Ehtel V. Mars' Gallahadion, winner of the Kentucky Derby, was expected to draw upwards of 35,000 racing fans to Arlington Park tomorrow.

Eight of the best two year old fillies in training were named for the Lassie Stakes, at six furlongs, with three entries representing the east and five carrying the colors of western stables. Should eight start, the race will gross $28,330, with the winner's purse being $18,250.

Early favorite in the fast field was Misty Isle, the Joseph E. Widener star which came home the surprise winner of the Hyde Park stakes last Saturday. Herbert M. Woolf's Woolford Farm entry of Silvestra and Unquote was expected to be second choice in the betting, with much support also going to Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's Traffic Court, a recent arrival from New York. Other entries were C. Putnam's Moja, the Valdina Farm's Valdina Myth, Blue Delight, owned by Mrs. John Marsch, Chicago, and R. A. Coward's Tidy Whisk.

Scores Hole-in-One On Oakland Course

OAKLAND, July 12 — Another name was added to the roster of the "hole-in-one" club of the Oakland municipal golf course last Sunday. Droving from tee No. 7, a distance of 194 yards, Joseph Cogley had an ace shot witnessed by other players in the group.

This is the longest of the short holes on the course. It is the first time one has been made on this green, although others have been made on Numbers 2, 5, and 9. It is the third hole-in-one shot this season on the course.

Old Germans, Paw Paw Play Loop Tilt Today

Cumberland's fast-stepping Old German baseball team which copped the first-half championship of the Tri-County Baseball League, going through the opening dash undefeated, will engage the Paw Paw Boosters today at Paw Paw in the opening battle of the loop's second half. The game was originally scheduled for tomorrow but was moved up by mutual agreement.

Derl "Speed" Keller, who has racked up six of the Germans' triumphs, will toe the slab for the locals, with Earl Sellers doing the backstopping. Charles Robey or O. Jamison will hurl for the Boosters.

"If you don't think photography holds any appeal, just get yourself a cheap camera, a few rolls of film, and some sort of the developing kits now on the market and I'll bet you even money that you will be wound up in it more than Charlie Hornbrook.

"It's sort of a thrill to snap a few pictures with your camera, then run back to the darkroom and work to see just how good that exposure was or see how that new crystal paper will make sister Mary's golden hair look.

"And if you don't think you can't get some money tied up in this hobby, drop around some meeting of the Cumberland Miniature Camera Club and you'll see cameras that range in price from a dollar box camera to a high price miniature that costs as much as your new jaloppy. Boy, there must be some attraction to this hobby or a guy wouldn't turn in a years free keep on a hobby."

Many thanks Mr. Slemmer, who's next?

Cumberland people who are worried about their spelling ability would do well, perhaps, to look into the challenge issued by Dr. L. L. Click, professor of English at the University of Texas, who offers a list of words to spell. He declares that anyone missing fewer than eight in taking dictation of the following is an excellent speller:

"An irreligious peddler and an embarrassed cobbler were harassed by bulletins charging that they kidnaped a bottle of asafoetida to inoculate some picnicking acquaintances against catarrh.

"Your inuendo is sacriligious spieled the peddler, fingering a woolly queue which he used to camouflage his skull.

"I saw the thief, a traveler in the cemetery, reveling in the symmetry of the obelisks.'

"His alibi seemed impregnable enough to supersede legal procedure; so the shrill recommended that bailiff release him.

"This plaguy, desiccated and rarefied air will give him a hemorrhage anyway," he said."

If you miss more than twenty words you need a dictionary, Dr. Click said.

According to the calendar, Monday is Saint Swithin's Day. If one is a believer in legends, this is the day when the weather for the next six weeks may be determined. Saint Swithin, as legend relates, was an English bishop who went to his reward in the year 862 A. D. One hundred years later, as his remains were being disinterred for removal to another burial place, a terrific storm arose which lasted for forty days. This was interpreted as a sign of Heavenly disapproval and the Saint's body was allowed to remain undisturbed in its first resting place. Thus, as the story goes, if it should rain on this day, rain will continue to fall for forty days thereafter. But, if Monday is bright and sunshiny there will be nary a drop of rain for six weeks and one may as well prepare for a "spell" of hot, dry weather. That is if you believe in legends.

500 West Virginia Homes Are Open to Refugee Children

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 12 (AP) — More than 500 West Virginia homes already have been offered for British refugee children, Major Hal Hughes of the Salvation Army estimated today.

Responses and inquiries indicate, he said, that more than 250 children could be placed in the Kanawha valley alone.

Brigadier George Rose of Richmond, Va., divisional secretary for the Virginia-West Virginia area, who has just completed a tour of Southern state posts, said the attitude was general.

"We got a response that amazed us," he said, "in both Virginia and West Virginia."

Six Boy

their troops to camp but have, with the cooperation of their troop committees, enlisted suitable substitutes. These men are also busy behind scenes helping to complete arrangements for their boys to go to camp. These two troops and their sponsors are, Troop No. 6, SS. Peter and Paul Church, Scoutmaster Henry Winteroyer; Troop No. 13, First Presbyterian Church, Scoutmaster Alfred Hutter.

Last year twenty-two troops of the Potomac Council took more than 400 scouts to camp for a week or more. It seems evident from this early report that an even larger number of troops and scouts will do so this year. Judging by early observations, better camping is being done. This is a reflection of the improved aids and training that have been provided for scout leaders by the National and Local Councils.

Equipment Improved

While still inadequate, the Potomac Council has been able to improve the equipment provided for troops on the Council's camp site on the South Branch. The principal improment has been in the dish washing and cooking facilities. Through the cooperation of Floyd Davis and the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, a large cauldron made by cutting a fifty-five gallon oil drum to half size supplies a large amount of hot water for dish washing purposes at each of the four troop sites. In addition, a large dish drain has been provided so dishes can be dunked in the scalding water for two minutes, thus eliminating the necessity for dish rags. The scalded dishes dry of their own heat.

Reford Aldridge provided four large cast iron grills through the courtesy of the Mt. Savage Foundry, and 160 fire brick were provided by the Mt. Savage Brick Company. This equipment is in addition to the equipment provided in previous years for each troop as follows, two Army squad tents; eight cots; 16x20 dining tarpaulin; table; buckets; large water container.

In addition, at the council site at Millison's the council has employed Gene Haines, a recent graduate of West Virginia University and holder of a Red Cross Examiner's certificate, as a waterfront director and as assistant camp director.

Also, through the generosity of Miles G. Thompson, a pickup truck is available at the camp so that ice, milk, butter, eggs, and produce can be ordered frequently during the week as needed. A bread truck visits the camp daily.

term 1898-1899. The next president from the Queen City was Conrad J. Herpich, whose term was in 1919-20. Mr. Herpich since has died. In addition to holding the high office, Mr. Stump served the association as secretary for two terms 1896-97-98. Another Cumberlander—Harry L. Smith served as secretary from 1907 to 1909 or two terms.

Chapel Hill Hose Company, the sponsors, will hold a meeting soon to start initial plans. They will be joined by Cumberland Hose company.

Here is what Cumberlanders said:

JOHN D. LIEBAU, president of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce:

"As president of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, I wish to express my appreciation to members and delegates of the Maryland State Firemen's Association for awarding Cumberland the 1941 convention. In behalf of the body and myself I can assure the Maryland firemen that every business man in Cumberland will do his utmost to make the forth-coming event a successful one from every standpoint."

HARRY A. MANLEY, president of the Cumberland Fair Association:

"When I read the Cumberland News, Friday morning, I was more than overwhelmed with the announcement of the forthcoming firemen's convention. You know, I was a fireman myself, that was back in my younger days in Harrisburg, Pa. So, why shouldn't I be pleased. Such a convention will help our merchants and acquaint the outside visitors with what Cumberland has to offer. A welcome hand to the firemen; the more the merrier."

THOMAS F. CONLON, finance commissioner City of Cumberland:

"As a charter member of Midland Fire Company (that was years ago), I am more than proud of my brother firemen throughout Maryland in bringing to Cumberland in 1941 the Maryland State Firemen's Association convention. Cumberland has neglected this important event which always brings money and new friends into a community. We have the playground of Western Maryland, with beautiful parks, beautiful girls, fine hotels and good people, so why not be host to the firemen. Everything is here anyone would desire. I'll have to hunt up my old fireman's cap."

Morrison Is Indicted

WAYNE, W. Va., July 12 (AP)—A murder indictment returned by the Wayne county grand jury charged Clyde L. Morrison of Winslow today with killing his brother, Carlos, April 28, after the two argued over the relative strength of the British and German armies.

Mose D. Maynard was indicted on a murder charge in connection with the slaying of Constable Tracy Topping in a beer parlor altercation May 15.

Garage Mechanic Said To Be Implicated in 15 Robberies

OAKLAND, Md., July 12, Ivan Taylor, garage mechanic of Grafton, W. Va., who was arrested here, Sunday morning, has been turned over to Preston County, (W. Va.) authorities. West Virginia police said Taylor confessed to participating in at least fifteen robberies in Preston and Taylor counties.

He was arrested here when the owner of a truck caught him about to remove a tire from the vehicle.

Ed Schmidt, owner of the truck, captured Taylor after the Grafton man drove up alongside his truck after having previously loosened the lugs on the wheel. Shortly before Taylor is alleged to have taken a radio out of Thomas Foster's automobile which was parked in the street near the Schmidt truck.

Getting in touch with local authorities Schmidt decided to wait beneath the truck for further developments and they were not long in coming. About one o'clock a car without lights drove up and stopped. Schmidt stepped out with a gun and Taylor was taken to jail. The radio stolen from the Foster car was found later in the Taylor car.

Coincident with Taylor's arrest in Oakland, Grafton police searched his home in Grafton and seized a large quantity of what they believed to be stolen property, including jewelry, watches, cameras, guns, hunting knives, fishing tackle, typewriter and many other items. Preston county authorities also cooperated in the investigation and Taylor was turned over to them.

Loses Parents

C. E. Sharps, owner of the Sharps Motor Company here, has lost both his father and mother by death within the space of a week.

His father, Lewis A. Sharps, 83, died at his home in Newburg, W. Va., Tuesday, July 2, after a short illness. Funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon with interment in the Newburg Knights of Pythias cemetery. Mr. Sharps was a retired merchant.

His mother, Mrs. Anna Squires Sharps, 79, died Tuesday at her home just a week after her husband. She had been ill since last fall. Her funeral was conducted Friday.

Brief Items

The new issue of the Garrett county telephone directory is now being issued to subscribers in this area, according to an announcement by W. R. Pancake, manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City, at Oakland.

Because of many changes in the directory listing it is being urged that all old directories either be turned in or destroyed when the new book is delivered.

A box supper and social will be held Saturday night, July 13, at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Varley, near Altamont. All provisions have been made for those who enjoy a good supper and an evening of fun. Everyone is invited.

This event, sponsored by members of the Log Church, Altamont, is for the benefit of the Log Church Building Fund, and is the first of many similar activities which will be held by this group during the summer months. Plans are under way for the erection of a Parish Hall on the grounds of the Log Church and those in charge are hoping that by the close of the summer season this project will be well on the way to completion.

Thirty-five young men of Garrett county applied at the office of the Garrett county welfare board Wednesday for admission to the Civilian Conservation Camps. The number was seven less than the county's quota. Two applications were not accepted because of physical disabilities. The boys left by train for Frederick where they will enter a camp in that county.

Farley To Back

ulated upon the meaning of the president's statement today that he would not come to Chicago during the convention.

It was recalled that Mr. Roosevelt appeared in person before the 1932 and 1936 conventions to accept the nominations. But the inference that, since he was not coming to this convention, he would decline another nomination failed to dampen the enthusiastic expectations of the hotel lobby crowds. All who predicted his acceptance were quick to acknowledge that they had nothing but their own personal opinions to go on.

One or possibly two of the day's arrivals, however, was generally thought to know what Mr. Roosevelt plans to do. The first was the president's intimate friend, Secretary Hopkins, here to serve, it was said, as a liason man between the White House and convention leaders. The other was Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, who reportedly will act as floor leader for the third term supporters.

As the crowds began to arrive en masse, convention routine got into its swing. The National Committee met in the morning, adopted a resolution thanking Farley for his eight years of service as national chairman and heard him in turn thank them for their cooperation.

His remarks were couched in terms and tone which some interpreted as a farewell, but when reporters asked Farley about it his reply was simply that it was too early to answer that question. Although it is now clear that Farley will not walk out on the party if it renominates the president, his determination to quit his post as national chairman in that event, remains unchanged.

In the afternoon the resolutions committee, which will draft the party platform, got to work around a long green baize-covered table in the Blackstone hotel, with Senator Wagner (D-NY) presiding, and five senators — Wheeler, McCarran (Nev), Harrison (Miss), Walsh (Mass), and Hatch (NM) — grouped about him. Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago was seated at the foot of the table.

The platform committee first heard a charge from Philip Murray, speaking for the CIO, that Wendell Willkie's firm—the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation—was violating the Wagner Labor Relations act on the day the Republican presidential candidate was nominated.

The CIO spokesman linked the utility concern with the Bethlehem Steel Company and several others which he said had violated the act. He did not elaborate.

He outlined to the committee, during a session in which he alternately shook his finger at the Senatorial members of the group and agreed with them, a nine point program.

It called for retention and protection of the labor relations act; peace and the preservation of social and labor legislation; solution of the unemployment problem through a program to be worked out by industry and labor; expansion of the social security program; broadening the houseing program; shifting the tax load to avoid the "disproportionate burden now born by low income groups" by imposing an excess profits tax; maintenance of civil liberties; elimination of state poll taxes; and retention of the Guffey coal stabilization act.

Three Killed in Bus-Truck Crash

TOLEDO, O., July 12 (AP) — A youthful driver, dozing at the wheel of a cattle truck today, awakened to find a Greyhound bus meeting him on a curve. The vehicles sideswiped, killing the bus driver and two of the thirty-odd passengers. Ten were injured.

"I guess I dozed off," nineteen-year old Gerald Nye of Napoleon, O., driver of the truck, told deputy sheriffs.

"I was on the left side of the road right in the path of the approaching bus," Nye said. "My truck, which was supposed to be on the inside of the curve, was across the dividing line on the wrong side.

"I tried to swerve to safety and the bus did too. My left front fender struck the left front of the bus and the stakes on the truck sideswiped the bus. My car went into the ditch."

The Indianapolis-Detroit bus broke off two telephone poles and several concrete posts before coming to a stop. Killed were driver John French of Fort Wayne, Ind., Jesse Copeland, Detroit, and Mrs. Beulah Curd of Muncie, Ind. The crash occurred near Waterville, southwest of Toledo.

Haile Selassie Again Recognized

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 12 — Great Britain faced about again today on Ethiopia and little, black-beared Haile Selassie once more is recognized as emperor of Ethiopia, Lion of Judah, and his government is a full ally against Italy.

The British will assure Ethiopian independence "when the war is won," said R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, today in the House of Commons.

British and those Ethiopian forces opposed to the Italian rule which was impressed on Selassie's 350,000-square-mile empire in 1935-36 are to coordinate "all activities likely to damage the enemy's effort in north and east Africa and in Abyssinia (Ethiopia)," Butler said.

C. W. Martin, who was Ethiopian minister to London at the time of the Italian conquest, says at least 300,000 to 400,000 of his countrymen are ready to fight Italy if they can get enough guns.

Bimelech Passes Up Scheduled Match Race Today at Suffolk Downs

BOSTON, July 12. (AP)—Rainy weather, which turned the Suffolk Downs racing strip into a quagmire, ended hopes of New England fans for a sight of Col. E. R. Bradley's Bimelech playing a return engagement at the scene of his maiden racing triumph.

Bimelech had been scheduled to meet Sirocco, of the Dixiana stable, and The Finest, a promising three-year-old from the Glen Riddle Farms, tomorrow in a mile and one sixteenth non-wagering event for a $1,500 purse.

Continued rain today and a gloomy forecast for tomorrow caused the three trainers to withhold their entries from the special race.

Ward Proves He Has "Stuff" of Champions

MINNEAPOLIS, July 12, (AP), Bud Ward of Spokane today proved he was of the stuff champions are made fo when neither a pine tree, a bush nor such a golfing figure as Johnny Godman of Omaha could keep him from entering the semi-finals of the 41st annual Western amateur tournament at the Minneapolis golf club.

The national amateur champion spilled Goodman, former holder of both the nation's amateur and open crowns, one up after the pine tree cost him a hole at a crucial moment and was partly responsible for the loss of another, while the bush nearly permitted his opponent to pull up to even terms late in the match.

That was but one of three spectacular quater-final matches with Jim Ferrier of Sidney, Australia, nosing out Wilford Wehrle of Chicago in a dramatic finish 2 up and George Victor of Chicago defeating Earl Larson, Minneapolis, 1 up. The fourth match found Harry Todd of Dallas, defending champion, crushing Bill Kostelecky of Fargo, N. D., 6 and 4.

Ward gets another stiff test in the other semi-finals match Saturday when he meets the tournament's defending champion, Todd. Todd defeated Larry Moller of Quincy, Il., who he also met and vanquished in the tournament finals a year ago, 3 and 2, in the third round, and Kostelecky in the quater-finals. In the morning's third round Ward defeated Warren Berl of Stanford, 3 and 2.

Two Feature Races on Arlington Card Today

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—A nine-race program, featured by the $20,000 added Lassie Stakes and the initial home-town appearance of Mrs. Ehtel V. Mars' Gallahadion, winner of the Kentucky Derby, was expected to draw upwards of 35,000 racing fans to Arlington Park tomorrow.

Eight of the best two year old fillies in training were named for the Lassie Stakes, at six furlongs, with three entries representing the east and five carrying the colors of western stables. Should eight start, the race will gross $28,330, with the winner's purse being $18,250.

Early favorite in the fast field was Misty Isle, the Joseph E. Widener star which came home the surprise winner of the Hyde Park stakes last Saturday. Herbert M. Woolf's Woolford Farm entry of Silvestra and Unquote was expected to be second choice in the betting, with much support also going to Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's Traffic Court, a recent arrival from New York. Other entries were C. Putnam's Moja, the Valdina Farm's Valdina Myth, Blue Delight, owned by Mrs. John Marsch, Chicago, and R. A. Coward's Tidy Whisk.

Scores Hole-in-One On Oakland Course

OAKLAND, July 12 — Another name was added to the roster of the "hole-in-one" club of the Oakland municipal golf course last Sunday. Droving from tee No. 7, a distance of 194 yards, Joseph Cogley had an ace shot witnessed by other players in the group.

This is the longest of the short holes on the course. It is the first time one has been made on this green, although others have been made on Numbers 2, 5, and 9. It is the third hole-in-one shot this season on the course.

Old Germans, Paw Paw Play Loop Tilt Today

Cumberland's fast-stepping Old German baseball team which copped the first-half championship of the Tri-County Baseball League, going through the opening dash undefeated, will engage the Paw Paw Boosters today at Paw Paw in the opening battle of the loop's second half. The game was originally scheduled for tomorrow but was moved up by mutual agreement.

Derl "Speed" Keller, who has racked up six of the Germans' triumphs, will toe the slab for the locals, with Earl Sellers doing the backstopping. Charles Robey or O. Jamison will hurl for the Boosters.

"It's sort of a thrill to snap a few pictures with your camera, then run back to the darkroom and work to see just how good that exposure was or see how that new crystal paper will make sister Mary's golden hair look.

"And if you don't think you can't get some money tied up in this hobby, drop around some meeting of the Cumberland Miniature Camera Club and you'll see cameras that range in price from a dollar box camera to a high price miniature that costs as much as your new jaloppy. Boy, there must be some attraction to this hobby or a guy wouldn't turn in a years free keep on a hobby."

Cumberland people who are worried about their spelling ability would do well, perhaps, to look into the challenge issued by Dr. L. L. Click, professor of English at the University of Texas, who offers a list of words to spell. He declares that anyone missing fewer than eight in taking dictation of the following is an excellent speller:

"An irreligious peddler and an embarrassed cobbler were harassed by bulletins charging that they kidnaped a bottle of asafoetida to inoculate some picnicking acquaintances against catarrh.

" 'Your inuendo is sacriligious spieled the peddler, fingering a woolly queue which he used to camouflage his skull.

" 'I saw the thief, a traveler in the cemetery, reveling in the aymmetry of the obelisks.'

"His alibi seemed impregnable enough to supersede legal procedure; so the shrill recommended that bailiff release him.

" 'This plaguy, desiccated and rarefied air will give him a hemorrhage anyway,' he said."

If you miss more than twenty words you need a dictionary, Dr. Click said.

According to the calendar, Monday is Saint Swithin's Day. If one is a believer in legends, this is the day when the weather for the next six weeks may be determined. Saint Swithin, as legend relates, was an English bishop who went to his reward in the year 862 A. D. One hundred years later, as his remains were being disinterred for removal to another burial place, a terrific storm arose which lasted for forty days. This was interpreted as a sign of Heavenly disapproval and the Saint's body was allowed to remain undisturbed in its first resting place. Thus, as the story goes, if it should rain on this day, rain will continue to fall for forty days thereafter. But, if Monday is bright and sunshiny there will be nary a drop of rain for six weeks and one may as well prepare for a "spell" of hot, dry weather. That is if you believe in legends.

500 West Virginia Homes Are Open to Refugee Children

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 12 (AP) — More than 500 West Virginia homes already have been offered for British refugee children, Major Hal Hughes of the Salvation Army estimated today.

Responses and inquiries indicate, he said, that more than 250 children could be placed in the Kanawha valley alone.

Brigadier George Rose of Richmond, Va., divisional secretary for the Virginia-West Virginia area, who has just completed a tour of Southern state posts, said the attitude was general.

"We got a response that amazed us," he said, "in both Virginia and West Virginia."

their troops to camp but have, with the cooperation of their troop committees, enlisted suitable substitutes. These men are also busy behind scenes helping to complete arrangements for their boys to go to camp. These two troops and their sponsors are, Troop No. 6, SS. Peter and Paul Church, Scoutmaster Henry Winteroyer; Troop No. 13, First Presbyterian Church, Scoutmaster Alfred Hutter.

Last year twenty-two troops of the Potomac Council took more than 400 scouts to camp for a week or more. It seems evident from this early report that an even larger number of troops and scouts will do so this year. Judging by early observations, better camping is being done. This is a reflection of the improved aids and training that have been provided for scout leaders by the National and Local Councils.

Equipment Improved

While still inadequate, the Potomac Council has been able to improve the equipment provided for troops on the Council's camp site on the South Branch. The principal improment has been in the dish washing and cooking facilities. Through the cooperation of Floyd Davis and the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, a large cauldron made by cutting a fifty-five gallon oil drum to half size supplies a large amount of hot water for dish washing purposes at each of the four troop sites. In addition, a large dish drain has been provided so dishes can be dunked in the scalding water for two minutes, thus eliminating the necessity for dish rags. The scalded dishes dry of their own heat.

Reford Aldridge provided four large cast iron grills through the courtesy of the Mt. Savage Foundry, and 160 fire brick were provided by the Mt. Savage Brick Company. This equipment is in addition to the equipment provided in previous years for each troop as follows, two Army squad tents; eight cots; 16x 20 dining tarpaulin; table; buckets; large water container.

In addition, at the council site at Millison's the council has employed Gene Haines, a recent graduate of West Virginia University and holder of a Red Cross Examiner's certificate, as a waterfront director and as assistant camp director.

Also, through the generosity of Miles G. Thompson, a pickup truck is available at the camp so that ice, milk, butter, eggs and produce can be ordered frequently during the week as needed. A bread truck visits the camp daily.

term 1898-1899. The next president from the Queen City was Conrad J. Herpich, whose term was in 1919-20. Mr. Herpich since has died. In addition to holding the high office, Mr. Stump served the association as secretary for two terms 1896-97-98. Another Cumberlander—Harry L. Smith served as secretary from 1907 to 1909 or two terms.

Chapel Hill Hose Company, the sponsors, will hold a meeting soon to start initial plans. They will be joined by Cumberland Hose company.

Here is what Cumberlanders said:

"As president of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, I wish to express my appreciation to members and delegates of the Maryland State Firemen's Association for awarding Cumberland the 1941 convention. In behalf of the body and myself I can assure the Maryland firemen that every business man in Cumberland will do his utmost to make the forth-coming event a successful one from every standpoint."

HARRY A. MANLEY, president of the Cumberland Fair Association:

"When I read the Cumberland News, Friday morning, I was more than overwhelmed with the announcement of the forthcoming firemen's convention. You know, I was a fireman myself, that was back in my younger days in Harrisburg, Pa. So, why shouldn't I be pleased. Such a convention will help our merchants and acquaint the outside visitors with what Cumberland has to offer. A welcome hand to the firemen; the more the merrier."

THOMAS F. CONLON, finance commissioner City of Cumberland:

"As a charter member of Midland Fire Company (that was years ago), I am more than proud of my brother firemen throughout Maryland in bringing to Cumberland in 1941 the Maryland State Firemen's Association convention. Cumberland has neglected this important event which always brings money and new friends into a community. We have the playground of Western Maryland, with beautiful parks, beautiful girls, fine hotels and good people, so why not be host to the firemen. Everything is here anyone would desire. I'll have to hunt up my old fireman's cap."

Morrison Is Indicted

WAYNE, W. Va., July 12 (AP)—A murder indictment returned by the Wayne county grand jury charged Clyde L. Morrison of Winslow today with killing his brother, Carlos, April 28, after the two argued over the relative strength of the British and German armies.

Mose D. Maynard was indicted on a murder charge in connection with the slaying of Constable Tracy Topping in a beer parlor altercation May 15.

Empire City Handicap Has Nine Entries

Second Stringers Of Varsity Squad Battle for Honors

Top Flight of Three Year Olds Pass Up Purse

But Race May Bring Out Improved Form of Starters

NEW YORK, July 12. (AP). The "second stringers" on the year's three year old "varsity squad" get together at Empire City tomorrow in the 32nd running of the $10,000-added Empire City handicap, with any one of the nine horses entered able to grab the winner's end in the mile-and-an-eighth affair.

With Bimelech, Croydon, Gallahadion and Your Chance all prepping for the Arlington Classic or other big-money stake affairs, the nine in tomorrow's field have a chance at the "brass ring" all to themselves.

Old Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons seems to have the inside track, at least in quantity. Four of those entered today are Mr. Fitz-trained-Fenelon and Dusky Fox, from William Woodward's barn and Asp and Snow Ridge from Mrs. H. C. Phipps' stable. Of these Snow Ridge, who was disqualified for bumping after finishing first in two good races this spring, and Fenelon, reported completely recovered from his coughing attack, seem the likeliest.

Others With Chance

Arnold Hanger's Dit, who hasn't done much since winning the Wood Memorial and finishing third in the Kentucky Derby; Mrs. Payne Whitney's Century Note, Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' General Manager, the recently-consistent Bolingbroke, standard bearer of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, and Mrs. R. H. Henghe's Zayin are the outsiders.

If all nine go postward—which appears doubtful, since Mr. Fitz hardly will start four—the value of the victory may near record-breaking proportions for the winner. The high for the stake was $11,800 which Pinkola collected way back in 1908, long before the race was limited to three year olds exclusively.

Record for the mile-and-an-eighth is 1:51, first set by Dalmation in 1910 and equalled four times since then, the last time by Stagehand in his championship three-year old year, 1938.

Mahan's Single Beats Corsairs

Timely Blow with Bases Loaded Gives Phils 6 to 3 Triumph

PITTSBURGH, July 12 (AP)—Art Mahan's looping hingle to right with the bases filled in the fifth inning—one of his four hits—was the deciding blow which gave Philadelphia 6 to 3 victory over Pittsburgh tonight before 9,042 fans.

Singles by Merrill May and Bob Bragan and a pass to Bill Atwood by Joe Bowman set the stage for Mahan's hit, which sent two runs home and broke up a 1-1 tie. Emmett Mueller followed with another single, driving in a third run and bringing Johnny Lanning to Bowman's rescue.

As an anti-climax the Phillies added two more runs in the ninth off Big Ross Bauers, Mahan opening this rally with two down by singling. Joe Marty, Mueller and Johnny Rizzo followed with singles, chasing Bauers.

Errors by Mueller and Bragan in the ninth put Pirate runners on second and third base and Paul Waner, batting for Vince DiMaggio, sent them home with a single.

What Would Jenkins Do Without Bill Morris?

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, July 12.—Lew Jenkins, the hungry lightweight champion, has scored a beat on Henry Armstrong, his opposition of next Wednesday, by obtaining the services of Dr. William Morris, the famous secret agent.

Mr. Jenkins is training at Grossinger's Country Club, Ferndale, N. Y., among the so-called Kosher Alps. This is the terrain that made Dr. Morris famous. He knows every bush and twig up there. On the other hand, the bushes and twigs do not know Dr. Morris, for the doctor is a man of many disguises and never appears in the same one twice.

He has been known to assume the role of a bush himself, and settle down among the other bushes, gossiping about problems and personalities in the bush racket until he has completely hoodwinked the local shrubbery. After pumping his victim, he lopes back to headquarters with a thorough report.

Used a Dictaphone

The last time Dr. Morris spied in those mountains, he was on the payroll of Jimmy McLarnin, who employed him to lurk around Barney Ross's camp and find out what he could about Ross. The first sixteen times he tried to enter Ross's camp, the doctor's disguise was penetrated, and they threw him out. Nothing daunted, Dr. Morris hired a subsidiary agent to plant a dictaphone in Ross's dressing-room.

Later the dictaphone record was retrieved, and the doctor took it to McLarnin's camp, where everybody gathered around to hear the secrets that the gullible Ross had betrayed.

"Boys," said Ross's voice on the record, "I wonder what's become of Doc Morris?"

"The last time we seen him," said another voice, "he was smuggling a dictaphone record into this joint. It's probably somewhere around here now."

"Well," said Ross, "I'm glad to hear the doc is working. Next time you see him, give him my regards."

Much to Dr. Morris's chargin, McLarnin refused to pay for this information, in spite of its sentimental value. In fact, McLarnin was sulky enough to imply that the doctor could not spy on himself in a telephone booth. These words came back to haunt Jimmy when he lost the fight—undoubtedly because he refused to make use of the data obtained at great risk by Dr. Morris.

The doctor is now engaged by Mr. Jenkins to learn the secrets of Henry Armstrong, which are said to be extremely interesting. Dr. Morris is free, under contract, to syndicate these secrets when he learns them. If there is anything of interest to the government of Bolivia, for instance, he can communicate with the Bolivian secret service on his own time, just so Mr. Jenkins gets the information first.

Jots Down Secrets

Dr. Morris assumes a mask every day after lunch and swoops down upon the Armstrong camp in Pompton Lakes, N. J., arriving in time for Armstrong's workout. There he takes a special seat by the ringside, reserved for him by the Armstrong reception committee, and jots down secrets as fast as he discovers them. For the doctor's further convenience, Mr. Armstrong has supplied carbon paper, so that the doc may make as many copies as he wishes.

As Dr. Morris leaves camp, with his notes concealed in the sole of his shoe (he is prepared to swallow them, shoe and all, rather than surrender them), a man at the gate is detailed to make sure that everything has been satisfactory.

"Kind of hot today, Dr. Morris," this operative will say. "Don't you want to take off your mask and be comfortable?"

"No speak English," the doctor replies, chuckling to himself, for he alone knows that his mask is a light tropical worsted, made for summer wear, and twice as cool as it is outdoors.

Back at headquarters he decides his notes and spreads them out on the table, where Mr. Jenkins studies them.

"So," says Jenkins, "this Armstrong is a colored man, eh?"

"You bet he is, chief," says the doctor. "Don't let 'em fool you."

There is practically nothing about Armstrong which Jenkins does not know by now, and if he loses the fight next week, it will not be the fault of Dr. William Morris. Incidentally, the doctor was formerly known in the service as X-9, but the number has been changed to Stuyvesant 9-6100.

GAMES TOMORROW

Hyndman at Midland (2).
Cumberland at Frostburg.
Keyser at Westvaco.

Frostburg's American Legion tossers and Westvaco A. A. baseballers, sharing the leadership in the Bi-State League, face tough foes in games today at 3 o'clock with Hyndman at Frostburg and the Pulpmen at Midland.

Westvaco, which tied the Legion outfit for first place the last weekend by winning two of three games from Hyndman while Frostburg was defeating the Colts and bowing to Keyser, hopes to make it four straight victories over the Red Sox.

The Pulpmen, winners of six of their last nine tests, will be facing a club which has copped two of its last three. Manager Tommy McGuire may start Michael Orr, Frank Steinbugle or Ed McNichol, each of whom has defeated Midland.

Colts Entertain Keyser

It will also be the fourth meeting of Frostburg and Hyndman with the Legion holding a 2-1 lead in the series. Frostburg's victories were credited to Stanley Stetz and Ival "Speed" Lambert while Lambert was the loser and Jim Stevenson the winner when Hyndman managed to win a 5-4 decision in the first meeting of the teams.

Hyndman has dropped three of its last five games with two of these setbacks coming the last weekend. Frostburg will be seeking its ninth victory in its last dozen appearances.

The Cumberland Colts and the Keyser Moose, the two middle clubs in the standing, are slated to meet at Community Park here in today's other encounter.

Moose Not Far Behind

The Moose team is in third place one game ahead of the Dobbins and only a single game behind the knotted pace-setters. Keyser fans are hoping for a Moose victory and defeat for Westvaco and Frostburg.

Keyser will be striving to run its winning streak to three games and at the same time register its third victory over the Colts in four meetings. The Dobbins lost to Frostburg and Midland in their last two clashes.

Four contests are scheduled Sunday with Hyndman going to Midland for a doubleheader, Frostburg entertains the Colts, and Westvaco and Keyser meet at Memorial Park, Westernport.

Roster Changes

President Arthur G. Ramey, in the absence from the city of Secretary-Treasurer Don Shires, today announced the following roster changes with all new players eligible for games tomorrow:

Hyndman—Signed Jack Adams and Victor Morocco, both of Somerset, Pa., and released John Lowery and Gerald Miller.

Westvaco—Released Harry Fields, Ray Cameron, Harry Stafford and Zihlman Dinning.

Midland Bolstered

MIDLAND, Md., July 12— The cellar dwelling Midland Red Sox of the Bi-State League have become a strongly re-enforced team during the past week and give all indications of vacating that undesirable standing this week-end. Manager Frank Graham announced here today the signing of four new players including two badly needed pitchers. The new players are Jack Lindsay, Altoona, an outfielder; John Yoder and Charles Lappi, Jerome, both pitchers and James Miller, Altoona, shortstop. Releases were turned in for Garland Green and Joseph Nestor. There will be three games played on the local field this week-end. Westvaco will be here on Saturday afternoon and Manager Graham will pitch Al Lauber, who has to his credit a total of three wins and only one defeat. The lone defeat was at the hands of Westvaco but Lauber is in good condition and expects to have no trouble quieting the bats of Lou Porta and company. Yoder and Lappi will be pressed into service in the double-header with Hyandman on Sunday.

Jeffra To Defend Title in Baltimore

Baltimore, July 12. (AP) — Harry Jeffra of Baltimore, recognized in Maryland and New York as the world's featherweight champion, will meet Spider Armstrong of Toronto in a 15-round title bout here July 29.

Jeffra is in training here now and Al Weill, Armstrong's manager, said the challenger would work out in New York until July 21, then come here to finish training. Weill said Toronto, Philadelphia and Providence, R. I., had asked for the bout.

Jockey Vesseli Is Set Down; Mount Is Disqualified

West Sea Named Winner When Schley Goree Interferes

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 12 (AP)—Rain, clouds, and a disqualification in the feature combined today at Hagerstown race track, but failed, individually and collectively, to put a damper on the spirits of the crowd.

R. A. Bowman's Schley Goree, ridden by A. Vesselli, scored in the Hotel Hamilton purse, the mile and sixteenth feature, after cutting out the heavily-backed favorite, West Sea, on the far turn.

The stewards upheld a protest, disqualified Schley Goree and set Vesselli down five days for rough tactics. West Sea, owned by Mrs. C. Butler, was moved into first place and paid off $4.50 for $2. Keswick Hill took second money.

Stewards held Vesselli cut West Sea off on the first turn and again on the far turn.

E. C. Jackson's True Line, winner of the five-furlong opener, coupled with H. Pleet's Single Play in the second to pay $55 on the daily double—highest double of the meeting.

The SPORT TRAIL

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
(Scouting for Whitney Martin)

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Horse players, called the most gullible suckers in American sport, are going to get a break at last.

The be-whiskered, 100-year-old rule which stipulates that a horse is a starter in a race once the animal has stepped on the track undoubtedly is to be changed in the 22 states where racing is legal. This probably will be done at the next national convention of the state racing commissions.

The rule already has been changed in Rhode Island, home of Narragansett Park, Illinois, with four major tracks—Arlington Park, Washington Park, Lincoln Fields and Hawthorne—was the next state to fall in line.

At Narragansett Park a horse is not a starter until the race is off—which means when the horses have bounded out of the starting gate. In the event a horse is injured or for other reasons is unable to get away, the wagers on that horse are refunded.

In Illinois, the state racing commission has empowered track stewards to excuse a horse if injured or otherwise found to be unfit before the actual start of a race and to refund the money wagered from the pari-mutuel pool.

This change in Illinois racing law was started by "boos" from a holiday crowd of 50,000 at fashionable Arlington Park July 4 when a horse named Porters Mite, on which $12,708 had been wagered, was prevented by a last-minute injury from running in the $10,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap.

The horse, while parading to the post, was frightened by hand-clapping spectators at the rail. It wheeled, jumped the track rail, and became lodged on its back between that barrier and the public guard rail. Twelve men worked to haul the horse free. It suffered cuts and bruises and was led back to the barn. The thoroughbred was excused from the race but bettors who had tossed $12,708 into the mutuel machines, lost their dough because of the iron clad rule which called the horse a starter since it had stepped on the track.

The ancient rule, according to Robert Shelly, racing secretary at Narragansett, Arlington and other major tracks, was designed to protect the old time bookmaker who established his prices on a huge blackboard for the betting gentry. In the event of an injury to a horse parading to the post, the oldtime bookie would have found himself in a mess, Shelly pointed out, without time to change his odds before the race started.

The oldtime bookmaker is a character of the past. Pari-mutuel machanes have taken his place throughout the country.

Empire City Handicap Has Nine Entries

Second Stringers Of Varsity Squad Battle for Honors

Top Flight of Three Year Olds Pass Up Purse

But Race May Bring Out Improved Form of Starters

NEW YORK, July 12. (AP)—The "second stringers" on the year's three year old "varsity squad" get together at Empire City tomorrow in the 32nd running of the $10,000-added Empire City handicap, with any one of the nine horses entered able to grab the winner's end in the mile-and-an-eighth affair.

With Bimelech, Croydon, Gallahadion and Your Chance all prepping for the Arlington Classic or other big-money stake affairs, the nine in tomorrow's field have a chance at the "brass ring" all to themselves.

Old Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons seems to have the inside track, at least in quantity. Four of those entered today are Mr. Fitz-trained-Fenelon and Dusky Fox, from William Woodward's barn and Asp and Snow Ridge from Mrs. H. C. Phipps' stable. Of these Snow Ridge, who was disqualified for bumping after finishing first in two good races this spring, and Fenelon, reported completely recovered from his coughing attack, seem the likeliest.

Others With Chance

Arnold Hanger's Dit, who hasn't done much since winning the Wood Memorial and finishing third in the Kentucky Derby; Mrs. Payne Whitney's Century Note, Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' General Manager, the recently-consistent Bolingbroke, standard bearer of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, and Mrs. R. H. Henghe's Zayin are the outsiders.

If all nine go postward—which appears doubtful, since Mr. Fitz hardly will start four—the value of the victory may near record-breaking proportions for the winner. The high for the stake was $11,800 which Pinkola collected way back in 1908, long before the race was limited to three year olds exclusively.

Record for the mile-and-an-eighth is 1:51, first set by Dalmation in 1910 and equalled four times since then, the last time by Stagehand in his championship three-year old year, 1938.

Mahan's Single Beats Corsairs

Timely Blow with Bases Loaded Gives Phils 6 to 3 Triumph

PITTSBURGH, July 12 (AP)—Art Mahan's looping hingle to right with the bases filled in the fifth inning—one of his four hits—was the deciding blow which gave Philadelphia 6 to 3 victory over Pittsburgh tonight before 9,042 fans.

Singles by Merrill May and Bob Bragan and a pass to Bill Atwood by Joe Bowman set the stage for Mahan's hit, which sent two runs home and broke up a 1-1 tie. Emmett Mueller followed with another single, driving in a third run and bringing Johnny Lanning to Bowman's rescue.

As an anti-climax the Phillies added two more runs in the ninth off Big Ross Bauers, Mahan opening this rally with two down by singling. Joe Marty, Mueller and Johnny Rizzo followed with singles, chasing Bauers.

Errors by Mueller and Bragan in the ninth put Pirate runners on second and third base and Paul Waner, batting for Vince DiMaggio, sent them home with a single.

What Would Jenkins Do Without Bill Morris?

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, July 12.—Lew Jenkins, the hungry lightweight champion, has scored a beat on Henry Armstrong, his opposition of next Wednesday, by obtaining the services of Dr. William Morris, the famous secret agent.

Mr. Jenkins is training at Grossinger's Country Club, Ferndale, N. Y., among the so-called Kosher Alps. This is the terrain that made Dr. Morris famous. He knows every bush and twig up there. On the other hand, the bushes and twigs do not know Dr. Morris, for the doctor is a man of many disguises and never appears in the same one twice.

He has been known to assume the role of a bush himself, and settle down among the other bushes, gossiping about problems and personalities in the bush racket until he has completely hoodwinked the local shrubbery. After pumping his victim, he lopes back to headquarters with a thorough report.

Used a Dictaphone

The last time Dr. Morris spied in those mountains, he was on the payroll of Jimmy McLarnin, who employed him to lurk around Barney Ross's camp and find out what he could about Ross. The first sixteen times he tried to enter Ross's camp, the doctor's disguise was penetrated, and they threw him out. Nothing daunted, Dr. Morris hired a subsidiary agent to plant a dictaphone in Ross's dressing-room.

Later the dictaphone record was retrieved, and the doctor took it to McLarnin's camp, where everybody gathered around to hear the secrets that the gullible Ross had betrayed.

"Boys," said Ross's voice on the record, "I wonder what's become of Doc Morris?"

"The last time we seen him," said another voice, "he was smuggling a dictaphone record into this joint. It's probably somewhere around here now."

"Well," said Ross, "I'm glad to hear the doc is working. Next time you see him, give him my regards."

Much to Dr. Morris's chargin, McLarnin refused to pay for this information, in spite of its sentimental value. In fact, McLarnin was sulky enough to imply that the doctor could not spy on himself in a telephone booth. These words came back to haunt Jimmy when he lost the fight—undoubtedly because he refused to make use of the data obtained at great risk by Dr. Morris.

The doctor is now engaged by Mr. Jenkins to learn the secrets of Henry Armstrong, which are said to be extremely interesting. Dr. Morris is free, under contract, to syndicate these secrets when he learns them. If there is anything of interest to the government of Bolivia, for instance, he can communicate with the Bolivian secret service on his own time, just so Mr. Jenkins gets the information first.

Jots Down Secrets

Dr. Morris assumes a mask every day after lunch and swoops down upon the Armstrong camp in Pompton Lakes, N. J., arriving in time for Armstrong's workout. There he takes a special seat by the ringside, reserved for him by the Armstrong reception committee, and jots down secrets as fast as he discovers them. For the doctor's further convenience, Mr. Armstrong has supplied carbon paper, so that the doc may make as many copies as he wishes.

As Dr. Morris leaves camp, with his notes concealed in the sole of his shoe (he is prepared to swallow them, shoe and all, rather than surrender them), a man at the gate is detailed to make sure that everything has been satisfactory.

"Kind of hot today, Dr. Morris," this operative will say. "Don't you want to take off your mask and be comfortable?"

"No speak English," the doctor replies, chuckling to himself, for he alone knows that his mask is a light tropical worsted, made for summer wear, and twice as cool as it is outdoors.

Back at headquarters he decides his notes and spreads them out on the table, where Mr. Jenkins studies them.

"So," says Jenkins, "this Armstrong is a colored man, eh?"

"You bet he is, chief," says the doctor. "Don't let 'em fool you."

There is practically nothing about Armstrong which Jenkins does not know by now, and if he loses the fight next week, it will not be the fault of Dr. William Morris. Incidentally, the doctor was formerly known in the service as X-9, but the number has been changed to Stuyvesant 9-6100.

GAMES TOMORROW

Hyndman at Midland (2).
Cumberland at Frostburg.
Keyser at Westvaco.

Frostburg's American Legion tossers and Westvaco A. A. baseballers, sharing the leadership in the Bi-State League, face tough foes in games today at 3 o'clock with Hyndman at Frostburg and the Pulpmen at Midland.

Westvaco, which tied the Legion outfit for first place the last weekend by winning two of three games from Hyndman while Frostburg was defeating the Colts and bowing to Keyser, hopes to make it four straight victories over the Red Sox.

The Pulpmen, winners of six of their last nine tests, will be facing a club which has copped two of its last three. Manager Tommy McGuire may start Michael Orr, Frank Steinbugle or Ed McNichol, each of whom has defeated Midland.

Colts Entertain Keyser

It will also be the fourth meeting of Frostburg and Hyndman with the Legion holding a 2-1 lead in the series. Frostburg's victories were credited to Stanley Stetz and Ival "Speed" Lambert while Lambert was the loser and Jim Stevenson the winner when Hyndman managed to win a 5-4 decision in the first meeting of the teams.

Hyndman has dropped three of its last five games with two of these setbacks coming the last weekend. Frostburg will be seeking its ninth victory in its last dozen appearances.

The Cumberland Colts and the Keyser Moose, the two middle clubs in the standing, are slated to meet at Community Park here in today's other encounter.

Moose Not Far Behind

The Moose team is in third place one game ahead of the Dobbins and only a single game behind the knotted pace-setters. Keyser fans are hoping for a Moose victory and defeat for Westvaco and Frostburg.

Keyser will be striving to run its winning streak to three games and at the same time register its third victory over the Colts in four meetings. The Dobbins lost to Frostburg and Midland in their last two clashes.

Four contests are scheduled Sunday with Hyndman going to Midland for a doubleheader, Frostburg entertains the Colts, and Westvaco and Keyser meet at Memorial Park, Westernport.

Roster Changes

President Arthur G. Ramey, in the absence from the city of Secretary-Treasurer Don Shires, today announced the following roster changes with all new players eligible for games tomorrow:

Hyndman—Signed Jack Adams and Victor Morocco, both of Somerset, Pa., and released John Lowery and Gerald Miller.

Westvaco—Released Harry Fields, Ray Cameron, Harry Stafford and Zihlman Dinning.

Midland Bolstered

MIDLAND, Md., July 12— The cellar dwelling Midland Red Sox of the Bi-State League have become a strongly re-enforced team during the past week and give all indications of vacating that undesirable standing this week-end. Manager Frank Graham announced here today the signing of four new players including two badly needed pitchers. The new players are Jack Lindsay, Altoona, an outfielder; John Yoder and Charles Lappi, Jerome, both pitchers and James Miller, Altoona, shortstop. Releases were turned in for Garland Green and Joseph Nestor. There will be three games played on the local field this week-end. Westvaco will be here on Saturday afternoon and Manager Graham will pitch Al Lauber, who has to his credit a total of three wins and only one defeat. The lone defeat was at the hands of Westvaco but Lauber is in good condition and expects to have no trouble quieting the bats of Lou Porta and company. Yoder and Lappi will be pressed into service in the double-header with Hyandman on Sunday.

Jeffra To Defend Title in Baltimore

Baltimore, July 12. (AP) — Harry Jeffra of Baltimore, recognized in Maryland and New York as the world's featherweight champion, will meet Spider Armstrong of Toronto in a 15-round title bout here July 29.

Jeffra is in training here now and Al Weill, Armstrong's manager, said the challenger would work out in New York until July 21, then come here to finish training. Weill said Toronto, Philadelphia and Providence, R. I., had asked for the bout.

Jockey Vesseli Is Set Down; Mount Is Disqualified

West Sea Named Winner When Schley Goree Interferes

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 12 (AP)—Rain, clouds, and a disqualification in the feature combined today at Hagerstown race track, but failed, individually and collectively, to put a damper on the spirits of the crowd.

R. A. Bowman's Schley Goree, ridden by A. Vesseli, scored in the Hotel Hamilton purse, the mile and sixteenth feature, after cutting out the heavily-backed favorite, West Sea, on the far turn.

The stewards upheld a protest, disqualified Schley Goree and set Vesseli down five days for rough tactics. West Sea, owned by Mrs. C. Butler, was moved into first place and paid off $4.50 for $2. Keswick Hill took second money.

Stewards held Vesseli cut West Sea off on the first turn and again on the far turn.

E. C. Jackson's True Line, winner of the five-furlong opener, coupled with H. Pleet's Single Play in the second to pay $55 on the daily double—highest double of the meeting.

The SPORT TRAIL

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
(Scouting for Whitney Martin)

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Horse players, called the most gullible suckers in American sport, are going to get a break at last.

The be-whiskered, 100-year-old rule which stipulates that a horse is a starter in a race once the animal has stepped on the track undoubtedly is to be changed in the 22 states where racing is legal. This probably will be done at the next national convention of the state racing commissions.

The rule already has been changed in Rhode Island, home of Narragansett Park, Illinois, with four major tracks—Arlington Park, Washington Park, Lincoln Fields and Hawthorne—was the next state to fall in line.

At Narragansett Park a horse is not a starter until the race is off—which means when the horses have bounded out of the starting gate. In the event a horse is injured or for other reasons is unable to get away, the wagers on that horse are refunded.

In Illinois, the state racing commission has empowered track stewards to excuse a horse if injured or otherwise found to be unfit before the actual start of a race and to refund the money wagered from the pari-mutuel pool.

This change in Illinois racing law was started by "boos" from a holiday crowd of 50,000 at fashionable Arlington Park July 4 when a horse named Porters Mite, on which $12,708 had been wagered, was prevented by a last-minute injury from running in the $10,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap.

The horse, while parading to the post, was frightened by hand-clapping spectators at the rail. It wheeled, jumped the track rail, and became lodged on its back between that barrier and the public guard rail. Twelve men worked to haul the horse free. It suffered cuts and bruises and was led back to the barn. The thoroughbred was excused from the race but bettors who had tossed $12,708 into the mutuel machines, lost their dough because of the iron clad rule which called the horse a starter since it had stepped on the track.

The ancient rule, according to Robert Shelly, racing secretary at Narragansett, Arlington and other major tracks, was designed to protect the old time bookmaker who established his prices on a huge blackboard for the betting gentry. In the event of an injury to a horse parading to the post, the oldtime bookie would have found himself in a mess, Shelly pointed out, without time to change his odds before the race started.

The oldtime bookmaker is a character of the past. Pari-mutuel machanes have taken his place throughout the country.

Wild Rookie Southpaw Wins for Cubs 2-0

Verne Olsen Gives Seven Walks but Baffles Boston

Posedel Yields Only Six Safeties but Bows on Shutout

Browns Show Greatest Gain of Any Team This Season

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Verne Olsen, rookie southpaw, set the Boston Bees down with five hits today to give the Chicago Cubs a 2 to 0 victory before a ladies' day crowd of 16,000.

Olsen's sinker ball baffled the invaders throughout, but his seven bases on balls kept Boston in the game. The yearling pitcher, however, was effective in the pinches, leaving 12 runners stranded on the bases. He also struck out seven batters.

Bill Posedel yielded only six hits to the Cubs, but Chicago bunched two of these for a run in the third inning. Stan Hack smacked a double and scored on Jim Gleeson's single. The other marker in the seventh was unearned. Bobby Mattick walked, went to second on Olsen's sacrifice, advanced to third on Al Glossop's error on Hack's grounder and scored on a double steal.

The victory was Olsen's fifth as against as many defeats.

Browns On Upgrade

ST. LOUIS, July 12 (AP)—Although they had dropped seven straight games up to today, the surprising St. Louis Browns showed the largest percentage gain of any team in the American League for the first half of the 1940 season.

Statistics prove the Brownies, habitual tailenders, are 145 percentage points and 10 games ahead of their figure on the same date a year ago, having jumped from .284 to .429.

The same, however, does not hold true of the fading St. Louis Cardinals of the National League. A year ago the Redbirds were over the .500 mark, with a percentage of .514, but today they were lodged in sixth place with .403, the largest loss shown by any of the National League teams.

Only one club—Brooklyn in the National—has shown a larger increase than the Browns. The Dodgers have jumped from .515 to .662, a gain of 147 points.

Yankees Slipping

That the powerful New York Yankees may be slipping is indicated by the figures at the halfway mark.

Joe McCarthy's men have skidded from .707 to .521, a loss of 186 percentage points. A year ago today the New Yorkers were 6½ games ahead of the field, while now the club is being kicked around in fourth place, about 13 games off the pace they established last year.

The first place Detroit Tigers moved up from .514 midway last year to .620, a gain of 106 points.

The leading Cincinnati Reds of the National League show a gain of 38 points, the New York Giants 40 and the Phillies 35, while Pittsburgh dropped 74, Boston 66 and Chicago 6 percentage points.

Cleveland is 67 points ahead of last year and the Philadelphia Athletics gained 25, with the Chicago and Boston entries in the American League losing 82 and 63 points, respectively. The Senators dropped 5 points.

Parsons Barbers Trim Hide Off Tannery 6 to 5

PARSONS, W. Va., July 12—In the Industral Softball League, the Parsons Barbers defeated the Tannery by a score of 6-5, Thursday. The line-up was as follows: Barbers—pitcher, Strawderman; catcher, C. Police Boys Club Fight Show Draws Many Amateur Fans

Cold Weather Cuts in to Attendance at First Card

The Police Boys' Club of Cumberland presented their first amateur boxing show last night before a crowd of about five hundred enthusiastic fans. The attendance was undoubtedly curtailed by the cold weather which was at its coldest at Fort Hill Stadium.

The card featured a picked team of battlers from the St. Mary's Boys Club of Alexandria, Va. The boys from the Virginia city were well trained and ring wise and did not lose a bout to any of their local opponents. Two knockouts gave the "finish fight" fan his dish and the rest of the card featured boxing of a very high order.

The knockouts on the card were administered by Eddie Robinette of Cumberland who stretched out Joe Niland also of Cumberland; and Pete Smith, 190 pounder who tagged Ollie Stammers, colored, of South End. Both kayos came in the third round. Smith, of Green Spring finished Stammers, colored heavy after 50 seconds of the third and final round, while Robinette finished Niland in 1:11 of the third of their fight.

The card included ten three two minute round bouts.

The bouts and winners: Mutt Baily, 104, of the St. Mary's Boys Club, decision, over Billy Ray, 105, Police Boys Club; Don Basilio, 132, Police Boys Club, decision, Vernon Robinette, 132; Orville Jackson 137, Frostburg, decision, Red Klosterman 135, Police Boys Club; James Catanese, 120, St. James A. C., over Harry Lancaster, 120, Frostburg; Pete Smith, 190, Green Spring, kayoed Ollie Stammers, 197, Cumberland, 50 seconds of the third round; Al Horton, 118, St. Mary's, Golden Gloves Champion, 112 pound class, District of Columbia, decision over Jimmy Childress, 119, Cumberland; Al Cavone, 140, St. Mary's, decision over Kid Nitro, 134, Cumberland; Ed Robinette, 135, Cumberland, kayoed Joe Niland, 135, Cumberland in 1:11 of the third round; Frances Smith, 130, St. Mary's decisioned Johnny Day, 130, Cumberland; Carl Steele, 144, St. Mary's, decisioned Garland (Buckwheat) Hiser, 148, Cumberland.

The officials: Judges — Bobby Cavanaugh, and Tim Dolan; Timekeeper, Arthur G. Ramey; Referee, Officer James Kelly; Announcer, Dr. Joseph P. Franklin.

Durocher To Revise Dodger Lineup

CINCINNATI, July 12. (AP)—A three-game losing streak and a trio of doubleheaders scheduled for the next three days caused Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, to revise his line-up today.

Durocher himself will replace Pee Wee Rese at shortstop and Charley Gilbert will replace rightfielder Joe Vosmik but will play in centerfield with Dixie Walker, regular centerfielder, moving to right.

Two batting changes were also announced. Babe Phelps will hit in fourth place instead of Ducky Medwick, and Cookie Lavagetto has been dropped from second to seventh place.

Vale Summit Girls Claim Forfeit Win

Vale Summit, July 12.—The Vale Summit girls' softball team yesterday claimed a forfeit victory over Midlothian when the latter club was unable to muster a full team for a scheduled Georges Creek Girls' League contest here.

The victory was Vale Summit's sixth in a row. Next Tuesday, the local lassies will close their first half campaign by meeting Pekin on the latter's field.

Bob Feller Hurls One-Hit Contest, Fans Thirteen

Cleveland Ace Bests Babich, of Athletics in 1 to 0 Mound Duel

PHILADELPHIA, July 12. (AP), Bobby Feller held the Athletics to one hit tonight—a single by Dick Siebert in the eighth inning—to give the league-leading Cleveland Indians a 1 to 0 victory.

Feller outpitched rookie Johnny Babich to chalk up his fourteenth victory of the campaign before 8,104 chilly fans.

For seven innings Feller pitched no-hit ball. Al Brancato, who walked with two down in the fourth, was the only Mackman to reach first until Siebert singled to center to start the eighth.

With two down Feller then walked Al Rubeling and both men advanced on a wild pitch. However, feller bore down and whizzed three strikes past pinchhitter Chubby Chuby Dean to end the A's only threat.

Altogether Feller struck out thirteen batters.

Babich, seeking his eighth win, held Cleveland to six hits. The Indians' lone tally came in the third on doubles by Ben Chapman and Lou Boudreau. Twice, with men on second and third, he retired Hal Trosky to end Cleveland threats.

The victory increased Cleveland's lead over the idle Detroit Tigers to one full game.

W. Va. Semi-Pro Champs Start Title Defense

HARRISVILLE, W. Va., July 12 (AP)—Clarksburg Wanstreet Servicemen will open defense of the West Virginia-pro baseball championship tomorrow at the start of the second annual tournament.

The team is paired against Christopher No. 3. St. Mary's Oilers will play Austin Powder Company and Lumberport Red Sox will meet the unannounced 12th team to enter the competition.

On Sunday, Wyatt Cubs will compete against Corra's, Century Cubs against the Dr. Adams and Hap Grotey All-Stars and Ritchie Merchants against McFarlan.

Finals of the tournament will be held the following weekend. The state winners will compete against the Virginia champion between August 1 and 15 for the privilege of playing in the national tournament at Wichita, Kansas, August 16-28.

North End Keeps Pace in City Race With 10-3 Victory

Merchants Crush Ridgeley for Fourth Straight Win

The North End Merchants maintained their pace in the second-half race of the City Softball League yesterday by romping to an easy 10 - 3 victory over the Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club on the North End Playground field.

Allen "Iron Man" Sheetz scattered four bingles in going the distance for the merchants, racking up his third win in four days. The Merchants, on the other hand, raked the offerings of two Ridgeley flingers for 18 safeties, five of them going for extra cushions.

Eight of the winners' counters came in the third frame when 12 batsmen waved the willow. The West Virginians' tallies were scored in the second, fourth and seventh stanzas.

Frank and Lou Riehl, and Sheetz each got three bingles to pace the winners' attack, while "Red" Simpson, Catcher Tichnell, Bennett and Grim garnered Ridgeley's hits.

Shrout Seeks Sixth Victory Next Friday

Cumberland's sensational young heavyweight scrapper — Clarence "Kayo" Shrout—will bid for his sixth straight professional victory next Friday night when he meets George Cerosky, hard-hitting Akron (Ohio) scrapper, in the eight-round number of the Cumberland Athletic Club's American Red Cross benefit card at Community Park. Ten percent of the net is to be given the fund.

The Shrout-Cerosky bout will occupy the No. 3 spot on the program which has ten-round battles between Cleo McNeal, Canton (Ohio) negro welterweight, and Pete DeRuzza, of New York, and Lloyd Pine, Akron featherweight, and the veteran Pete DeGrasse as the headliners.

Rugged Johnny Booth, the Eckhart muscle mauler, and George Bennett, of Frostburg, are to meet in the show's six-rounder, while the opener will bring together Thomas "Bucky" Walbert, of Cumberland, and Kid Paige, local negro, in a four-round scrap.

Cerosky is undoubtedly the best scrapper Shrout has been asked to meet since making his pro debut last December with a first round technical knockout over Ken "Hank" Lindsay. The Akron mittman has met such topnotchers as Jack Trammell, Lorenzo Pack, Jack Patton, Eddie (Unknown) Winston, Roscoe Toles and others.

Shrout's record, in addition to the win over Lindsay, shows technical knockouts over Charlie Brant, Howard "Red" Bush and Billy Van Meter, and a decision over Kid Zelinski. Shrout had all of his opponents on the floor two or more times and the four that failed to go the limit were stopped to save his bleeding and dazed opponents from possible serious injury.

Shrout was only an average performer among the amateurs, but since turning pro he has developed one of the most lethal punches seen here in years and he has also shown the ability to take it while dishing it out.

Old Jim Jeffries Joins Red Cross Comebackers

LOS ANGELES, July 12 (AP) — James J. Jeffries—honest, it's a fact—said today he had been reading where Jack Dempsey had challenged Gene Tunney to box for the Red Cross, and now has an offer to make himself.

"I would like to meet the winner," said the 65-year-old Jeffries, "provided either can go over four rounds. And I'm serious about it."

Big Jim's last fight was the memorable loss in 1910 to Jack Johnson.

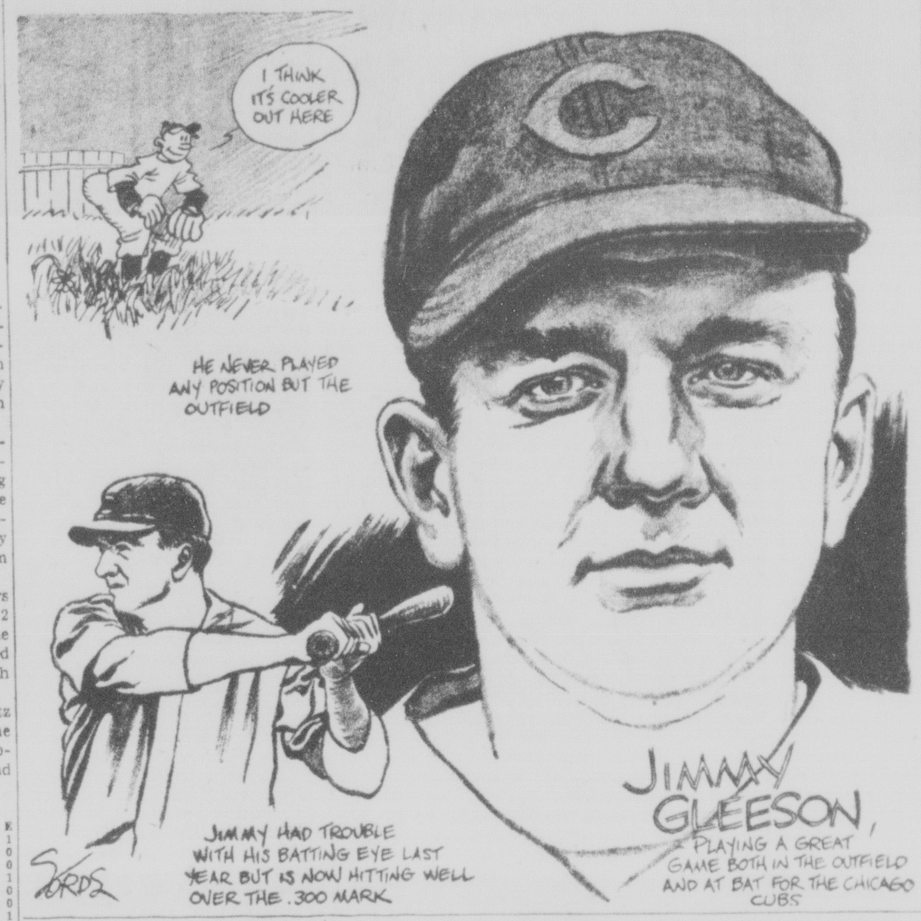

Corriganville Cops

Corriganville easily defeated the Wilkinson Grocers here yesterday 9 to 2. Bob Helmick had three for three, including a triple while E. Robinson had a single in his one try after walking three times. Brode's two for four was Wilkinson's best.

Football Fans of Nation Join Poll Of All-Star Team

Will Select Eleven To Play Green Bay Packers August 29

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Football fans throughout the country figuratively moved down from the stands and take over the coaches' bench today.

Balloting began in a nation-wide, two weeks poll to select the membership of the collegiate eleven which will start against the Green Bay Packers, professional champions, in Chicago's seventh annual all-star game at Soldier Field the night of Aug. 29.

Voting will continue until July 23. The two ends, two tackles, two guards, center, quarterback, two halfbacks and fullback receiving the greatest number of votes will start against the world's professional titleholders.

The poll promises to be the largest since the first all stars-professional spectacle in 1934. The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., sponsor of the event directed by the Chicago Tribune sports editor, Arch Ward, will cooperate with 385 newspapers and radio stations in 47 states and the District of Columbia. Delaware is the only state not represented.

This year's battle may give one side an edge in a series which opened with the All-Stars and Chicago Bears playing to a scoreless tie. The 1936 game also was a deadlock, with the Collegians winning in 1937 and 1938 and bowing to the pros in 1935 and 1939. The score last year was All-Stars 0, New York Giants 9.

Only one game was played on Thursday in the South End Booster Softball League with two other contests resulting in forfeits and a fourth battle being postponed on account of rain.

The Kings upset Candy Kitchen 11-10 in eight innings when Snider walked Rowan with the bases loaded to force in the winning run. Spriggs with two home runs was the Kings' batting star while Walburn and Fraley each socked a four-ply blow for the Kitcheners.

Post's Cardinals forfeited to Liberty Dairy while Lacy's Delicatets won by forfeit over the Davis Gassers to take a half-game lead over the Trozzo Whirlwinds, whose contest with Golden Bakers was called off.

Newsom, Scribe Exchange Blows

Washington, July 12. (AP)—Buck Newsom, Tigers' pitcher, and Bob Ruark, Washington sports writer, came to blows yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

Shortly before game time Ruark entered the Detroit clubhouse, and Newsom made a verbal attack on him for something he had written. Ruark landed a light left on Newsom's jaw, but Detroit players pried them apart before hostilities went any further.

THE GREATEST PUTTERS

Who are the greatest putters that golf has ever known?

I am referring here to those who had to prove their skill along the carpet under championship fire. I put the debate up to Gil Nicholls, the veteran pro at Deepdale, who has seen them come and go for forty years or more.

"Could you name five putters," I asked Gil, "from twenty years back or longer, who could match the five best putters we have today?"

"Suppose you name the five best modern putters," Nicholls said in return. "I think I can match them from the old guard."

My nominations were Horton Smith, Paul Runyan, Billy Burke, Johnny Revolta and Henry Picard. You can add Gene Sarazen and Harry Cooper to this list.

"That's quite a group," Gil said, "but I think I can beat it. In fact, I think I can name the four best putters of all time. Who are they? Walter J. Travis, Jerry Travers, Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen." Playing for the Red Cross at Lido, Bobby Jones this Saturday will prove that Calamity Jane is still on the job.

"I am referring now to tournament putters. I doubt that any two men could do more with a putting blade than Travis and Travers," said Nicholls, "Both used the old Schenectady, the center-shafted type. They had to be great putters, because neither had the distance carried by leading stars.

Jones and Hagen

"Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen were almost as good as Travis and Travers," the veteran continued. "Each has always had a beautiful putting style, a perfect striking motion, with Jones just a little steadier at every type of putt.

"These four are not the only ones. Willie Anderson was a grand putter. So was Freddie McLeod and so was Tommy McNamara. You can add any of these to the other four I've mentioned, and I'll take them against the world."

Few realize how many tough matches Bobby Jones saved around the green. I can mention St. Andrews, Hoylake, Minikahda, Interlachen, Merion, Winged Foot—on and on. Jones, at his best, had the faculty or the needed touch required to get the ball just to the cup. You rarely saw one of his putts pop in and then pop out.

Few who saw can forget the string of long putts he holed at Winged Foot in 1929 for his 31 on the back nine of the first round—and the final side-hill 12-footer he canned to remain in play against Al Espinosa.

Hagen, like Jones, was a magnificent putter under fire. He was one of the most relaxed competitors under pressure golf has ever known. No more relaxed, however, than Jerry Travers was.

Putting Costs

Gil began talking of the other side—the heavy penalties paid by poorer putters at the cost of many championships.

"Harry Vardon was a terrible putter," Nicholls said. "Harry won six major Opens, but with a better putting style or touch he might easily have won ten or twelve.

"Johnny McDermott was another ragged putter, yet he won two U. S. Opens in a row. You can say the same thing about Chick Evans. Chic won the U. S. Open and the U. S. Amateur. If he could have handled a putter like a Travis, Travers, Jones, Hagen or Horton Smith I believe he would have bagged at least five or six more major titles. I've rarely seen a better iron player to the pin, especially with that mashie. Chic had as fine foot action as anyone in the game, and fine foot action is always rare."

Bob McDonald, one of the best of the teachers and one of the finest swingers I've ever seen, was another great golfer who found tragedy on the putting green. McDonald, a flawless stylist, one of the longer and straighter hitters, could never find the road to the cup.

Putting Methods

"What is the secret of good putting?" I asked the Deepdale instructor.

"Most of the great putters used different stances," Gil said. "Jones and Travers were much more upright than either Travis or Hagen. Jones and Travers stood with their feet closer together. They all had a smooth stroking motion, such as Horton Smith has today."

"What about Runyan and Burke and Revolta, who tap the ball with much shorter backswings?" I asked.

"Putting is more individual than any other stroke in golf," Nicholls answered. "Walter Travis used to say that golf was two games—from tee to green and then the putter. This is true. I'd say one of the main factors in good putting was the ability to ward off tenseness, the ability to keep relaxed. Add to that the ability to keep concentrating. One of the main putting faults is any extended knee or body movement through the stroke. Another is moving the head. There are almost no good putters who take the blade back quickly. This leads to a jab or stab. Many putts that hit the back of the cup refuse to drop through this fault.

"I don't advocate keeping the knees and body locked. But they must use little motion. There should be no head motion. I believe the soundest advice would be to get comfortable and then concentrate on what you are doing—first the correct line, then the speed of the green, and then to think of nothing but smooth stroking. Don't keep guessing about line or green speed when you start the putter back."

Putting is queer business at times. Horton Smith, one of the greatest, missed an 18-inch putt and a two-foot putt on the 17th green in successive rounds during the recent National Open. Still, he finished with a 288, one stroke away from Sarazen and Little, and Gene had to hole a 35-foot putt for his 287.

Yet such is golf. The ghost of the putter is the spectre that haunts the field. But those who can get a chance to see Bobby Jones swing the old putting blade, from Lido on Saturday on through other matches, can get some idea of a true stroking style.

Fremont Players "Strike" in Move To Retain Manager

Agree to Truce Pending Meeting of Board of Directors

FREMONT, O., July 12 (AP) — A dozen Fremont baseballers, threatened with life suspensions if they "struck" to enforce demands that Ray Caldwell be retained as manager of their Ohio State League team, agreed to a truce after appearing individually before the club's directors today.

The 12 decided to play under the temporary management of Ted Haas, veteran outfielder from West Chicago, Ill., pending another directors' session next Monday. Club owners had proposed to replace Caldwell with Garland (Luke) Sewell, veteran Green Sox second baseman from Campbell, Mo.

Paul Shank, president of the class D League, warned the players — representing the entire roster except Caldwell and Sewell, who is neutral—they would face permanent suspension from organized baseball should they carry through their plan.

Caldwell, former Cleveland Indian pitcher who gave up a recreational supervisor position in Lorain to take over the managership this year, said notification of his discharge contained no reason.

"I think I am at least entitled to that," he declared. "In fact, I believe the rules require it." Players said they understood officials' objections to Caldwell were that he lacked hustle, and the club was only tied for fourth place when the dispute came to a head yesterday. Although he is 53 years old, he has made several pitching appearances, winning one game and losing three.

Doubles Finals Scheduled Today

Robert Bane and Ross Palmer, and Eisenberg-Middlecamp in Men's Contest

The finals in the men's doubles for the city championship will be played this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Dingle courts by Ross Palmer and Robert Bane vs. Lawrence Middlecamp and Loraine Eisenberg.

Eisenberg and Middlecamp reached the finals by eliminating W. E. Hinkel and Edward Harvey yesterday at the Dingle, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3.

The mixed doubles finals will be played tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Dingle. Mrs. Arden Lowndes and Ross Palmer will face Mrs. Peyton Brown and Lawrence Middlecamp.

Brown and Middlecamp entered the finals by disposing of Mrs. Leo Leasure and Robert Bane yesterday 6-2, 7-5.

Sunday afternoon at 2:30 on the Country club courts the Dingle tennis team will play the Country club team five double matches.

Wild Rookie Southpaw Wins for Cubs 2-0

Verne Olsen Gives Seven Walks but Baffles Boston

Posedel Yields Only Six Safeties but Bows on Shutout

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Verne Olsen, rookie southpaw, set the Boston Bees down with five hits today to give the Chicago Cubs a 2 to 0 victory before a ladies' day crowd of 16,000.

Olsen's sinker ball baffled the invaders throughout, but his seven bases on balls kept Boston in the game. The yearling pitcher, however, was effective in the pinches, leaving 12 runners stranded on the bases. He also struck out seven batters.

Bill Posedel yielded only six hits to the Cubs, but Chicago bunched two of these for a run in the third inning, Stan Hack smacked a double and scored on Jim Gleeson's single. The other marker in the seventh was unearned. Bobby Mattick walked, went to second on Olsen's sacrifice, advanced to third on Al Glossop's error on Hack's grounder and scored on a double steal.

The victory was Olsen's fifth as against as many defeats.

Browns On Upgrade

ST. LOUIS, July 12 (AP)—Although they had dropped seven straight games up to today, the surprising St. Louis Browns showed the largest percentage gain of any team in the American League for the first half of the 1940 season.

Statistics prove the Brownies, habitual tailenders, are 145 percentage points and 10 games ahead of their figure on the same date a year ago, having jumped from .284 to .429.

The same, however, does not hold true of the fading St. Louis Cardinals of the National League. A year ago the Redbirds were over the .500 mark, with a percentage of .514, but today they were lodged in sixth place with .403, the largest loss shown by any of the National League teams.

Only one club—Brooklyn in the National—has shown a larger increase than the Browns. The Dodgers have jumped from .515 to .662, a gain of 147 points.

Yankees Slipping

That the powerful New York Yankees may be slipping is indicated by the figures at the halfway mark.

Joe McCarthy's men have skidded from .707 to .521, a loss of 186 percentage points. A year ago today the New Yorkers were 6½ games ahead of the field, while now the club is being kicked around in fourth place, about 13 games off the pace they established last year.

The first place Detroit Tigers moved up from .514 midway last year to .620, a gain of 106 points.

The leading Cincinnati Reds of the National League show a gain of 38 points, the New York Giants 40 and the Phillies 35, while Pittsburgh dropped 74, Boston 66 and Chicago 6 percentage points.

Cleveland is 67 points ahead of last year and the Philadelphia Athletics gained 25, with the Chicago and Boston entries in the American League losing 82 and 63 points, respectively. The Senators dropped 5 points.

Parsons Barbers Trim Hide Off Tannery 6 to 5

PARSONS, W. Va., July 12—In the Industral Softball League, the Parsons Barbers defeated the Tannery by a score of 6-5, Thursday. The line-up was as follows: Barbers—pitcher, Strawderman; catcher, C. Simmons; first base, Minear; second base, Wolfe; third base, Riley; rigth field, Cohen; left field, W. Simmons; center field, Digman; short field, Bible; short stop, Cox. Tannery—pitcher, Simmons; catcher, Gerasco; first base, Goff; second base, Digman; third base, Nestor; right field, S. Isner; left field, E. Roy; center field, McDonald; short field, VanNoy; short stop; Price. H. McDonald replaced Isner at right field for the Tannery.

Police Boys Club Fight Show Draws Many Amateur Fans

Cold Weather Cuts in to Attendance at First Card

The Police Boys' Club of Cumberland presented their first amateur boxing show last night before a crowd of about five hundred enthusiastic fans. The attendance was undoubtedly curtailed by the cold weather which was at its coldest at Fort Hill Stadium.

The card featured a picked team of battlers from the St. Mary's Boys Club of Alexandria, Va. The boys from the Virginia city were well trained and ring wise and did not lose a bout to any of their local opponents. Two knockouts gave the "finish fight" fan his dish and the rest of the card featured boxing of a very high order.

The knockouts on the card were administered by Eddie Robinette of Cumberland who stretched out Joe Niland also of Cumberland; and Pete Smith, 190 pounder who tagged Ollie Stammers, colored, of South End. Both kayos came in the third round. Smith, of Green Spring finished Stammers, colored heavy after 50 seconds of the third and final round, while Robinette finished Niland in 1:11 of the third of their fight.

The card included ten three two minute round bouts.

Durocher To Revise Dodger Lineup

CINCINNATI, July 12. (AP)—A three-game losing streak and a trio of doubleheaders scheduled for the next three days caused Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, to revise his line-up today.

Durocher himself will replace Pee Wee Rese at shortstop and Charley Gilbert will replace right-fielder Joe Vosmik but will play in centerfield with Dixie Walker, regular centerfielder, moving to right.

Two batting changes were also announced. Babe Phelps will hit in fourth place instead of Ducky Medwick, and Cookie Lavagetto has been dropped from second to seventh place.

Vale Summit Girls Claim Forfeit Win

Vale Summit, July 12.—The Vale Summit girls' softball team yesterday claimed a forfeit victory over Midlothian when the latter club was unable to muster a full team for a scheduled Georges Creek Girls' League contest here.

The victory was Vale Summit's sixth in a row. Next Tuesday, the local lassies will close their first half campaign by meeting Pekin on the latter's field.

Bob Feller Hurls One-Hit Contest, Fans Thirteen

Cleveland Ace Bests Babich, of Athletics in 1 to 0 Mound Duel

PHILADELPHIA, July 12, (AP). Bobby Feller held the Athletics to one hit tonight—a single by Dick Siebert in the eighth inning—to give the league-leading Cleveland Indians a 1 to 0 victory.

Feller outpitched rookie Johnny Babich to chalk up his fourteenth victory of the campaign before 8,104 chilly fans.

For seven innings Feller pitched no-hit ball. Al Brancato, who walked with two down in the fourth, was the only Mackman to reach first until Siebert singled to center to start the eighth.

With two down Feller then walked Al Rubeling and both men advanced on a wild pitch. However, feller bore down and whizzed three strikes past pinchhitter Chubby Chuby Dean to end the A's only threat.

Altogether Feller struck out thirteen batters.

Babich, seeking his eighth win, held Cleveland to six hits. The Indians' lone tally came in the third on doubles by Ben Chapman and Lou Boudreau. Twice, with men on second and third, he retired Hal Trosky to end Cleveland threats.

The victory increased Cleveland's lead over the idle Detroit Tigers to one full game.

W. Va. Semi-Pro Champs Start Title Defense

HARRISVILLE, W. Va., July 12 (AP)—Clarksburg Wanstreet Servicemen will open defense of the West Virginia-pro baseball championship tomorrow at the start of the second annual tournament.

The team is paired against Christopher No. 3. St. Mary's Oilers will play Austin Powder Company and Lumberport Red Sox will meet the unannounced 12th team to enter the competition.

On Sunday, Wyatt Cubs will compete against Corra's, Century Cubs against the Dr. Adams and Hap Grotey All-Stars and Ritchie Merchants against McFarlan.

Finals of the tournament will be held the following weekend. The state winners will compete against the Virginia champion between August 1 and 15 for the privilege of playing in the national tournament at Wichita, Kansas, August 16-28.

Tri-Towns Tilts Off

Westernport, July 12.—Tri-Towns Softball League games scheduled yesterday between the Oilers and McIntyre Bakers and Wolverines and WPA-Legion were postponed because of rain.

North End Keeps Pace in City Race With 10-3 Victory

Merchants Crush Ridgeley for Fourth Straight Win

The North End Merchants maintained their pace in the second-half race of the City Softball League yesterday by romping to an easy 10 - 3 victory over the Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club on the North End Playground field.

Allen "Iron Man" Sheetz scattered four bingles in going the distance for the merchants, racking up his third win in four days. The Merchants, on the other hand, raked the offerings of two Ridgeley flingers for 18 safeties, five of them going for extra cushions.

Eight of the winners' counters came in the third frame when 12 batsmen waved the willow. The West Virginians' tallies were scored in the second, fourth and seventh stanzas.

Frank and Lou Riehl, and Sheetz each got three bingles to pace the winners' attack, while "Red" Simpson, Catcher Tichnell, Bennett and Grim garnered Ridgeley's hits.

Shrout Seeks Sixth Victory Next Friday

Cumberland's sensational young heavyweight scrapper — Clarence "Kayo" Shrout—will bid for his sixth straight professional victory next Friday night when he meets George Cerosky, hard-hitting Akron (Ohio) scrapper, in the eight-round number of the Cumberland Athletic Club's American Red Cross benefit card at Community Park. Ten percent of the net is to be given the fund.

The Shrout-Cerosky bout will occupy the No. 3 spot on the program which has ten-round battles between Cleo McNeal, Canton (Ohio) negro welterweight, and Pete DeRuzza, of New York, and Lloyd Pine, Akron featherweight, and the veteran Pete DeGrasse as the headliners.

Rugged Johnny Booth, the Eckhart muscle mauler, and George Bennett, of Frostburg, are to meet in the show's six-rounder, while the opener will bring together Thomas "Bucky" Walbert, of Cumberland, and Kid Paige, local negro, in a four-round scrap.

Cerosky is undoubtedly the best scrapper Shrout has been asked to meet since making his pro debut last December with a first round technical knockout over Ken "Hank" Lindsay. The Akron mittman has met such topnotchers as Jack Trammell, Lorenzo Pack, Jack Patton, Eddie (Unknown) Winston, Roscoe Toles and others.

Shrout's record, in addition to the win over Lindsay, shows technical knockouts over Charlie Brant, Howard "Red" Bush and Billy Van Meter, and a decision over Kid Zelinski. Shrout had all of his opponents on the floor two or more times and the four that failed to go the limit were stopped to save his bleeding and dazed opponents from possible serious injury.

Shrout was only an average performer among the amateurs, but since turning pro he has developed one of the most lethal punches seen here in years and he has also shown the ability to take it while dishing it out.

Old Jim Jeffries Joins Red Cross Comebackers

LOS ANGELES, July 12 (AP) — James J. Jeffries—honest, it's a fact—said today he had been reading where Jack Dempsey had challenged Gene Tunney to box for the Red Cross, and now has an offer to make himself.

"I would like to meet the winner," said the 65-year-old Jeffries, "provided either can go over four rounds. And I'm serious about it."

Big Jim's last fight was the memorable loss in 1910 to Jack Johnson.

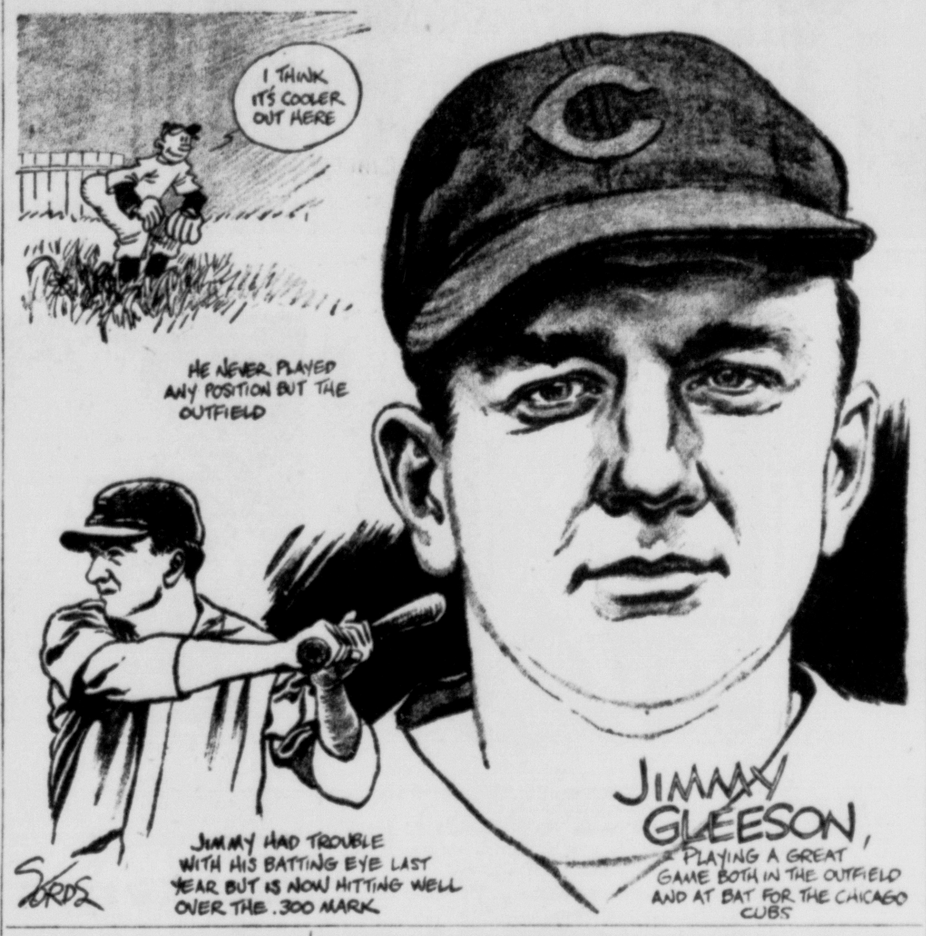

Corriganville Cops

Corriganville easily defeated the Wilkinson Grocers here yesterday 9 to 2. Bob Helmick had three for three, including a triple while E. Robinson had a single in his one try after walking three times. Brode's two for four was Wilkinson's best.

Football Fans of Nation Join Poll Of All-Star Team

Will Select Eleven To Play Green Bay Packers August 29

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Football fans throughout the country figuratively moved down from the stands and take over the coaches' bench today.

Balloting began in a nation-wide, two weeks poll to select the membership of the collegiate eleven which will start against the Green Bay Packers, professional champions, in Chicago's seventh annual all-star game at Soldier Field the night of Aug. 29.

Voting will continue until July 23. The two ends, two tackles, two guards, center, quarterback, two halfbacks and fullback receiving the greatest number of votes will start against the world's professional titleholders.

The poll promises to be the largest since the first all stars-professional spectacle in 1934. The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., sponsor of the event directed by the Chicago Tribune sports editor, Arch Ward, will cooperate with 385 newspapers and radio stations in 47 states and the District of Columbia. Delaware is the only state not represented.

This year's battle may give one side an edge in a series which opened with the All-Stars and Chicago Bears playing to a scoreless tie. The 1936 game also was a deadlock, with the Collegians winning in 1937 and 1938 and bowing to the pros in 1935 and 1939. The score last year was All-Stars 0, New York Giants 9.

Only one game was played on Thursday in the South End Booster Softball League with two other contests resulting in forfeits and a fourth battle being postponed on account of rain.

The Kings upset Candy Kitchen 11-10 in eight innings when Snider walked Rowan with the bases loaded to force in the winning run. Spriggs with two home runs was the Kings' batting star while Walburn and Fraley each socked a four-ply blow for the Kitcheners.

Post's Cardinals forfeited to Liberty Dairy while Lacy's Delicatets won by forfeit over the Davis Gassers to take a half-game lead over the Trozzo Whirlwinds, whose contest with Golden Bakers was called off.

Newsom, Scribe Exchange Blows

Washington, July 12. (AP)—Buck Newsom, Tigers' pitcher, and Bob Ruark, Washington sports writer, came to blows yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

Shortly before game time Ruark entered the Detroit clubhouse, and Newsom made a verbal attack on him for something he had written. Ruark landed a light left on Newsom's jaw, but Detroit players pried them apart before hostilities went any further.

THE GREATEST PUTTERS

Who are the greatest putters that golf has ever known?

I am referring here to those who had to prove their skill along the carpet under championship fire. I put the debate up to Gil Nicholls, the veteran pro at Deepdale, who has seen them come and go for forty years or more.

"Could you name five putters," I asked Gil, "from twenty years back or longer, who could match the five best putters we have today?"

"Suppose you name the five best modern putters," Nicholls said in return. "I think I can match them from the old guard."

My nominations were Horton Smith, Paul Runyan, Billy Burke, Johnny Revolta and Henry Picard. You can add Gene Sarazen and Harry Cooper to this list.

"That's quite a group," Gil said, "but I think I can beat it. In fact, I think I can name the four best putters of all time. Who are they? Walter J. Travis, Jerry Travers, Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen." Playing for the Red Cross at Lido, Bobby Jones this Saturday will prove that Calamity Jane is still on the job.

"I am referring now to tournament putters. I doubt that any two men could do more with a putting blade than Travis and Travers," said Nicholls, "Both used the old Schenectady, the center-shafted type. They had to be great putters, because neither had the distance carried by leading stars.

Jones and Hagen

"Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen were almost as good as Travis and Travers," the veteran continued. "Each has always had a beautiful putting style, a perfect striking motion, with Jones just a little steadier at every type of putt.

"These four are not the only ones. Willie Anderson was a grand putter. So was Freddie McLeod and so was Tommy McNamara. You can add any of these to the other four I've mentioned, and I'll take them against the world."

Few realize how many tough matches Bobby Jones saved around the green. I can mention St. Andrews, Hoylake, Minikahda, Interlachen, Merion, Winged Foot—on and on. Jones, at his best, had the faculty or the needed touch required to get the ball just to the cup. You rarely saw one of his putts pop in and then pop out.

Few who saw can forget the string of long putts he holed at Winged Foot in 1929 for his 31 on the back nine of the first round—and the final side-hill 12-footer he canned to remain in play against Al Espinosa.

Hagen, like Jones, was a magnificent putter under fire. He was one of the most relaxed competitors under pressure golf has ever known. No more relaxed, however, than Jerry Travers was.

Putting Costs

Gil began talking of the other side—the heavy penalties paid by poorer putters at the cost of many championships.

"Harry Vardon was a terrible putter," Nicholls said. "Harry won six major Opens, but with a better putting style or touch he might easily have won ten or twelve.

"Johnny McDermott was another ragged putter, yet he won two U. S. Opens in a row. You can say the same thing about Chick Evans. Chic won the U. S. Open and the U. S. Amateur. If he could have handled a putter like a Travis, Travers, Jones, Hagen or Horton Smith I believe he would have bagged at least five or six more major titles. I've rarely seen a better iron player to the pin, especially with that mashie. Chic had as fine foot action as anyone in the game, and fine foot action is always rare."

Bob McDonald, one of the best of the teachers and one of the finest swingers I've ever seen, was another great golfer who found tragedy on the putting green. McDonald, a flawless stylist, one of the longer and straighter hitters, could never find the road to the cup.

Putting Methods

"What is the secret of good putting?" I asked the Deepdale instructor.

"Most of the great putters used different stances," Gil said. "Jones and Travers were much more upright than either Travis or Hagen. Jones and Travers stood with their feet closer together. They all had a smooth stroking motion, such as Horton Smith has today."

"What about Runyan and Burke and Revolta, who tap the ball with much shorter backswings?" I asked.

"Putting is more individual than any other stroke in golf," Nicholls answered. "Walter Travis used to say that golf was two games—from tee to green and then the putter. This is true. I'd say one of the main factors in good putting was the ability to ward off tenseness, the ability to keep relaxed. Add to that the ability to keep concentrating. One of the main putting faults is any extended knee or body movement through the stroke. Another is moving the head. There are almost no good putters who take the blade back quickly. This leads to a jab or stab. Many putts that hit the back of the cup refuse to drop through this fault.

"I don't advocate keeping the knees and body locked. But they must use little motion. There should be no head motion. I believe the soundest advice would be to get comfortable and then concentrate on what you are doing—first the correct line, then the speed of the green, and then to think of nothing but smooth stroking. Don't keep guessing about line or green speed when you start the putter back."

Putting is queer business at times. Horton Smith, one of the greatest, missed an 18-inch putt and a two-foot putt on the 17th green in successive rounds during the recent National Open. Still, he finished with a 288, one stroke away from Sarazen and Little, and Gene had to hole a 35-foot putt for his 287.

Yet such is golf. The ghost of the putter is the spectre that haunts the field. But those who can get a chance to see Bobby Jones swing the old putting blade, from Lido on Saturday on through other matches, can get some idea of a true stroking style.

Boys Club Wins

The Police Boys Club defeated West Side Merchants yesterday 9 to 5. James led the winning assault with a triple and double. H. Naughton and P. Fisher had triples for the Merchants with C. Fisher contributing a pair of doubles.

Fremont Players "Strike" in Move To Retain Manager

Agree to Truce Pending Meeting of Board of Directors

FREMONT, O., July 12 (AP) — A dozen Fremont baseballers, threatened with life suspensions if they 'struck" to enforce demands that Ray Caldwell be retained as manager of their Ohio State League team, agreed to a truce after appearing individually before the club's directors today.

The 12 decided to play under the temporary management of Ted Haas, veteran outfielder from West Chicago, Ill., pending another directors' session next Monday. Club owners had proposed to replace Caldwell with Garland (Luke) Sewell, veteran Green Sox second baseman from Campbell, Mo.

Paul Shank, president of the class D League, warned the players — representing the entire roster except Caldwell and Sewell, who is neutral—they would face permanent suspension from organized baseball should they carry through their plan.

Caldwell, former Cleveland Indian pitcher who gave up a recreational supervisor position in Lorain to take over the managership this year, said notification of his discharge contained no reason.

"I think I am at least entitled to that," he declared. "In fact, I believe the rules require it." Players said they understood officials' objections to Caldwell were that he lacked hustle, and the club was only tied for fourth place when the dispute came to a head yesterday. Although he is 53 years old, he has made several pitching appearances, winning one game and losing three.

Doubles Finals Scheduled Today

Robert Bane and Ross Palmer, and Eisenberg-Middlecamp in Men's Contest

The finals in the men's doubles for the city championship will be played this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Dingle courts by Ross Palmer and Robert Bane vs. Lawrence Middlecamp and Loraine Eisenberg.

Eisenberg and Middlecamp reached the finals by eliminating W. E. Hinkel and Edward Harvey yesterday at the Dingle, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3.

The mixed doubles finals will be played tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Dingle. Mrs. Arden Lowndes and Ross Palmer will face Mrs. Peyton Brown and Lawrence Middlecamp.

Brown and Middlecamp entered the finals by disposing of Mrs. Leo Leasure and Robert Bane yesterday 6-2, 7-5.

Sunday afternoon at 2:30 on the Country club courts the Dingle tennis team will play the Country club team five double matches.

WANT TO BORROW $1000 on $2000 property. Box 593-A, c-o Times-News. 7-6-1wk-N

THE TOWN has grown much bigger in the last years, and the Times-News want ads have grown bigger with it. It's still just as easy to tell the fellow on the other side of town, with the help of an ad, what you have to rent or sell as it was when you could walk there in five minutes.

53—Wanted to Rent

HOUSE with electricity, must have at least 3 acres land or more, would like to be between Cumberland and Romney or in vicinity of either town or along South Branch Potomac River, would like to get a line on a place or will make a deposit on a place that will be open in Fall or Spring, will rent immediately if place is available. State Firemen To Return Here After Twenty-four Years

Mayor Irvine and Other Leaders Are Pleased City Was Chosen

That Cumberland, the state's second largest city is pleased with having been awarded the 1941 Maryland State Firemen's convention, came early yesterday when Mayor Harry Irvine and a group of representative business men and citizens notified the delegates at the state convention in Lonaconing of their gratification in securing the meeting next year.

Action on the selection of the 1941 convention city was taken Thursday night in Lonaconing when new state officers also were elected.

City Host Three Times

Since the Maryland State Firemen's Association was formed forty-seven years ago Cumberland has been host to the "blaze battlers" on three occasions—in 1896, 1904 and, again in 1917. Since 1917, no effort ever has been made to obtain the convention, inasmuch as Cumberland's two volunteer companies Chapel Hill Hose company, No. 6, and Cumberland Hose company, No. 1, had only a small membership—fifty to be exact, according to the state association's record.

However, with a membership campaign underway and with a desire to be of better service, Cumberland made its bid for the upcoming meeting through Col. Nelson W. Russler, business man and former county commissioner. He was a delegate from Chapel Hill Hose company. Mr. Russler, after conferring with leading officials, hotel managers, chamber of commerce heads, bankers and service clubs, and backed by his fellow firemen, he made the initial bid Thursday night. No sooner had Mr. Russler finished reading telegrams from the mayor and city council of Cumberland, the Second National bank, Peoples bank, Liberty Trust company, and the Commercial Savings bank, and making a personal appeal for the citizenry of Cumberland, than Edward J. Ryan, attorney, stepped to the front to further urge the delegates to select Cumberland.

Two Presidents from Here

Two Cumberland men — one of them deceased, held the presidency of the state organization which is comprised of 177 companies. The first to represent Western Maryland and Cumberland was John J. Stump, an insurance broker, who served one

Charles Nester Succumbs after Lingering Illness

B.&O. Firemen and World War Veteran Is Taken by Death

Charles Nester, 50, Baltimore and Ohio railroad fireman and World war veteran, died yesterday at his home, 13 Roberts street, following an illness of ten months.

Born at Rowlesburg, W. Va., Mr. Nester had been employed by the B. and O. railroad since 1910. He enlisted in the U. S. Army December 14, 1917, and served overseas with Companies A and C, Thirty-fifth Engineers, from March 12, 1918, until July 8, 1919.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Amanda Lease Nester, he is survived by three sons, Charles, Jr., Donald and Arthur Nester, of Cumberland; two brothers, William and Samuel Nester, of Terra Alta, W. Va., and one sister, Mrs. Rebecca Fitchet, of Terra Alta.

Gyneth A. Shanholtz

Gyneth Ann Shanholtz, infant daughter of William H. and Sarah M. Shanholtz, of RFD 2, Roberts Place, died yesterday morning at Allegany hospital where she was born Wednesday.

The body was taken to Garrett county for burial.

Mrs. Rose O'Connor

A requiem high mass for Mrs. Rose O'Connor, 4818 Lytel street, Pittsburgh, Pa., who died Wednesday at Montefiore hospital, will be conducted today at St. Stephen's Catholic church. Burial will be at Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. O'Connor was a native of Cumberland.

Mrs. Eli Belch

Mrs. Minnie Belch, 52, wife of Eli Belch, of Edenborn, Pa., died Tuesday night at Uniontown, (Pa.) hospital, following a brief illness.

A daughter, Mrs. Minnie Tait, of Cumberland, is among those surviving.

Rizer Approves Street Project

City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer yesterday turned over the proposed Frederick street project for WPA approval, Henry Tarring, Jr., resident engineer, said.

The project to construct streets, curbing and sidewalks on the unpaved avenue will provide 646 man months of work in all. However, the resident engineer said he did not know just how many men would be put on the job in the event it is approved.

Furnishing an illustration, Mr. Tarring said it would probably take a crew of fifty-six laborers about ten months to perform the work.

The paving job will cover 2,500 linear feet, it was announced at the WPA office. The State Roads Commission has tentatively promised to put in that section of the street from the city line to Nave's crossroad.

Ship Ahoy

Hugh McMullen Shaffer, of Cumberland, Monday is scheduled to start a one month cruise on the U. S. S. Wyoming in connection with the four months officers training course for a commission in the U. S. Reserves. Shaffer was one of five appointed to make the cruise.

Biehn Reports 36 Army Enlistments Here This Month

A total of thirty-six enlistments so far this month was reported yesterday by sergeant Clarence Biehn, recruiting officer for the U. S. Army with offices in the post office building.

While June enlistments totaled sixty-five, Sergeant Biehn predicted yesterday that the July total would top that record.

Approximately 300 men have enlisted in the army from the Cumberland area since Jan. 1, the recruiting officer said. This is the greatest number of enlistments over a six-months period in a number of years, he said.

Local Men Attend Meeting; To Enjoy Cruise on Yacht

William L. Geppert, managing editor of the Cumberland News and Harry H. Robinson, telegraph editor of the Times are attending the annual meeting of the Chesapeake division of Associated Press members today and Sunday.

The meeting will be held on the State Yacht du Pont which will sail from Annapolis at noon today. Members will enjoy a two days cruise on the yacht and entertainment will include fishing, swimming and other amusements. A business session will be held today.

Crippled Children's League To Conduct Clinic Here Soon

The Crippled Children's League, with the cooperation of the Health Department, will conduct a clinic at City Hall July 24, 25 and 26, it was announced last night by Miss Vivian Lambert, executive secretary of the league. Dr. Winfield Phelps will conduct the work the first two days and Dr. George E. Bennett, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

Three Drivers Fined In Police Court

Three drivers were fined and one was acquitted yesterday in local courts.

James A. Cline, 408 Stingdale street, was fined $10 and costs in Trial Magistrates court for driving alone on a thirty-day permit. A $10 fine was suspended in Police court on a charge of careless driving.

Virgil L. Hartsock, 15 Humbird street, arrested last Saturday on the West Side, paid $10 fine for speeding.

Karl F. Zimmerla, 446 North Centre street, was fined $5 for careless driving, while Clarence R. Simons of Bedford, Pa., was found not guilty of a similar count. Both were involved in a minor crash Thursday.

Teter's Hell Drivers and Other Features Booked for Fair Here

Lucky Teter and his Hell Drivers, an annual thrill feature at the Cumberland Fair, will perform at Fairgo on the afternoon of Monday, August 12, at 3 o'clock, it was announced yesterday.

The Teter show consists of a series of sensational stunts performed in automobiles and on motorcycles by a number of the country's outstanding stunt riders. In past appearances here the "Hell Drivers" performed before large crowds.

Horse Pulling Contest

Another feature scheduled for "Fair Week" is the Horse Pulling contest, scheduled for the night of Thursday, August 15.

Contestants will be divided into two classes, the heavy class for teams over 3,000 pounds and the light class for teams less than 3,000 pounds and under sixteen hands.

Cash prizes aggregating $100 will be offered in the two classes. The awards in each class will be $20 first place; $15 second place; $10 third place and $5, fourth place.

The dynamometer, a machine for actually measuring the force exerted by the team on the draw bar, will be used in the pulling contest. The dynamometer demonstrates the effect of correct shoeing, proper fitting of collar and harnes, proper training and horsemanship, relationship of breeding, conformation and temperament, the maximum pulling capacity of a horse and the human appeal of the horse in action.

Fireworks Scheduled

The machine is set at a light weight for the first pull. All teams then are required to move the machine the distance of twenty-seven and a half feet in one continuous pull, in order to qualify for the next highest weight. Those failing to do so are eliminated. The same process in repeated with heavier weight each time. The mechanism of the machine and rules and regulations will be explained at each contest.

A program of fireworks will feature the evening's entertainment Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, August 13, 14, and 15.

Cumberland Fine, New Methodist Pastor Says

Likes Mountains, Finds Time To Play on Softball Team

The Rev. C. M. LeFew, Cumberland's newest minister, is a 145-pounder who packed enough punch to win his varsity football letter in college although he broke his leg and nose in the process.

Discovering that their new pastor was keenly interested in sports, the young men of the Grace Methodist church, Virginia avenue, immediately put their stamp of approval on him, soon had him playing second base for the church softball team.

"We had an off-day today," the Rev. Mr. LeFew remarked last night. "As a matter of fact, we were shut out, 7-0."

The Rev. and Mrs. LeFew and their three attractive children, Harris, ten; Rebecca Ann, eight; and Charles Frederick, sixteen months; recently were sent to Cumberland from the Frederick Avenue Methodist church, Baltimore.

Pleased with Cumberland

"We like Cumberland very much," the Rev. Mr. LeFew said last night. "It's like living in the city and the country at the same time. We can always see the mountains. I've always found them very restful."

After characterizing his new charge consisting of some 650 members as the "friendliest church I have ever had," the Rev. Mr. LeFew added, "Cumberland, I believe, is quite a church town. It reminds me of Washington in that respect."

The Rev. Mr. LeFew is the son of a minister, the late Rev. Charles B. LeFew, who held parishes in the Baltimore conference.

He was born in Salem, Va., where he attended Roanoke College. It was there he plunged into football with all the drive he could muster with the result that his football career was short but successful.

Fellow students recall he made the first two tackles in the first two games in his freshman and sophomore years. He got his letter, also the broken leg and nose. These injuries made it necessary for him to give up football his junior and senior years.

Ordained in 1925

After graduating from Roanoke College, he took additional courses at Vanderbilt university and was ordained in 1925 in Washington, D. C., during the Baltimore conference of the Southern Methodist church. His first charge was on the Roanoke circuit in Virginia.

The Rev. Mr. LeFew was pastor at the Romney, W. Va., Methodist church for four years where he built a new parsonage. A number of warm friends made during the Romney sojourn last night were recalled with pleasure by the pastor.

From Romney, he moved to the LaPlata, Md., charge where he spent another four years. While there he organized a young peoples' camp at which courses were given in the

Student Pilots Pass Tests Here

Four student pilots and two advanced pilots passed tests yesterday at Mexico Farms airfield under the watchful eyes of N. T. Brown, Civil Aeronautics Authority inspector, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The fledgling aviators were Wade L. Berg, 505 Linden street, Cumberland; Melvin Diehl, Claysburg, Pa.; Philip Kensinger, and Robert Ickes, both of Roaring Springs, Pa.

William Rannells, local instructor, who taught the students, passed weight class rating tests and a ground instructors rating test on meteorology.

David Irvine, Coalport, Pa., came here to take his instructor's tests, which he passed.

June 27, two other students of Mr. Rannells passed their tests for private licenses. They were Thomas McMillen, Cumberland; Jesse Halterman, Ridgeley; Forrest Miller, Keyser, W. Va., passed tests for a commercial pilots license.

Appeal Is Taken By Judge Doub

Former Judge Albert A. Doub, third petitioner for taxation relief on Washington street property, yesterday appealed his case to the Maryland Court of Appeals. Former Judge Doub's appeal was filed one day after Joseph B. Finan and the McMullen brothers appealed their respective cases.

British Welcome Worn Clothing From America

Persons Wanting To Make Donations Should Call Mrs. H. E. Martin

Allegany Chapter of the American Red Cross, through its chairman, Mrs. George Henderson, yesterday announced that the Red Cross cannot handle shipments of worn clothing for use overseas.

Mrs. Henderson added, however, that the British War Relief committee is accepting such garments and that anyone who has warm clothing in good condition which they would like to send to Europe is asked to communicate with Mrs. H. E. Martin, LaVale, telephone 3289.

It was pointed out that warm clothing was especially welcomed by the people living in the British Isles because of the cool and damp weather which usually puts in its appearance the latter part of August or early September.

1,078,000 Persons Aided

The Allegany County Chapter of the Red Cross yesterday was notified that since May 10, the French Red Cross has given assistance to 1,078,000 refugees from 10,000,000 francs contributed by the American Red Cross. One fourth of the sum remains unexpended which will be used for relief to refugees enroute to their homes.

As of July 10 a total of $1,827,000 worth of American Red Cross relief supplies has been made available to France.

Richard Allen, European delegate of the Red Cross has reported that the SS. McKeesport, carrying a million dollar relief cargo, is expected to dock at Marseilles, France, on or about July 15.

Meanwhile, national headquarters of the Red Cross in Washington has announced that relief supplies are being rushed to Great Britain on every available boat. Of recent vessels ten ambulances, 500 cases of surgical dressings, 117 bales of children's hose and 206 bales of men's trousers were shipped to the British Red Cross and the Personal Service League.

To Ship Ambulances

Scheduled for shipment to England before the end of this month are seventy ambulances, 1,110 cases of children's and men's shoes, 3,423 cases of salt meats, 1,020 sacks and 2,800 cases of rice, 8,463 cases of syrup, 7,143 cases of lard and 1,250 cases of dried milk.

The Red Cross relief fund yesterday stood at $18,692,262, the announced goal being $20,000,000.

O'CONOR APPOINTEE—Appointment of Henry W. Price, of Cumberland, as a member of the Maryland Council of Defense and Resources, which will cooperate with the Federal government's national defense program, was announced yesterday by Governor Herbert R. O'Conor. The state organization is composed of eighteen men and one woman. Mr. Price is superintendent of the Potomac Edison company and is a member of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce. (See story on Page 1).

Gateway Chatter

by News Staff Members

Cumberland seems to be quite popular as a "convention city", as Gateway Chatter recalls that the Maryland State Firemen's Association meeting in Lonaconing last week selected the Queen City for its 1941 meeting place.

Of course, nearly everyone knows, the annual convention of the American Legion, Department of Maryland will meet in this city August 21 to 24 inclusive.

Not so many months ago the Moose held a convention here and there have been other state, regional or district meetings here in the last year.

Cumberland has much to offer visitors. To mention a few, adequate hotels, spacious auditoriums for business sessions and dances, Cumberland Country Club and the Ali Ghan Shrine Club for recreation, mountain scenery unexcelled anywhere in the country, and a hospitable citizenry to entertain.

Just heard the story of a woman from Ohio who stopped at a local auto repair shop and inquired:

"Do you have anything unusual in this section?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied the attendant proudly, "we have a fine Celanese plant".

"Oh, you have! exclaimed the woman. "And do you mean to say its in bloom this time of year?"

—o—

Glory be! Gateway Chatter has one reader anyway and he believes in acting promptly. Yesterday morning's column invited readers to tip Gateway Chatter off to unusual hobbies of Cumberland folks, and Robert O. Slemmer, secretary of the Cumberland Miniature Camera Club, speaks right out to proclaim that many folks are going "camera crazy".

"I think the majority of the population of late has gone camera crazy", Mr. Slemmer writes. "If you will stroll around "Fort Hill Park" some sunny Sunday afternoon you can see everybody and his brother lining his party to "look at the birdie".

"I have been playing around with photography for little over three years and find it one of the best all around hobbies that one can have and I am sure there are plenty of people to back me up on this. To prove this, a little over three years ago a group of us camera bugs decided to start some sort of camera club. We went along for about two years without any increased membership to amount to anything then all of a sudden it jumped overnight, until we have reached such a point that we will have to limit the membership to

Boys Make Fine Records in Second Swimming Meet at the YMCA Camp

The second week Aquatic Meet for the boys at the Central Y.M.C.A. Camp of Springfield, W. Va., was a big splash that will long be remembered by the youngsters who participated and also the spectators. Ideal weather and unexcelled water favored those who entered ten different classes and many of the events were decided by a hairs breadth. The judges at times took considerable time before rendering a decision, so closely were the events contested.

Billy Lammert, competing in the Freshman C class was high point winner, taking eighteen out of a possible twenty points. Second place was shared by John Rannels in the Sophomore A class and Dick Watkins in the Junior A Class each boy making sixteen points.

Senior Winners

Dash—Won by Billy Watkins, Bill Van Fossen, second; Kenneth Stolte, third and Norman Barger,fourth.

Six Boy Scout Troops Spend Week in Camp

Nine Other Troops In Potomac Council Will Go Later

With the vacation period still quite young, six Boy Scout troops of the Potomac Council have already spent a week or more in camp. Troops No. 2 and No. 7 of Cumberland, and No. 43 of Frostburg have camped on the site provided by the Council on Millison's Farm near Springfield, West Virginia. Troop No. 6 of Cumberland spent the week of June 17-22 at Alverno near Grantsville. Troop No. 3 of Piedmont is now camping at Minco Park near Keyser. And Troop No. 32 of Romney is camping near Capon Bridge.

Nine additional troops have made official applications to spend one of the next two weeks at the Council Camp at Springfield. These are Troop No. 1, 6, and 12 of Cumberland; Troops No. 33 and 62 of Piedmont; Troops No. 37 and 39 of Keyser; Troop No. 1 of Franklin, W. Va.; and Troop No. 63 of Petersburg, West Virginia.

Scout Masters Direct Boys

Twelve of these fifteen troops either have or will be directed in their camping experience by their own scoutmasters. These troops, their sponsors and scoutmasters are, Troop No. 7, Cumberland Rotary Club, Nelson Gilford; Troop No. 2, B. & O. Western Maryland Ski Club Members To Picnic Sunday

Members of the Western Maryland Ski Club will congregate at New Germany again tomorrow—this time without their skis and earmuffs.

Purpose of tomorrow's reuni of the winter sports enthusiasts is to hold a picnic on the slopes they slid on last winter.

Members of the club have been invited to meet tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. at the Otto farmhouse with each party bringing its own picnic basket.

A hike up the expert ski trail will be followed by a hayride through the Garrett county countryside.

Outdoor ovens and a plentiful supply of wood will be available for those wishing to cook their meals at the picnic site.

Crabtree To Build $4,500 Home Here On Elder Street

Fred C. Crabtree, 201 Elder street, yesterday was granted a permit to build a $4,500 home on lots numbers 118 and 119 Elder street. The building, one and a half stories high will be of concrete block and brick construction with composition shingle roof. E. W. Abell is the contractor. Plans were furnished by the Taylor Lumber company.

Thompson To Push Collection of 1939 Taxes

A push to collect outstanding 1939 taxes unless paid or arrangements made to have them paid in the next sixty days was announced yesterday by Alban Thompson, county tax collector.

The collector said the drive to clear up the back indebtedness would start as soon as he completed his work with the state auditors.

Band Concert Season Will Open July 21

The first of a series of concerts to be held this summer at Constitution Park probably will be presented Sunday, July 21, Mayor Irvine said last night. Music will be provided by the American Legion band.

He indicated an order for the approval of staging several band concerts on Sunday evenings at the park will be introduced at a regular meeting of the city council Monday.

Three concerts were held last year at the park and the band received $50 a concert.

Personal Items

Miss Kay Lewis, of Fort Ashby, W. Va., is recovering from an operation at the Allegany hospital.

Mrs. Welby L. Brunk, 418 Goethe street, yesterday was notified that her uncle, Ira Taylor, of Pennsboro, W. Va., who has been seriously ill with apoplexy, is improving.

State Firemen To Return Here After Twenty-four Years

Mayor Irvine and Other Leaders Are Pleased City Was Chosen

That Cumberland, the state's second largest city is pleased with having been awarded the 1941 Maryland State Firemen's convention, came early yesterday when Mayor Harry Irvine and a group of representative business men and citizens notified the delegates at the state convention in Lonaconing of their gratification in securing the meeting next year.

Action on the selection of the 1941 convention city was taken Thursday night in Lonaconing when new state officers also were elected.

City Host Three Times

Since the Maryland State Firemen's Association was formed forty-seven years ago Cumberland has been host to the "blaze battlers" on three occasions—in 1896, 1904 and, again in 1917. Since 1917, no effort ever has been made to obtain the convention, inasmuch as Cumberland's two volunteer companies Chapel Hill Hose company, No. 6, and Cumberland Hose company, No. 1, had only a small membership—fifty to be exact, according to the state association's record.

However, with a membership campaign underway and with a desire to be of better service, Cumberland made its bid for the upcoming meeting through Col. Nelson W. Russler, business man and former county commissioner. He was a delegate from Chapel Hill Hose company. Mr. Russler, after conferring with leading officials, hotel managers, chamber of commerce heads, bankers and service clubs, and backed by his fellow firemen, he made the initial bid Thursday night. No sooner had Mr. Russler finished reading telegrams from the mayor and city council of Cumberland, the Second National bank, Peoples bank, Liberty Trust company, and the Commercial Savings bank, and making a personal appeal for the citizenry of Cumberland, than Edward J. Ryan, attorney, stepped to the front to further urge the delegates to select Cumberland.

Charles Nester Succumbs after Lingering Illness

B.&O. Firemen and World War Veteran Is Taken by Death

Charles Nester, 50, Baltimore and Ohio railroad fireman and World war veteran, died yesterday at his home, 13 Roberts street, following an illness of ten months.

Born at Rowlesburg, W. Va., Mr. Nester had been employed by the B. and O. railroad since 1910. He enlisted in the U. S. Army December 14, 1917, and served overseas with Companies A and C, Thirty-fifth Engineers, from March 12, 1918, until July 8, 1919.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Amanda Lease Nester, he is survived by three sons, Charles, Jr., Donald and Arthur Nester, of Cumberland; two brothers, William and Samuel Nester, of Terra Alta, W. Va., and one sister, Mrs. Rebecca Fitchet, of Terra Alta.

Gyneth A. Shanholtz

Gyneth Ann Shanholtz, infant daughter of William H. and Sarah M. Shanholtz, of RFD 2, Roberts Place, died yesterday morning at Allegany hospital where she was born Wednesday.

The body was taken to Garrett county for burial.

Mrs. Rose O'Connor

A requiem high mass for Mrs. Rose O'Connor, 4818 Lytel street, Pittsburgh, Pa., who died Wednesday at Montefiore hospital, will be conducted today at St. Stephen's Catholic church. Burial will be at Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. O'Connor was a native of Cumberland.

Mrs. Eli Belch

Mrs. Minnie Belch, 52, wife of Eli Belch, of Edenborn, Pa., died Tuesday night at Uniontown, (Pa.) hospital, following a brief illness.

A daughter, Mrs. Minnie Tait, of Cumberland, is among those surviving.

Rizer Approves Street Project

City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer yesterday turned over the proposed Frederick street project for WPA approval, Henry Tarring, Jr., resident engineer, said.

The project to construct streets, curbing and sidewalks on the unpaved avenue will provide 646 man months of work in all. However, the resident engineer said he did not know just how many men would be put on the job in the event it is approved.

Furnishing an illustration, Mr. Tarring said it would probably take a crew of fifty-six laborers about ten months to perform the work.

The paving job will cover 2,500 linear feet, it was announced at the WPA office. The State Roads Commission has tentatively promised to put in that section of the street from the city line to Nave's crossroad.

Ship Ahoy

Hugh McMullen Shaffer, of Cumberland, Monday is scheduled to start a one month cruise on the U. S. S. Wyoming in connection with the four months officers training course for a commission in the U. S. Reserves. Shaffer was one of five appointed to make the cruise.

Biehn Reports 36 Army Enlistments Here This Month

A total of thirty-six enlistments so far this month was reported yesterday by sergeant Clarence Biehn, recruiting officer for the U. S. Army with offices in the post office building.

While June enlistments totaled sixty-five, Sergeant Biehn predicted yesterday that the July total would top that record.

Approximately 300 men have enlisted in the army from the Cumberland area since Jan. 1, the recruiting officer said. This is the greatest number of enlistments over a six-months period in a number of years, he said.

Local Men Attend Meeting; To Enjoy Cruise on Yacht

William L. Geppert, managing editor of the Cumberland News and Harry H. Robinson, telegraph editor of the Times are attending the annual meeting of the Chesapeake division of Associated Press members today and Sunday.

The meeting will be held on the State Yacht du Pont which will sail from Annapolis at noon today. Members will enjoy a two days cruise on the yacht and entertainment will include fishing, swimming and other amusements. A business session will be held today.

Crippled Children's League To Conduct Clinic Here Soon

The Crippled Children's League, with the cooperation of the Health Department, will conduct a clinic at City Hall July 24, 25 and 26, it was announced last night by Miss Vivian Lambert, executive secretary of the league. Dr. Winfield Phelps will conduct the work the first two days and Dr. George E. Bennett, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

Three Drivers Fined In Police Court

Three drivers were fined and one was acquitted yesterday in local courts.

James A. Cline, 408 Sringdale street, was fined $10 and costs in Trial Magistrates court for driving alone on a thirty-day permit. A $10 fine was suspended in Police court on a charge of careless driving.

Virgil L. Hartsock, 15 Humbird street, arrested last Saturday on the West Side, paid $10 fine for speeding.

Karl F. Zimmerla, 446 North Centre street, was fined $5 for careless driving, while Clarence R. Simons of Bedford, Pa., was found not guilty of a similar count. Both were involved in a minor crash Thursday.

Teter's Hell Drivers and Other Features Booked for Fair Here

Lucky Teter and his Hell Drivers, an annual thrill feature at the Cumberland Fair, will perform at Fairgo on the afternoon of Monday, August 12, at 3 o'clock, it was announced yesterday.

The Teter show consists of a series of sensational stunts performed in automobiles and on motorcycles by a number of the country's outstanding stunt riders. In past appearances here the "Hell Drivers" performed before large crowds.

Horse Pulling Contest

Another feature scheduled for "Fair Week" is the Horse Pulling contest, scheduled for the night of Thursday, August 15.

Contestants will be divided into two classes, the heavy class for teams over 3,000 pounds and the light class for teams less than 3,000 pounds and under sixteen hands.

Cash prizes aggregating $100 will be offered in the two classes. The awards in each class will be $20 first place; $15, second plance; $10, third place and $5, fourth place.

The dynamometer, a machine for actually measuring the force exerted by the team on the draw bar, will be used in the pulling contest. The dynamometer demonstrates the effect of correct shoeing, proper fitting of collar and harnes, proper training and horsemanship, relationship of breeding, conformation and temperament, the maximum pulling capacity of a horse and the human appeal of the horse in action.

Fireworks Scheduled

The machine is set at a light weight for the first pull. All teams then are required to move the machine the distance of twenty-seven and a half feet in one continuous pull, in order to qualify for the next highest weight. Those failing to do so are eliminated. The same process in repeated with heavier weight each time. The mechanism of the machine and rules and regulations will be explained at each contest.

A program of fireworks will feature the evening's entertainment Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, August 13, 14, and 15.

Cumberland Fine, New Methodist Pastor Says

Likes Mountains, Finds Time To Play on Softball Team

The Rev. C. M. LeFew, Cumberland's newest minister, is a 145-pounder who packed enough punch to win his varsity football letter in college although he broke his leg and nose in the process.

Discovering that their new pastor was keenly interested in sports, the young men of the Grace Methodist church, Virginia avenue, immediately put their stamp of approval on him, soon had him playing second base for the church softball team.

"We had an off-day today," the Rev. Mr. LeFew remarked last night. "As a matter of fact, we were shut out, 7-0."

The Rev. and Mrs. LeFew and their three attractive children, Harris, ten; Rebecca Ann, eight; and Charles Frederick, sixteen months; recently were sent to Cumberland from the Frederick Avenue Methodist church, Baltimore.

Pleased with Cumberland

"We like Cumberland very much," the Rev. Mr. LeFew said last night. "It's like living in the city and the country at the same time. We can always see the mountains. I've always found them very restful."

After characterizing his new charge consisting of some 650 members as the "friendliest church I have ever had," the Rev. Mr. LeFew added, "Cumberland, I believe, is quite a church town. It reminds me of Washington in that respect."

The Rev. Mr. LeFew is the son of a minister, the late Rev. Charles B. LeFew, who held parishes in the Baltimore conference.

He was born in Salem, Va., where he attended Roanoke College. It was there he plunged into football with all the drive he could muster with the result that his football career was short but successful.

Fellow students recall he made the first two tackles in the first two games in his freshman and sophomore years. He got his letter, also the broken leg and nose. These injuries made it necessary for him to give up football his junior and senior years.

Ordained in 1925

After graduating from Roanoke College, he took additional courses at Vanderbilt university and was ordained in 1925 in Washington, D. C., during the Baltimore conference of the Southern Methodist church. His first charge was on the Roanoke circuit in Virginia.

The Rev. Mr. LeFew was pastor at the Romney, W. Va., Methodist church for four years where he built a new parsonage. A number of warm friends made during the Romney sojourn last night were recalled with pleasure by the pastor.

From Romney, he moved to the LaPlata, Md., charge where he spent another four years. While there he organized a young peoples' camp at which courses were given in the

British Welcome Worn Clothing From America

Persons Wanting To Make Donations Should Call Mrs. H. E. Martin

Allegany Chapter of the American Red Cross, through its chairman, Mrs. George Henderson, yesterday announced that the Red Cross cannot handle shipments of worn clothing for use overseas.

Mrs. Henderson added, however, that the British War Relief committee is accepting such garments and that anyone who has warm clothing in good condition which they would like to send to Europe is asked to communicate with Mrs. H. E. Martin, LaVale, telephone 3289.

It was pointed out that warm clothing was especially welcomed by the people living in the British Isles because of the cool and damp weather which usually puts in its appearance the latter part of August or early September.

1,078,000 Persons Aided

The Allegany County Chapter of the Red Cross yesterday was notified that since May 10, the French Red Cross has given assistance to 1,078,000 refugees from 10,000,000 francs contributed by the American Red Cross. One fourth of the sum remains unexpended which will be used for relief to refugees enroute to their homes.

As of July 10 a total of $1,827,000 worth of American Red Cross relief supplies has been made available to France.

Richard Allen, European delegate of the Red Cross has reported that the SS. McKeesport, carrying a million dollar relief cargo, is expected to dock at Marseilles, France, on or about July 15.

Meanwhile, national headquarters of the Red Cross in Washington has announced that relief supplies are being rushed to Great Britain on every available boat. Of recent vessels ten ambulances, 500 cases of surgical dressings, 117 bales of children's hose and 206 bales of men's trousers were shipped to the British Red Cross and the Personal Service League.

To Ship Ambulances

Scheduled for shipment to England before the end of this month are seventy ambulances, 1,110 cases of children's and men's shoes, 3,423 cases of salt meats, 1,020 sacks and 2,800 cases of rice, 8,463 cases of syrup, 7,143 cases of lard and 1,250 cases of dried milk.

The Red Cross relief fund yesterday stood at $18,692,262, the announced goal being $20,000,000.

Student Pilots Pass Tests Here

The fledgling aviators were Wade L. Berg, 505 Linden street, Cumberland; Melvin Diehl, Claysburg, Pa.; Philip Kensinger, and Robert Ickes, both of Roaring Springs, Pa.

William Rannells, local instructor, who taught the students, passed weight class rating tests and a ground instructors rating test on meteorology.

David Irvine, Coalport, Pa., came here to take his instructor's tests, which he passed.

June 27, two other students of Mr. Rannells passed their tests for private licenses. They were Thomas McMillen, Cumberland; Jesse Halterman, Ridgeley; Forrest Miller, Keyser, W. Va., passed tests for a commercial pilots license.

Appeal Is Taken By Judge Doub

Former Judge Albert A. Doub, third petitioner for taxation relief on Washington street property, yesterday appealed his case to the Maryland Court of Appeals. Former Judge Doub's appeal was filed one day after Joseph B. Finan and the McMullen brothers appealed their respective cases.

O'CONOR APPOINTEE—Appointment of Henry W. Price, of Cumberland, as a member of the Maryland Council of Defense and Resources, which will cooperate with the Federal government's national defense program, was announced yesterday by Governor Herbert R. O'Conor. The state organization is composed of eighteen men and one woman. Mr. Price is superintendent of the Potomac Edison company and is a member of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce. (See story on Page 1).

Gateway Chatter

by News Staff Members

Cumberland seems to be quite popular as a "convention city", as Gateway Chatter recalls that the Maryland State Firemen's Association meeting in Lonaconing last week selected the Queen City for its 1941 meeting place.

Of course, nearly everyone knows, the annual convention of the American Legion, Department of Maryland will meet in this city August 21 to 24 inclusive.

Not so many months ago the Moose held a convention here and there have been other state, regional or district meetings here in the last year.

Cumberland has much to offer visitors. To mention a few, adequate hotels, spacious auditoriums for business sessions and dances, Cumberland Country Club and the Ali Ghan Shrine Club for recreation, mountain scenery unexcelled anywhere in the country, and a hospitable citizenry to entertain.

—o—

Just heard the story of a woman from Ohio who stopped at a local auto repair shop and inquired:

"Do you have anything unusual in this section?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied the attendant proudly, "we have a fine Celanese plant".

"Oh, you have! exclaimed the woman. "And do you mean to say its in bloom this time of year?"

—o—

Glory be! Gateway Chatter has one reader anyway and he believes in acting promptly. Yesterday morning's column invited readers to tip Gateway Chatter off to unusual hobbies of Cumberland folks, and Robert O. Slemmer, secretary of the Cumberland Miniature Camera Club, speaks right out to proclaim that many folks are going "camera crazy".

"I think the majority of the population of late has gone camera crazy", Mr. Slemmer writes. "If you will stroll around "Fort Hill Park" some sunny Sunday afternoon you can see everybody and his brother lining his party to "look at the birdie".

"I have been playing around with photography for little over three years and find it one of the best all around hobbies that one can have and I am sure there are plenty of people to back me up on this. To prove this, a little over three years ago a group of us camera bugs decided to start some sort of camera club. We went along for about two years without any increased membership to amount to anything then all of a sudden it jumped overnight, until we have reached such a point that we will have to limit the membership to

Nine Other Troops In Potomac Council Will Go Later

With the vacation period still quite young, six Boy Scout troops of the Potomac Council have already spent a week or more in camp. Troops No. 2 and No. 7 of Cumberland, and No. 43 of Frostburg have camped on the site provided by the Council on Millison's Farm near Springfield, West Virginia. Troop No. 6 of Cumberland spent the week of June 17-22 at Alverno near Grantsville. Troop No. 3 of Piedmont is now camping at Minco Park near Keyser. And Troop No. 32 of Romney is camping near Capon Bridge.

Nine additional troops have made official applications to spend one of the next two weeks at the Council Camp at Springfield. These are Troop No. 1, 6, and 12 of Cumberland; Troops No. 33 and 62 of Piedmont; Troops No. 37 and 39 of Keyser; Troop No. 1 of Franklin, W. Va.; and Troop No. 63 of Petersburg, West Virginia.

Scout Masters Direct Boys

Twelve of these fifteen troops either have or will be directed in their camping experience by their own scoutmasters.
